Ring of Linn presented the name of Hon. W. I. Atkinson of Butler as candidate for Speaker, preceding such nomination with the following remarks:

MR. SPEAKER AND GENTLEMEN OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.—I do not know whether my make-up is materially different from that of any other member of the House, but I do here and now recall that from my earliest reflective moments I had the general impression that those who occupied legislative positions were somewhat different from other people. Two years ago I came for the first time as a member of the assembly. As I sat in caucus and listened to the proceedings I said to myself, "More wonderful to me it seems than all the golden fancies of all my golden dreams." However, one term of service may have somewhat removed the glamour, yet I am constrained to believe that the position we occupy is one of deep significance and great importance.

Sometimes duty beckons to the performance of certain tasks. Ofttimes we hesitate to enter upon the performance of those tasks. The reasons may be various. Perhaps the work may be unpleasant; perhaps great effort may be required. On the other hand, ofttimes the duty is pleasant in its performance and such is the case this morning.

Sometime, somewhere, I know neither the time nor the place, the creative spirit of the Infinite was moved and there came as a result this good old earth. The earth with its mountains, the plains and valleys and streams. Down many a mountain side and across many a plain and down many a valley flowed many a stream. There were great continents and great waterways. All this was the gift of the Infinite to the finite. Then the finite being dreamed and hoped and planned, and out of his dreaming and hoping and planning came kingdoms and governments of earth. Such was the answer of the finite to the Infinite. Here on this North American continent we have builded a great country, and here between two great rivers we have built a great state, the choicest gem in that priceless collection of states of our common country. Here in this state of Iowa we have our machinery of government. A part of that government is the General Assembly. A part of the General Assembly is the House of Representatives. Pursuant to this governmental plan, we are here met as the House of Representatives of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly. It becomes necessary that we select one well qualified to act as our presiding officer. I, therefore, count it an honor indeed to place in nomination one whom I believe qualified in moral worth, in intellectual training and legislative experience to act as our Speaker. He is a man in every sense of the word. A man who will preside with impartiality, and yet will be our constant guide. Gentlemen of the House of Representatives, I have the distinguished honor of nominating for the honorable position of Speaker of the House of Representatives the Honorable William I. Atkinson of Butler county.

Steelsmith of Osceola was recognized for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Speaker and yielded the floor to Kane of Dubuque, who presented the name of Honorable S. H. Bauman of Van Buren as a candidate for Speaker, preceding such nomination with the following remarks:

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—We of the minority, in presenting a candidate for the speakership, realize the fact that in so doing we have no opportunity of securing our candidate for the permanent speaker of this assembly. But regardless of that fact, we are desirous of extending an honor to one of our members who has served for four sessions as a member of this body and who has obtained for himself distinction as a man of ability and fairness in all legislative matters. We present this candidate, not in the spirit of partisanship, but in recognition of his past accomplishments as an Iowa legislator. I have the honor of presenting to this assembly the minority candidate for Speaker of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, the Honorable S. H. Bauman of Van Buren.

There being no further nominations, the roll was called with the following result:

Richards of Muscatine moved that a committee of two be named to escort the Speaker to the chair.

Upon being sworn and assuming the chair, Speaker Atkinson made the following remarks:

Members of the House of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly:

First, I want to thank you out of the abundance of my gratitude for the distinguished honor your confidence and generosity have conferred upon me. It is needless for me to observe that I am profoundly impressed with the grave and weighty responsibilities of the position. In importance it is perhaps second only to the Chief Executive of our state.

It will be my earnest endeavor to preside over your deliberations with strict and unwavering impartiality, and in the discharge of whatever power the position confers upon me, to be guided only by the desire for the most effective and efficient service on the part of the members of this body, both individually and collectively.

You are the direct representatives of the people of Iowa. Through you the people speak and act, but in acting each individual legislator should bear in mind that, while primarily he is chosen by the people of his county, in a broader and truer sense he is legislating for the entire state. Many and conflicting interests will come before you, but you should be governed only by the single and fixed purpose—that which is best for our state. Our eyes should be set on the future. The past is recorded. It cannot be recalled. We can, however, assist in pointing the way for the future. It should be our ambition that when the Thirty-sixth General Assembly adjourns to have made such a record that the annalists of our state will say that we have made the state of Iowa better and greater.

In the past few years there has been a quickening in the spirit and sentiment of state pride which has found expression in a movement for a greater Iowa. It is a broad and comprehensive term as well as movement, and to such a cause, forgetting party as well as all divisions of thought among our citizenship, we can heartily unite in its promotion. Let there be no halting in our march of progress.

In conclusion, I can only say: Let us address ourselves seriously and earnestly to the work before us, and strive to make a record that each of us will be proud to transmit as a legacy to those who follow.

I assure you I will endeavor to safely and securely guard this trust, in the interest of every member, to the end that you may consider me entitled to your continued confidence.

Do you wonder that I should feel humiliated as I take this gavel in my hand, and attempt to fill Speaker Atkinson's chair, after your committee have left my side? If I were possessed of mentality equal in size and strength to the physical proportions of the committee you selected to escort me to this chair, it would be a pleasure for me to utilize every iota of that mental strength by co-operating with you, in the accomplishment of such legislation as will increase the happiness, prosperity and welfare of our Iowa people. But, however humble may be my ability, I assure you it will be my desire and my ambition to accord to all members fair-

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly:

In accordance with the mandate of the Constitution, I submit to you the following message:

Many of the reports of the various departments and officers of the State are now ready and will soon be placed on your desks. I think all will be within a reasonable time. The Constitution makes it my duty to communicate to you "the condition of the State." These reports will outline it to you in a very full and complete way, and much more clearly than it would be possible for me to do without extending this message far beyond a reasonable length. I, however, make them a part hereof, by reference, and urge upon you a careful study of them, because in no other way can you get a clear understanding of conditions and what the State is doing, and in no other way can you so well qualify yourselves for an intelligent, satisfactory discharge of your duties in this particular field. You will find some things to criticise. It would be very strange if you did not; but, in very many ways you will be disarmed of criticism.

I have deemed it best, however, to present to you, as clearly as I can, the financial condition of the State. This, first of all, you must know, because you cannot proceed intelligently as to the business affairs of the State until you do.

First of all, there are balances left over from appropriations heretofore made, many of them some years ago, for specific purposes which have been carried out. These balances ought to be transferred to the general fund, charged off the Treasurer's books as unexpended balances of appropriations, and the accounts closed. You should pass a bill authorizing this to be done.

They are:

Dam at Okoboji	$ 1,000.00
Executive Council, extraordinary repair.....	168.00
Executive Council, improvement Capitol grounds.....	853.00
Executive Council, storage house	221.00
Executive Council, new boilers	2,563.00
Executive Council, decorating offices	1,074.00
Executive Council, repairs to elevators.....	1,500.00
Executive Council, watchman's clock	485.00
Gray uniforms	690.00
Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument.....	3,195.00
Monument at Vicksburg	6,964.00
Monument at Keokuk	550.00

Provisional contingent fund	35,000.00
Publishing Acts General Assembly	1,300.00
Retrenchment and Reform Engineers	1,000.00
Sale of Camp Grounds	4,218.00
Sale of State Square	158.00
Statue of James Harlan	500.00
Statue of Samuel J. Kirkwood.....	2,740.00
	$ 64,179.00

The taxable value of all property subject to general levies for State and county purposes is $926,900,092. The amount of monies and credits returned is $250,218,117. The State receives approximately one-sixteenth of the tax levied on this sum. The State millage levies do not apply to monies and credits. These valuations, it may be assumed, will be closely approximated for the next biennium and will enable you to determine the revenue that will be derived at present levies.

The estimated receipts of general revenue for the last six months of the present biennium, ending June 30, 1915, including cash on hand January 1, 1915, is:

Estimated disbursements for same period.....	$ 2,250,000.00	$ 2,980,079.51
To this may be added extraordinary appropriations of former legislatures undrawn, December 31, 1914	375,013.00	2,625,013.00
Leaving estimated balance on hand June 30, 1915		355,066.51
The estimated receipts of general revenue for biennium beginning July 1, 1915.....		10,078,000.00
Total revenue for the biennium.....		$10,433,066.51
Estimated expenditures for biennial period ending July 1, 1917		$ 9,477,017.46
		$ 956,049.05

From this statement it is easily discovered that after providing for the estimated expenditures there will only remain for additional purposes $956,049.05, and that these additional purposes must be kept within that sum, unless you provide for additional revenue. The State has been conducting its general revenue affairs upon the theory that no more should be taken from the people than is actually necessary to meet the expenditures to be cared for by this fund—upon the sound theory that a large surplus meant over-taxation. Good business, however, demands a reasonable surplus and this would not be a violation of the theory. The legislature, therefore, in fixing the amount of revenue to be raised, and it has sole authority in this matter, has held the fund down to the very lowest point possible to meet the needs of a rapidly developing State under modern conditions and ideals. If, therefore, the General Assembly creates large needs and demands and does not authorize a fund commensurate with them, the administrators of affairs are put to the utmost of their ingenuity in management to keep within the limit set for them.

I desire to call your attention here to the fact that the Thirty-fourth General Assembly in Chapter 201 provided for the levy annually for five years of one-fifth of a mill each for the State University and the State Agricultural College and one-tenth of a mill for the Teachers' College "for the purpose of providing for the erection, repair, improvement and equipment of such necessary buildings as shall be determined upon by the State Board of Education." The Thirty-fifth General Assembly in Chapter 17 provided for the levy annually for five years of a special tax of one-half mill for the institutions under the Board of Control "for the purpose of providing for the erection and improvement of buildings, for appurtenances and connections, district custodial farm, State colony for Epileptics and for the purchase of land and for the purpose of establishing and maintaining industries at any or all of said institutions." These levies will provide for the educational institutions $463,450.00 annually and the same amount annually for the Board of Control. Heretofore appropriations have been made for these institutions and not provided for out of the millage tax. Appropriations are always charged to the general revenue and deplete it when the expense should be cared for by the millage tax. You should see to it that all allowances made to these institutions for any of the purposes mentioned in the Statutes referred to be charged to the millage fund.

It has been suggested (and I am not sure but that the suggestion is a good one) that a better method of administering all of these institutions would be to provide entirely for them by a millage fund carried into the State Treasury and disbursed from it under your supervision and enactment after full hearings and investigations as to needs. Then every taxpayer would know exactly what he was paying for these purposes; but he cannot know where he pays through appropriations. Then the State levy could be reduced far, far below the present rate. Indeed, the State would be almost if not quite self-supporting. I believe this is a matter well worth your consideration from the standpoint of good management and business efficiency. An institution that subsists on appropriations, it has been said, dies every two years, and it does. Whereas if it has a fixed millage fund it knows exactly what can be depended upon and can plan for the future with absolute certainty.

The millage levies before referred to were fixed by the last General Assembly, based upon the taxable value of property as it then existed and as it was doubtless presumed would continue. Nobody knew at that time it would not. In view of the increased valuation you should reduce the millage levies proportionately.

EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

Our State educational institutions should have liberal support. The greatness of a State must, in the last analysis, be measured by the intelligence and moral force and purpose of its people. There is no path of progress except along the line of investigation and research. The world is a constant revelation from every possible angle of study. It challenges eternal consideration and denies possibility of being exhausted. It is infinite and an inspirer of growth and ideals. Intelligence elevates the standards of life and of living. Ignorance stagnates, debases. Ignorance and selfishness halt progress and stand in the way of the great things of life. Ignorance and selfishness consider not the future. They have no ideals. There can be no illumination of the mind where they are enthroned. It is, therefore, of the very first importance that a State improve and elevate her citizenship through education. There can be no distinction otherwise.

A modern, fully equipped, up-to-date institution of learning requires resources of money in considerable sums. What is just as much required is wisdom, judgment and foresight in the expenditures. The tendency is to profligacy, which is coarse and should be condemned. The substantial, solid building of a State or the life of a people lies not in the excessive display or expenditure of money but in that moderation and discriminating care which is commendable in an individual. You should inform yourselves just as fully as possible as to what these and all other institutions with which you have to do are doing. You should know what they are, what provision has already been made for them, what they ask for and what they ought to have. Then your allowances should be within the means at your disposal. You should not guess at these things. Your duties cannot be performed without the most painstaking care and study. Each one of you should set about this business as if it were his own individual business, not, however, in the spirit of parsimony, but as a man of large vision to put his affairs on a sound basis shaped for satisfactory and great results. To aid you and save you a great amount of work I have, with the help of the Secretary of The Board of Education, outlined as best I could so that you may see at a glance exactly the present situation as to each one of these institutions. I invite your careful study of the following statements:

STATE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA.

The total enrollment of students in all of the collegiate departments of the State University for the academic year of 1908-1909, excluding duplicates, was 2,202. If to this number those enrolled in the two schools for nurses and in the summer school were added, the total enrollment for that year excluding duplicates, was 2,472. These numbers were not reached again until 1913-1914, when the corresponding enrollments were 2,345 and 2,669 respectively. On November 20, 1914, the attendance in the several collegiate departments was 2,365, while the total enrollment, including the School for Nurses and the summer session, was 2,771.

The General Assembly as a rule has heretofore provided for annual appropriations for her educational institutions of higher learning, that is to say, they are continuing fixed amounts from year to year until changed. In addition to these annuals, special appropriations are made from time to time for specific purposes.

INSTITUTIONS UNDER BOARD OF CONTROL.

There are sixteen institutions under the management of the Board of Control. Because of their number it is hardly practicable in a communication of this kind to take up and analyze the situation of each one as I have endeavored to do in the case of the educational institutions.

It is your duty to study carefully the report of the Board and of the executive officer of each institution. So far as I have been able to learn the management has been capable and wise throughout.

I submit herewith a statement showing exactly what each institution asks and what it wants the money for. Please note such items as should be included under the millage levies, both here and as to the askings of the Board of Education, and if you grant them let it be out of the millage levies and not by appropriations.

AMENDMENTS TO THE LAW AS TO STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

When the law creating the Board of Control was enacted the office of treasurer of each one of the institutions placed under its management was abolished and all moneys, books, etc., ordered to be turned in to the State Treasurer and all moneys thereafter derived from any source accounted for and remitted to him monthly and all funds and all bills payable thereafter drawn directly from the State Treasury.

There was opposition to this, of course, but time has demonstrated that it was a wise provision. When the law creating the State Board of Education was passed, for prudential reasons existing just at the time, the same thing was not to the same extent done as to the institutions passing under its management, but the Board was empowered to elect a treasurer for each one of the institutions. Not one word of criticism has ever been heard as to any one selected by the Board for treasurer at any one of the institutions or of his administration of his office. On the contrary, there has been universal approval. Many, however, believe that the funds of the educational institutions should be handled and administered exactly as the funds of the institutions under the Board of Control. Instead of four treasurers for the four institutions there should be but one and properly the State Treasurer that one. The accounts of the institutions should be kept substantially and so far as applicable with each institution as with the institutions under the Board of Control. For full information and by way of suggestion I call your attention to sections 13, 15, 16, 17, 37, 38, 39, 41 and 42 of Chapter 118 of the Acts of the Twenty-seventh General Assembly, to the end that you may examine into the question as to whether the law should be so amended as to incorporate like provisions in the law creating the State Board of Education. Experience has taught that the law creating the Board of Control and the methods therein provided for the administration of it were conceived in great wisdom.

Under present methods the State loses the interest that would accrue to it upon the large sums of money that might be held by the treasury as balances thereof from time to time. This should go to the State rather than elsewhere. This consideration alone would be a sufficient reason for your attention to this subject.

In this connection I desire to suggest for your consideration whether or not it would not be wise for the law to make somewhat similar provisions as to the State Highway Commission. This commission is the only one in the State that audits its own bills. Should they not be passed upon by some competent Board or Council and should not bills be paid directly from the State Treasury? It seems to me so. It hardly seems to me that it is wise that large sums can be drawn in lump amounts to be disbursed at pleasure. It must be understood that there is no criticism on the commission, but the question is are the present provisions or want of provisions of the law in this respect wise

USE OF UNEXPENDED BALANCE OF APPROPRIATIONS.

It is frequently the case that not all of an appropriation is needed for the purpose designated. Sometimes there is a surplus of several thousand dollars. Under the law as it now is this unexpended balance in many cases is not covered back into the treasury, but is used at the institution where the original expenditure was made for such purpose as the Board or Commission may please. It seems to me this ought not to be so. It is not "good business." It is a careless management of public funds. I recommend that you provide that all unexpended balances of appropriations be at once and hereafter covered back into the treasury.

COLLATERAL INHERITANCE TAX.

The law with reference to the collection of the collateral inheritance tax has, up to this time, been administered from the State Treasurer's office and by him. Many very difficult legal questions are constantly arising. The business in connection with the administration of the law is constantly increasing. During the biennium ending June 30, 1908, 905 estates paid the tax in the sum of $341,000.00. The last biennium, 1,270 estates paid $637,000.00. It is apparent that this volume of business requires very much, and very careful attention, the cases extending as they do into very many counties of the State. The Treasurer feels that it is very likely that much is lost to the State, because of the impossibility of giving it the close attention from his office that the importance of the business demands. Besides, it is necessarily work that should be in the hands of one trained in the law. You are asked to carefully inquire into this condition and provide for its relief.

REFORM OF COURT PROCEDURE.

Two years ago I submitted some suggestions and recommendations on the question of some reform in our court procedure. But one of them was adopted, with some qualification, namely, that all exceptions to instructions should be taken before they are read to the jury. This does not at all deter me from referring to the same subject again. Reforms sometimes move slowly. It is often hard to up-root old practices and old forms and methods that have become woven into the life of the people although the original reasons for their adoption have long since ceased to exist.

The administration of the law in our courts is, as everybody knows, slow, uncertain and unreasonably expensive. The weak financially are not upon an equal footing with the strong because of our practice procedure. There is not equality before the law at all. When one starts in upon a suit at law there is absolutely no telling where or when it will end. The weak in purse may indeed fall by the way, powerless to proceed, his rights unadjusted or not even substantial justice achieved. If he gets through at all it may be by a long, weary way from one court to another and back and forth again and again. He learns the way and finds that toll is exacted at every step. And it is all because of errors, whether they are substantial and affect the very right of the parties or not. There is always the presumption, when the error is found, that it was prejudicial. It does not make any difference how conclusively and abidingly satisfied the Supreme Court may be that the judgment on the whole case was right, yet prejudice is presumed because of the error, the case is reversed and back it goes for a re-trial. It is upon the theory that it cannot be known what the jury might have done if the error had not been made. So, notwithstanding the conviction that the verdict was right, it goes back to take the chance of some other error being committed and another jury bringing in a verdict that is wrong. While courts are fallible and very liable to error the jury is practically infallible, their verdict almost unimpeachable and establishes the fate of the litigants as firmly and immovably as the rocks of Gibraltar.

Aside from chancery cases the Supreme Court is a court for correction of errors. As errors are always presumed to be prejudicial, the astute lawyer often makes every effort to "get error into the record." If he can succeed and the result of the trial is not to his liking he can appeal with every presumption in his favor. The error is presumed to be prejudicial to his client. It may be, but it ought not to be conclusively presumed so. The contest in the appellate court centers around the question as to whether or not there was error and the substantial rights of the parties may not be involved at all. When you get at the bottom fact about the matter the rule under consideration does not require of the trial court justice but infallibility. This whole thing appears to me to be wrong. If the court on the whole case is satisfied that the judgment is just, the one that ought to have been rendered, they ought to let it alone notwithstanding the error, and litigation should end. "Matters of practice ought not to be exalted above matter of substance." This course we pursue inevitably results in inefficiency of legal administration. It brings about disregard of the law and contempt for it among all classes of people. Convictions in criminal cases are nullified because of presumed prejudice on account of error. This General Assembly ought not to adjourn until it has enacted a law providing in substance that no judgment shall be set aside or reversed or new trial granted on account of error of the court or error in any matter of pleading or procedure unless it shall appear on the whole case that the error complained of has injuriously affected the substantial rights of the parties.

The time sometimes taken for the selection of a jury is the cause of delay, useless expense, absurd, farcical. The grounds of challenge for cause are given by statute. A few questions in a few minutes are sufficient to determine a juror's qualifications and the court should be given authority to control and limit the examination, or, better still, he should have the authority to examine and pass upon the qualifications of jurors for the trial of the cause.

I again repeat what I said two years ago, that the time for taking appeals should be greatly shortened. I see no reason why the law should make the procedure of a cause through the courts interminable.

The law forbidding counsel to comment on the fact that the defendant in a criminal case declines to become a witness in his own behalf and give such explanation as he can of the facts produced tending to establish his guilt should be repealed. It is entirely just to him to suppose that if he could explain he would do so.

While I am speaking of laws and what it seems to me ought to be done I desire to say just a word about the law enacted by the last General Assembly providing for the non-partisan nomination and election of Judges. I believe it ought to be repealed.

TREATMENT OF CRIMINALS.

To my mind our method of treatment of those convicted of many of the crimes under our statute has been absurd and without justification from the standpoint of either the convicted man or the State. I am aware that there are wide differences of opinion upon the question of the treatment of those who have violated the criminal law. There never ought to be such a thing as even a thought of punishment as a retribution. Yet there is, when you get to the center of our theory of punishment, that thought running through it. The thought of punishment as a deterrent to others, I think, is a thing to be dismissed also because the experience of the world has shown that it does not deter—that the proportion of crimes to population does not decrease but rather increases. Then there is something of the avenging spirit underlying the thought. In some cases, it seems to me, the sentence of the law is out of all proportion to the gravity of the offense. And, as an ultimate question, what good can come, in very many cases, to either the culprit or to society, by a commitment to a jail or the penitentiary. How many scores of cases does every man know of as coming under his own observation, where not only no good came to either but a positive harm to both. I cannot view it in any other way than that every man ought to see the absurdity, the uselessness, the wrong done both to the prisoner and to society, in leading a young man, and older ones as well, first offenders, off and shutting them up in a jail or a penitentiary.

Perhaps in an hour of temptation, or under stress of circumstances, as inability to get work and little children and wife cold and hungry, they have committed an infraction of the law. What hope or chance is there for a man in a jail or a penitentiary. I am not now speaking of the habitual criminal, the outlaw, the man dangerous to be at large, but I am speaking of the large number of men whom we daily see walking out of our court rooms destined to imprisonment. Taken from their families, perhaps, who need every possible help they can give them, inflicting a wrong upon them personally and upon society as well by removing them from contributing members of society to helpless dependents and burdens to the State.

Our criminal court procedure and methods are uselessly expensive, but I sometimes feel that there is little hope of relief to society there as all appeals for reform have heretofore been in vain. The burden of expense to the people in feeding, clothing and warming prisoners and maintaining penitentiaries and reformatories is very great. Well, some one may ask, what will you do with them. I should say that at any rate as to the class of men I am now speaking of I would not continue a worn out, medieval method that the experience of centuries has demonstrated is an utter failure in helping or reforming men, a dismal failure in deterring or reducing crime. I should enlarge the right and impose upon the Judge the duty to parole men upon conditions of good citizenship, to express it in a general way, upon condition that the wrong done be righted as far as possible. I would restore these men to their families and to society to support themselves and their families rather than inflict suffering upon innocent and helpless women and children and the burden of supporting them all upon the State. We can do much better than that, and do it, too, without making them hate the State or changing them into enemies of society. Is this idea of the brotherhood of man a farce or not? Is helpfulness a fine thing to be talked about and never to be seen in action? Ought not the State to have a moral sense? Ought it not to have a conscience? Go, right the wrong you have done, restore any loss you may have occasioned, pay the costs you have occasioned your fellow citizens, take your place in society, go to work, support yourself and your family if you have one and if you will and be faithful in these things your sentence will be suspended for such length of time as it may take to satisfy the court that you are a well-disposed law-abiding man. There would be your reformatory in action and without vast machinery and expense. Clothe the courts with this power to be used in their sound discretion after a full knowledge of the case and of the man and with the power of final discharge when satisfied the man merits it. If at any time after suspension he proves unworthy let the sentence be executed and let him understand that it will be. This course would save much time to the courts and costs to the people in lessening the number of expensive trials. And can any good reason be given why this thing should not be done at once rather than after several years by the Board of Parole and after a large amount of expense, constantly accumulating, is incurred, and after the wrong has been inflicted by the State upon women and children and especially since centuries of experience has demonstrated that jails and penitentiaries do no good except in keeping the vicious, the habitually bad man, the enemy to good order, from preying on society. Of such characters you will understand I am not speaking. The only reason that can be given is that society must be avenged. There must be retribution. Punish the man one, two, three years, then let the Board of Parole do what the judge should have power to do at once if you really want to do the man any good. But the theory is do him and his family and society all the harm you can first.

From what I have already said it follows that I am in favor of the custodial farm. Certain classes of violators of the criminal law should be put to work. Judges should be empowered to commit to the Farm when we have reached such a point that it can be done. The law should define what classes should be sent there and generally provide for the administration of it. You should make such provisions at this session. The jails, as I think, should be largely depopulated for service on the Farm. Every man who can be safely trusted out of jail or penitentiary ought to be a worker, a producer, and not simply a leech upon the honest efforts of his fellow men.

As many men as possible from the penitentiary and reformatory ought to be given work upon our public highways, especially since the State has entered upon the policy of permanent road improvement. The experiments made in this direction have been very satisfactory, indeed. The brief experience the State has had in allowing a few men from the penitentiary and reformatory to work out side has resulted in a profit over all expenses of $19,773.10 to the State and earnings to the men about $7,000.00. The State has turned its face toward the more modern and enlightened method of dealing with criminals and the whole subject is one that ought to have your most careful consideration. Some considerable expense must necessarily be incurred in the beginning but ultimately the methods proposed will, as I believe, reduce cost to the State. The abolishment of the contract labor system is looked upon, I think with general favor. But men must be kept at work and it will therefore be necessary that you provide by legislation some method or provide such industries as will supply the need. This can be done by the millage tax already referred to.

PARDONS AND PAROLES.

In a pamphlet separate from this message which I make a part hereof by reference I have reported in full all cases of remission of fines and forfeitures and of commutations, revocations, restorations, suspensions and pardons granted, with the reasons therefor.

Summarizing the report:

I have referred to the Board of Parole for investigation and recommendation, upon the question of granting a pardon, nine cases of life men for murder in the first degree. In each case they reported adversely to granting a pardon. I have granted a pardon in one such case.

I have granted fifty-one suspensions upon the recommendation of the Board and fifty-nine from county jails.

I have restored to citizenship from parole 53 and, upon the recommendation of the Board, 224. There have been one revocation, forty-nine commutations and twenty-four remissions of fines and forfeitures.

THE ROAD LAW.

The road law passed by the last legislature has been rapidly growing in the favor of the people within the last year. For the first time in the history of the State has real, permanent progress in road repair and road making been realized. The outlook for the future is very encouraging, indeed. It may be found necessary at this session to amend it in some minor particulars to make it more flexible and workable, but only in such features of it as experience has proved necessary. The essential principles and provisions of it have been found to be right and the solid foundations for good roads in Iowa, and ought to remain.

There are localities in the State where the question of hard surfaced roads is engaging the attention of the people to a greater degree perhaps than in others. There are also places where the improvement of the road involves the cutting down of hills, at an unusual and exceptional expense. In order that this expense may be met and the improvement made, and in order that the work of hard-surfacing roads may be undertaken at once, it has been suggested that you make provision that counties may anticipate by a majority vote their road revenues by issuing bonds. I deem the suggestion a very good one and recommend that you make such provision. It would be entirely optional with each county—a majority vote of the people authorizing it.

In some States the law has provided for special assessment road improvement after the analogy of our special assessment drainage districts. I believe it would be wise and would encourage the building of the best and most permanent roads if you would authorize the establishment of special assessment road districts. Provision could, and should, be made for a portion of the cost to be paid by the public, a portion by those whose property would be specially benefited—each property paying in proportion to the benefits received—taking into consideration the enhancement of its value, its location, with reference to the improved road, all the elements of convenience, easy access to markets, and such like. Here, again, this would be entirely optional with the people to be included in the district—the method of establishing to be carefully worked out by the law. There is nothing new in any of these suggestions. They are only in line with the progressive, up-to-date spirit of the times that wants to lift these States out of the mud, greatly enhance the value of the lands, save enormous sums of money in making markets easily and quickly accessible at all times, and especially when prices are best. I am advised by one who has made careful study of the question that there are only two States in the Union besides our own which do not provide for bond issues for the construction of permanent roads. Such portions of our State as cheerfully and enthusiastically avail themselves of the provisions of our road laws will rapidly forge ahead in wealth and community development. The last two years has already made this apparent. The next few years will make it more strikingly and astonishingly so. It is easy for a community to acquire the reputation of facing backwards, of always being against, but never for, anything. Capital never goes there. It soon becomes a melancholy remainder of the quaint, sleepy old days of an almost forgotten past and a fine place to go for dreamy, undisturbed rest and repose.

PUBLIC HEALTH.

There is no matter of greater public importance than the health of the people. To wait the appearance of the epidemic or scourge is always disastrous. When the work of constructing the Panama Canal was to be undertaken the thing regarded as of first and paramount importance was to convert the disease breeding surroundings into healthful conditions. To remove the cause of contagion is the part of wisdom. The sanitary engineer, the creation of healthful conditions, are the demands of the medical and sanitary science of the present. Many of the cities and towns of Iowa, by constantly turning filth and pollution into the streams and rivers, are transforming them into sources of disease, indeed; making them an actual menace to the health of the people. This condition will continually grow worse unless a remedy is provided. It is a subject worthy of your instant and most careful consideration. Enforceable provision for sewage disposal which would protect our streams from pollution and the health and lives of the people ought to be provided.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

The Thirty-fifth General Assembly adopted and referred to you a resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution authorizing the taxation, for State revenue purposes only, such classes of property as may be deemed proper by the legislature. This is a very important and most salutary proposition and ought, by all means, in my judgment, to be agreed to by you, to the end that it may be submitted to the people at the election in 1916. If the constitution were amended as proposed, it would go far toward making a solution of some of our tax problems and removing much of the dissatisfaction that now exists on account of the practical working of our tax laws. If, for instance, our State revenue were derived entirely from the taxation of railway properties, transportation, equipment, telegraph, telephone and public utility companies in general, then local assessments of valuations and levies would have nothing to do with State revenue, pay no tax for said purpose. The incentive for low assessments to avoid the payment of State taxes would be removed. There would be an incentive to assessments at fair actual values and low rates. This would be a very great advantage to the State in its standing away from home. I think I may safely say to you that political economists who have given the subject of taxation the most thought and deepest study agree in recommending the proposition suggested.

Another constitutional amendment proposed by the last General Assembly was that favoring woman suffrage. Twice the republican party has adopted a plank in its platform declaring in its favor. The progressive party made a similar declaration. The proposed amendment ought to be agreed to by you so that this long debated question may be submitted at the next general election.

MEANDERED LAKES AND LAKE BEDS.

Among all the multitudinous duties imposed by the law upon the Executive Council none are more difficult of fulfillment than those with reference to what are called the lakes and lake beds of the State. There are constant appeals for the drainage of some of these lake beds. There is just as constant opposition to it. There is a constant demand for the preservation of the lakes. I do not think there is a man in Iowa who would drain or destroy one of them. The republican party, in one of its planks, demanded, at its last convention, that the lakes be preserved. The difficulty arises with reference to lakes which were meandered by the original Government survey, but which, as some insist, have degenerated into swamps and marshes, or practically filled with vegetable growth, and no longer have any of the characteristics of a lake. Some of our most public spirited and progressive citizens urge that these should be preserved and "improved," as authorized by the law, by dredging. This has seemed to the Council as utterly impracticable, as well as being entirely prohibited by the cost. The Council ought not to be charged with the duty and responsibility of settling the controversy; indeed, they cannot settle it. This General Assembly ought not to adjourn without enacting definite, specific legislation touching this question. I urgently recommend that there be appointed a commission from your membership, or better, perhaps, from citizens not holding any public office, to examine such lake beds, and all of them, and report definitely and fully to you the condition of each one of them, to the end that there may be definite legislative disposition of each such lake bed. Or, if this fails of approval, and it is still thought that the Council should be charged with any duty with reference to them, that the law be so amended as to authorize and direct it to survey and drain, or sell, or drain and sell, or drain and retain for the State only such meandered lake beds as no longer contain lakes but have become swamps or marshes or filled with vegetable growth and lost the distinguishing characteristics of lakes as being permanent bodies of water. The legislation should be specific as to the very lake beds to which it shall apply and should dispose of and settle the lake question.

The law also provides that where there is a sale of a lake bed under its provisions the proceeds thereof must be transmitted by the State Treasurer to the county treasurer in the county where the lake bed was situated and that it shall there be placed to the credit of the county road fund to be expended by the Board of Supervisors in the same manner as other road funds. This, it seems to me, is plainly wrong. The lake beds belong to the people of the State—to the State—and the proceeds of any such sales ought to go into the general fund of the State for the broader benefit of all the people. What belongs to all of the people should not have local expenditure only. The statute should be so amended.

We are entering upon the policy of establishing custodial farms. Some of these old lake beds contain from three to nine hundred acres of land. If the legislature orders them, or any of them drained, the land thus reclaimed should be kept by the State and some, perhaps, used in the future for such farms. It is not good business to pay probably $200 an acre for land when the State has land that could be put in cultivation for half that sum and, if properly located, utilized as such a farm. Besides, it would seem that the labor of prisoners could be used in tiling the land.

APPROPRIATION FOR GETTYSBURG DEFICIT.

The last General Assembly made an appropriation of $10,000 "for the purpose of enabling the State to assist in the celebration upon the battlefield of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg." It soon became apparent that this amount would not be sufficient to pay the expenses of the surviving participants in that great conflict who desired to attend. In this emergency Hon. Lafayette Young, a public spirited citizen of Des Moines, Editor of the Des Moines Capital, began a campaign through his paper to raise additional funds by public subscription and raised $3,338. It transpired that there were not as many eligible under the provisions of the law as was at first supposed only $1,278.94 of said amount raised was used.

As directed by the statute the commission appointed to carry out its provisions reported fully and satisfactorily and requested that you be recommended to make an appropriation of $1,278.94 to cover the deficit in the original appropriation and to the end that the amount used from each donation be returned to the donor, the amount not used having already been returned. With the request by the commission I am glad to comply.

CELEBRATION OF NEGRO FREEDOM.

There is to be held in the city of Chicago, Illinois, during this year an Exposition celebrating the Half-Century Anniversary of Negro Freedom. The State of Illinois at the last session of its legislature made an appropriation of $25,000 in behalf of this Exposition which it was then supposed, as I am advised, would be confined simply to that State. Since then it has been decided to make it national in its scope for the purpose of showing the progress the race has made in this country since its emancipation. Iowa and many other States have appointed commissions to co-operate with the Illinois commission in making this celebration general and a success. Not in all the history of the world has any other people under circumstances at all to be compared with the condition of the negro in America fifty years ago made the progress he has made in that time. Emerging from slavery almost helpless, penniless, homeless, ignorant, they now, about ten millions of them, are taxed on a billion dollars worth of property, thousands of them have good homes, illiteracy is reduced from a total to thirty-five per cent, many of them are succeeding in very many lines of business, professional and otherwise, and large number of them are excellent citizens. The negro in the United States wants to take note of the progress he has made, to show what he has done, in the only years he has ever had a chance and to take counsel and encouragement for the future. The record is a proud one and he ought to be encouraged. There are fifteen thousand negro residents of Iowa, I am told. They will ask a small appropriation for the purpose named. If you find there is a proper organization for a proper and judicious expenditure of the money I think you ought to give it. Iowa can afford to be thus helpful to a race only so recently held under the bondage of slavery and ignorance.

PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION.

The Thirty-fifth General Assembly failed to make an appropriation to enable the State to participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco which will open on the twentieth of February. Some of the public spirited men of the State, believing it would be a great mistake to fail of representation there, took up the question in behalf of what they conceived would be of great advantage to the State as over against its great disadvantage in having neither name nor place at the meeting point of the world to recount the progress of humanity and gather hope, encouragement and inspiration for the future. The good that would ultimately come to the State—having as she does all the advantages of location and natural resources that have ever throughout the world's history made for human greatness, in taking her place side by side with the other great sovereignties of our own country and of the world, they believed would justify sacrifice of time, effort and money on their part. Animated with this spirit and with faith in the people some of them, on behalf of the whole, journeyed to San Francisco and selected and dedicated a site for an Iowa building. Returning to the State they took up the matter of raising funds for the construction of the building and for the general purposes of a creditable exhibit for the State. Their visit to the leading cities of the State by a special train in this behalf is a fact familiar to all. The expense of this train and the trip to the coast and all incidental expenses were paid by themselves and their time given as well. Prominent men in the cities visited pledged their assistance and upon these pledges the committee pledged their credit by promissory note to the amount of many thousand dollars. It may be said, I think, that these men believed that the people of Iowa would approve and respond through the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, although, so far as I know, it was not at that time asked that that should be done. Since that time the Executive Committee have given of their time and their money in carrying on the work thus so hopefully and courageously undertaken. They have taken charge of the work and constructed a beautiful and commodious building upon the site selected at a cost of $30,000. It compares very favorably with the buildings erected by thirty-eight other states. The work of preparing an exhibit for the State in all of her interests, agriculture, horticulture, manufacturing, animal industry, indeed, in every way, is going on under the guidance and management of these same men. They believe that for the building and for making an exhibit creditable to the State and for the expenses (not including the personal expenses I have mentioned) incident to so great an enterprise there ought to be made by you an adequate appropriation. I agree with them. The good that will come to Iowa from her representation and the exhibit she will make in my judgment will far surpass in value the appropriation. I recommend that you grant it.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT IN STATE LIBRARY.

The State Library has been extended so as to cover practically every field of library activity, professional and otherwise. The one notable exception is in the medical field. The State Medical Society in conjunction with the State Library Board will ask you for a small amount as a book fund and also that you provide the State Library with a medical assistant who should be a man "educated in medicine and surgery and familiar with the language in which the literature of his profession finds expression." I can see no good reason why this great profession as well as the profession of the law should not be represented by a well equipped department in the library. Indeed, I should think the library incomplete so long as it is wanting in this great field of human knowledge, investigation and rapid development. I hope you will give the Medical Society and the library board sympathetic hearing and grant their request.

REORGANIZATION OF THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

The committee on retrenchment and reform has submitted a report which, if acted upon favorably, involves a reorganization of the state government. I shall not enter upon a discussion of it. It involves questions of great interest and a discussion of them would discover, I doubt not, very conflicting views. Inasmuch as it proposes practically an entire change in the governor's office with relation to the state government I think, perhaps, it would be in better taste if I should pass it with only a suggestion. It proposes to make the governor the responsible head of all of the departments of the state government, responsible for the service and efficiency of every man throughout the entire organization, or practically so. That would be little, if any, change from the situation as it now exists for I have already discovered in my experience that the governor is held responsible for everything that is done or happens without being clothed with the powers the reorganization proposes. I don't see why two or three years should be squandered in fixing up the constitution so they can get at him. That would be a work of supererogation. They go straight at him anyhow. At any rate that has been my observation.

FOUR YEAR TERM FOR GOVERNOR.

But seriously, while there is talk about reorganizing the government, I want to say I am thoroughly convinced, both from observation and my own experience, that it would be far more satisfactory to the people and far better service could be rendered them if the governor were elected for a term of four years rather than two and made ineligible to another successive term. As it is, he enters upon his first term with the incoming of a general assembly. That ought not to be so, but I will not discuss that question. Soon, if not immediately, after the adjournment of the legislature, if the experience of recent years is to be taken as a precedent, and in view of our primary system of nominating candidates, he must begin preparations for and eventually enter upon a long speaking campaign for a renomination. Securing it he must practically continue his campaign for re-election. He must do these things or ignominiously and pusillanimously sometimes surrender all that he stood for and abandon all that he hoped to accomplish in the way of public service. All this constantly distracts his mind from his public duties, prevents him from giving himself wholly and unreservedly to the study of public affairs as they relate to the welfare of the people—prevents him from devoting all his energies to the public good. It all seriously affects his efficiency as a public servant.

If, also, he should be a timid soul, thinking more of office than of public duty, and afraid of his fellow-citizens rather than challenging them to things that make for human betterment he might move softly, gently, whisperingly through a first term in the hope of no antagonism for a second. During a second term he might become courageous when there was no enemy in view and nobody could get at him and might really accomplish something. But the first term would be lost. Whatever type of man he might be a four year term and ineligibility to a second consecutive term would enable him at once and continually for four years to concentrate all of his energies upon his duties as a public servant, studying the business of the State, the needs of the State in all her diversified interests with nothing "to molest or make him afraid."

Another potent reason for a four year term lies in the fact that two years only enables one to become thoroughly acquainted with the business of the state and reach his best efficiency and especially so if he is compelled to give himself to two campaigns in the meantime. Strong, efficient service could be better rendered in my judgment by a four year term. I invite you to consider this matter and the necessary change in the constitution.

REDUCTION OF MEMBERSHIP IN THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

I have long been of the opinion that legislative bodies in this country are too large for the best, most careful and most satisfactory work. This opinion has ripened into a conviction. If our house of representatives were reduced from 108 to 50 and our senate to twenty-five I believe any observing, thoughtful man, especially if he had actual experience in legislation, would agree with this view. Legislation could and would receive much more careful and critical study. It would be much more thorough, concise, clear, mature. It would be far less voluminous. Our legislature would become in fact a deliberative body. There would be better quality of debate. There would be better behavior of members. Numbers obstruct deliberation. A large number involves confusion and prevents concentration of thought and effort. The principle is not recognized anywhere else among men than in law-making assemblies. It would not be recognized anywhere else where really great things are to be done in a really great and efficient way. I am convinced that fifty men in the house could and would produce better results than one hundred and eight and that twenty-five men in the senate would be more efficient than the fifty whether in the senate or house.

I believe, too, that upon the whole such a change would result in securing better fitted, abler and more experienced men for legislators. The work would be more inviting, give, as it seems to me, better and wider opportunity for public service. It would elevate standards. Representative and senatorial districts would be enlarged, giving a greater responsibility and importance to the office. Judge Story, an eminent and perhaps the most profound American law writer, in his great work on The Constitution says:

"Higher qualifications will usually be sought and required where the representatives are few than where they are many. And there will be a higher ambition to serve where the smallness of the number creates a desirable distinction than where it is shared with many and, of course, individual importance diminished."

Again, while still considering this subject he says, "Let the Federalist speak in its own fearless and expressive language" and quotes from it the words of James Madison, always profoundly wise, as follows: "In all legislative assemblies, the greater the number composing them may be, the fewer will the men be who will, in fact, direct their proceedings. In the first place, the more numerous any assembly may be, of whatever characters composed, the greater is known to be the ascendancy of passion over reason." In the next place, the larger the number, the greater will be the proportion of members of limited information and weak capacities. Now, it is precisely on characters of this description that the eloquence and address of the few are known to act with all their force. In the ancient republics, where the whole body of the people assembled in person, a single orator or an artful statesman was generally seen to rule with as complete a sway as if a scepter had been placed in his single hand. On the same principle, the more multitudinous a representative assembly may be rendered, the more it will partake of the infirmities incident to collective meetings of the people. The people can never err more than in supposing that in multiplying their representatives beyond a certain limit they strengthen the barrier against the government of a few. Experience will forever admonish them that, on the contrary, after securing a sufficient number for the purpose of safety, of local information, and of diffusive sympathy, they will counteract their own views by every addition to their representatives. The countenance of the government may become more democratic, but the soul that animates it will be more oligarhic. The machine will be enlarged, but the fewer, and often the more secret, will be the springs by which its motions are directed." If the measure of the number required should, as he says, only be sufficient to secure "safety, local information and diffusive sympathy," not a large number would be required in Iowa. Her interests throughout her borders are practically the same. Any intelligent, well informed man fully understands them. A very moderate number of men from different sections would bring full information as to her needs and there would be perfect accord sympathetically. As it is the wonderfully diversified interests of a vast territory, not fully understood in any particular section, and extending over forty-eight states, only has one representative to every 210,415 of population, while Iowa, every part of which is intimately known by every other part, has in her legislature one member to about 15,000 of her population. No basis of reasoning upon the proper number for a legislative body has ever justified this.

Again, responsibility diminishes as members increase. The dominant thought of the present is that responsibility in public affairs should be capable of actual, definite location and that the best results cannot be attained otherwise. This reasoning has just as much force as elsewhere when applied to a legislative body. But there can be no satisfactory fixing of responsibility where the body is unreasonably large and unwieldy. Where everybody is responsible for a given action or result, nobody is responsible.

A matter of smaller consideration, and yet a thing to be considered, is the reduction of the expense of a session by, doubtless, one hundred thousand dollars,—a half million dollars in five sessions.

If these considerations are by you deemed of enough importance to submit to the people the question of an amendment to the constitution you should pass the necessary resolution looking to that end.

COST OF A LEGISLATIVE SESSION.

I have just made reference to a consideration of the cost of a session of the legislature. I think it not improper for me to say more. Based upon experience in the past it is estimated this session will cost $218,125.00. Of this amount $163,500 will be paid as salaries and mileage to the members and the lieutenant governor. The balance of $54,625.00 will be paid for supplies and "help." I think a fair estimate for supplies and sundry expenses would be $4,625.00, leaving $50,000.00 or $500.00 per day for a hundred day session for "help,"—meaning "extra help," clerks, door-keepers etc. Some of this is absolutely essential, of course, but much of it is pure—unadulterated "graft." As president of the senate in the Thirty-third General Assembly I said to the senate: "Public money is taken from the people for a public purpose only and it is intolerable that it should be used for petty graft or turned over even in small sums to persons who have rendered no equivalent of service in return. No young man or woman should be taught to feel that the state is an institution upon which it is permissible to work a graft, and no old man should be allowed to do it. Such a course cheapens the public service, dishonors the men engaged in it, and lowers the ideal of public life. It does not beget respect for public officials or for the state as an institution for the administration of government or for law; it cannot be to our credit, Senators, that doorkeepers doze in these galleries for one hundred days at the public expense, the doors not opening a half dozen days during the session, except to permit their entrance. On occasion of need men called from the extra help about the Capitol could be stationed there. A dozen doorkeepers are used in the two houses where none at all are needed. Every man of legislative experience knows that many more committee clerks and other clerks are employed than are needed. Every senator and representative knows of clerks sitting around these chambers in luxurious ease from one end of the session to the other, doing practically nothing at all, and every senator and representative knows that such a thing should fall under his condemnation."

I was criticised then for saying these things. It was said to be "small and picayune." Both the principle of the thing and the money are involved and what I said then I say again with emphasis. It is reprehensible and indefensible. The Thirty-sixth General Assembly ought to organize along different lines.

THE BEE-KEEPERS.

The bee-keepers of the state, I am advised by the state inspector, suggest that their bees ought to be taxed. I think perhaps that never before in all the world's history since the days when they went up to Jerusalem to be taxed, and that was involuntary, has it been recorded that men suggested to the government. "Here am I, tax me." "Ten stand of bees" are now exempt from taxation. Many apiarists own many more than this but only one or two have been found who say the assessors would list them. They say that by listing bees for taxation a million dollars of assessed valuation will be added. I suggest in view of all this that you repeal the bee exemption. The bee-keeping industry in its value to the state is already surprising, although it is not developed to any great extent. In his report the inspector says "it is capable of sustaining many thousands of people in comfort and adding millions of dollars to the resources of the commonwealth." The bee-keepers will ask of you a little additional appropriation and in view of the spirit in which they come to you and the possibilities of the industry, which have been amply demonstrated, I recommend that you grant it.

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEES.

A legislative committee has taken the place in the mind of many as being something more powerful than the body which creates it. This, of course, is absurd unless the body has surrendered its authority by rules. Primarily a committee cannot control its creator. The legislative body never loses control over a bill or one of its committees. It may by vote sustain or defeat a committee, it is true, but the supreme authority is still there. We hear of such things as a bill being "lost in a committee" or "smothered in a committee." This need not be unless it is what is wanted by a majority of the house or senate. This all creates a prejudice and distrust of the law-making body. The committee takes on something of secrecy and every member of it is lost as to publicity and responsibility because nobody knows who was there or what was done or how it was done or who did it. This should not be so. A committee should be required to keep a full and exact record of every meeting. It should show who was there. If there was a hearing it should show who was heard and in what behalf. It should show the vote of every member upon every question voted upon and this whole record should accompany every bill coming from a committee and should also be made up into a permanent record of the committee's work for the session. The whispering secretive days—the days of dodging and gliding through the devious ways of dark back alleys are over. I venture to suggest the adoption of such a rule by you and that you make such procedure in committee statutory.

HABIT-FORMING DRUGS.

Nothing can be more ruinous than the use of habit-forming drugs. I need do nothing more than suggest their deleterious effect upon health, morals, intellect, character. Nothing can possibly be more reprehensible than the sale of them. No denunciation of the sale of them can be too severe. Strengthen the law, if you can, so as to effectually get at the evil. Make the possession presumptive evidence of intent to sell. Provide, as the attorney-general has suggested, a remedy by injunction. Make the place where the drugs are sold or kept for sale in violation of law a nuisance and abate it as in the case of liquor nuisances.

THE SHORT BALLOT.

I discussed the short ballot question in my inaugural address two years ago and the Thirty-fifth General Assembly made some progress in that direction. The question is one of even greater interest than it was then. It will continue to thrust itself to the front until there is some change that will be an adoption of the short ballot principle which is: "When you want representation, elect. When you want administration, appoint." That is all there is to it and the application of the principle solves the problem. Under our present methods everybody knows there is no such thing, and cannot be, as an intelligent selection of at least half of our public officials. But I will not re-discuss the question. It ought to have your most earnest and careful attention. I might, however, suggest that certainly the office of railroad commissioner ought to be made appointive.

PUBLIC UTILITIES BILL.

Neither will I re-discuss the question of public utilities. I also discussed that question two years ago and I now re-iterate all I then said and also refer you to what I then said on the question of

COUNTY MANAGEMENT.

I thoroughly believe that you ought to so change the law as to permit the appointment or employment of a manager of the business affairs of the county—one who will give his whole time to the duties of his office. Many thousands of dollars could be saved. What is said here applies as well to towns and cities. By your permission I refer you to what I heretofore said on this subject.

CONCLUSION.

I have presented these different subjects for your consideration only in a suggestive way and left the consideration of them exhaustively to you, if, perchance, you may consider them of sufficient moment to engage your serious attention, as I hope you may. I am sure your final judgment and action will be right and with this confidence I submit them.

Invocation, Reverend Charles S. Medbury, Des Moines.

Our loving Father Who art in Heaven, we are grateful for the privileges of a service so sacred as this. And we pray, Our heavenly Father, that coming into this service, the merely formal, the merely perfunctory, may be lost sight of, and the dignity of it reach the heart of every man, woman and child of our commonwealth. May we here by petition, Almighty God, have the blessing and the favor of Heaven upon the state we love. We thank Thee for a sacred history in which, Lord, are the lives of all men and women,—the named and the unnamed of earth are one record in the lowly sphere in the Lamb's Book of Life. And Our Father, we thank Thee for the recent years; we thank Thee for the years that have culminated; we thank Thee for the worthy administration of which the state may well be proud. We thank Thee today that without regard to party lines, without regard to affiliations, there is a thought of gladness in the hearts and minds of all that Iowa has taken no backward steps; that its forces are enabled by ideals to increase the worthy state of all men, by making rich the poor, by making strong the weak, by making mighty the lowly; that Thy holy humanitarianism will come to have increased emphasis.

We thank Thee for our Christian governor, Our Father. We thank Thee for the lives that have brought honor to his name. We thank Thee for the courage of his convictions. We thank Thee for the openness of his life. We thank Thee that there has become attached to him no suggestion of unworthy motives, seeking only self or personal aggrandizement.

And, O Lord, as this man, this servant of the people, comes to this position, may we recognize that it is Thee Who has called him. May the boons of Heaven's favor rest upon him, and the opportunity of industry mark every day on the pages of the history of our lovely land.

Father we pray not only for Governor Clarke, but for all his associates; for the state officers; the senators and representatives of this general assembly; and for the goodness and greatness of all our men and all our women and on our cities and towns. And when the scroll is unrolled, and we look back over the history we have made, may we find that every man has used his energy and ability, and that every woman has lent her grace and charm to make a great commonwealth. And so we pray, Our heavenly Father, as lovers of good, that the good may go on, in the name of Christ Our Lord. Amen.

Inaugural address by Governor George W. Clarke.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS OF GOV. GEORGE W. CLARKE

Delivered to the Thirty-sixth Session of the General Assembly, January, 1915.

Members of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly and Fellow Citizens:

While I am not insensible to the high honor conferred upon me by a re-election to the office of Governor of Iowa, yet I do not come to this day and this gathering in this chamber of the representative men and women of the commonwealth with any exaltation of spirit, but rather with a deep sense of obligation which the honor imposes upon me. I regard the ceremony of this hour to be not for the purpose of conferring distinction upon any one but an assembling of the people here through their chosen representatives to dedicate, consecrate to their service two years of the life of a fellow-citizen. A great state speaks here today in hope. I wish I could realize in service rendered the hope of an intelligent people devoted to human welfare. But ideals so far outrun realization that I know that it is impossible. While I am thus impressed with the occasion, the natural instincts of my mind and heart respond in sincere gratefulness to the people of Iowa, not simply because they have conferred upon me again the office,—there is something better in the abstract than that—but because I seem still to have in some measure their confidence.

Frequently, upon occasions of this kind, opportunity is taken to discuss matters relating to national politics. Doubtless this is because the office is sometimes regarded as having quite a large relation to that subject. I have never had exactly that conception of it. It rather appeals to me as having a very vital relation to the business of the state, to the development and up-building of it in all its great interests and to the common good of the people, not only as citizens of Iowa, but with reference to the contribution the state may make to the sum total of the Great Republic.

What may have appropriateness at this time, it is somewhat difficult to determine. The interest of the world is absorbed in the gigantic war going on in Europe. Our people are contributing to the relief of suffering occasioned by it. The people may take note of it, it seems to me, on an occasion like this, and if I say something about it, and the attitude of mind that it seems to me should prevail among our people with reference to it, I trust it may not be deemed amiss.

Two years ago when we assembled here upon a similar occasion the world was at peace. The great nations of the earth were engaged in the upbuilding of the world. Their commerce covered the seas and the ports of the world welcomed every flag. All around the earth men said mankind had reached the highest point in civilization of which history had made any record. Art, science, literature, had an appreciative world. Their devotees were in all lands. Culture and refinement—the humanities—were appealing to men as never before. Men were talking of universal peace. They were traveling to far away lands beyond oceans for peace conferences. A little later they were preparing for a great celebration among the nations of one hundred years of peace among English speaking peoples. The brotherhood of man seemed about to become a realistic conception and no longer a Utopian dream.

Suddenly, a few months ago, there were gathering armies in the great European nations where civilization after centuries had developed its finest flower and fruitage. Millions of men were marching down to the battle. The roar of the guns has not ceased since. Thousands upon thousands have fallen. The moans of the wounded fill the nights with horror. There is weeping in the homes of a continent and cries of fatherless children. Destruction of the work and toil of centuries, with relentless hand, goes on. The hidden mine explodes and millions of dollars and hundreds of men, helpless, disappear beneath the waves. Suffering indescribable follows in the wake of grim-visaged war. Insanity displaces sanity. Pestilence threatens and starvation follows in its train. The effects on the stricken countries will follow far, far down the years. Babies of today will bear its burdens on their backs through life. The world, shocked, horrified, seems losing its faith in humanity. Man, after all, at the center of him, it is said, is the same cruel, brutish being as when he lived in the forest and wielded a bludgeon. Civilization is a farce and liable to fall to pieces any day. The brotherhood of man is a weak, sickly sentimentalism. Men relapse into barbarism in a week. The foundations for nobility of life and great living crumble during a night. In vain has been the long struggle. In vain the wonderful mechanical inventions of the last century. In vain the discoveries of science. In vain everything except as engines of destruction. In vain Christianity. It is but a thin veneer—a pretense. In vain the Sermon on the Mount. In vain the perfect life and teachings of Jesus of Nazareth. So cry millions of discouraged, despondent, surrendering men and women. Should we have such an attitude of mind? I do not believe in this cry.

I deprecate this cry of failure. The day of surrender should never come. The face of every man and woman should ever be turned toward the future, aglow with hope and their minds and hearts animated with confidence in the ultimate triumph of the great ideals that have ever inspired the men and women whom all the world, good and bad alike, have pronounced blessed and the real Kings and Queens of humanity. I believe with Browning that "God is in his Heaven and all is right with the world." I believe that all things work together for good. Men and women ought to be standing out on the firing line of this faith. I don't believe in the trembling, shrinking, fearing, surrendering life. I believe in the great moral forces of this world. I believe that they are stronger than the unflinchable armies of the Kaiser and of all the artillery and siege guns of the British Empire and of the Czar of all Russia and of all navies that ever floated upon all the seas and of any and all fortifications ever built by men. I do not think this world is a failure. I think that the great, fine, beautiful, inspiring things, beyond description, beyond language, which have been implanted in my soul and yours will ultimately triumph, far away yonder down the centuries it may be. I believe with Tennyson when he said:

"I doubt not through the ages one increasing purpose runs
And the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns."

I believe with the old Hebrew prophet of twenty-six centuries ago that the time will come when "men will beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks and nations will not lift up sword against nation, neither will they learn war any more." If this is not so "then is our preaching in vain." If we do not camp a little higher up every day, every month, every year, we are not fulfilling our destiny, as individuals, or as a people. As a people, we should never be "Tenting tonight on the old camp-ground," but as a progressive, inspired people moving on in the line of human betterment. I think we may say:

"And fierce though the friends may fight
And long though the angels hide,
I know that Truth and Right
Have the universe on their side."

Justice, now so trampled upon and now so apparently unattainable, will ultimately prevail. Down in the rotunda of this great building we have inscribed in letters of gold the words, "Justice is the idea of God, the ideal of man." Some one has said Justice was ordained from the foundations of the world. Carlyle, one of the most profound thinkers of the last century, wrote:

"Foolish men imagine that because judgment for an evil thing is delayed there is no justice, but an accidental one here below. Judgment for an evil thing is many times delayed, some a day or two, some a century or two, but it is as sure as life, as sure as death. In the center of the world whirlwind, verily now as in the oldest days, dwells and speaks a God. The great soul of the world is just. There is justice here below and even at bottom there is nothing else but justice. Forget that, thou hast forgotten all. Success will never more attend thee. How can it? I tell thee again, there is nothing else but justice. One strong thing I find here below; the just thing. My friend, if you had all the artillery of the world trundling at your back in support of an unjust thing, and infinite bonfires waiting ahead of thee to blaze centuries long for thy victory on behalf of it—I would advise thee to call a halt. What will thy success amount to? If the thing is unjust, thou hast not succeeded. No, not though bonfires blazed from north to south and bells rang and editors wrote leading articles and the just thing lay trampled out of sight, to all mortal eyes an abolished and annihilated thing." It will rise again. It will prevail. You cannot fight justice out of this world. It is the idea of God. You cannot beat it down by laws or artillery.

So the most appalling, the most gigantic war of all history, has its roots in the wrong thing, the unjust thing. Refer it, if you will, to this incident or that in the past history of nations, yet under it all and struggling for recognition, for supremacy, is the right thing, the just thing. Out of it all I believe may come ultimate good for humanity. The progress of the world has ever been through suffering, tears, death. Truth may in some future years have an easier pathway, but up to the present it "has always ridden on a gun carriage." When the thunder of the guns has ceased, the smoke rolled away and the monuments have been erected to the memory of the fallen, humanity has often moved up a milestone. Human liberty has fought every inch of its way. Never a concession without a fight. The greater the value to the people, the more determined and persistent the contest. The truth of this statement has been realized on the floor of this House scores of times. It is an appalling price to pay, but beyond this world war lies, in all probability, the death of militarism, lies the practical disarmament of the great powers of the earth, comes the removal from the people of the crushing burdens of great armies and navies, comes the disappearance of hereditary rulers and the entrance of more perfect democracies. The world will, it seems to me, demand these things upon the settlement of this awful upheaval of the nations. It will fail of its duty if it does not. All the world will be interested in the settlement. If all these things emerge, has not good come? Will not humanity take a long step forward? Will not the brotherhood of man advance much more nearly toward actual realization? Is there not now almost in sight, as a necessary result, a federation of the world? Are there men in Iowa, or will there be in the Iowa that is to be, men who will sit in a congress of all the earth? May we not be closer than we may possibly realize to a realization of Tennyson's vision?

"For I dipt into the future, far as human eye could see,
Saw the vision of the world and all the wonder that would be.

* * * * *

"Till the war-drums throbb'd no longer and the battle flags were furled
In the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world."

Why should any man despair? Why should any man cry out, "Civilization is a failure!" It is but crushed Justice and eternal Right coming into their own.

I think we may approve the sentiment;

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord,
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
He has loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible, swift sword;
His truth is marching on.

He has sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat;
He is sifting out the hearts of men before his judgment seat;
Oh, be swift, my soul, to answer Him, be jubilant, my feet,
Our God is marching on."

Human progress has not stopped. There will be a restoration upon more secure foundations. Has not mankind moved steadily forward through all the ages? Can anybody think it is going to stop now?

Men of Iowa, living in the best day God ever vouchsafed to humanity, under the best and freest government that human wisdom ever devised, at the very top of human conditions, in a land where nature ever smiles and the soil is rich to prodigality, face to the front, fill your minds and hearts with a great faith in the eternal rightness of things, with an inspiring optimism and pull for the common good, for the betterment of human conditions until your State shall come to be the best place in all the earth in which to live. A man ought to set for himself a goal toward which, leaving the things which are behind, he can press forward. He ought to be inspired with a vision inviting to fine accomplishment. The man without a vision is a burden. He is a camp follower. You never can get him out on "the red, roaring firing line."

Iowa is to be greatly congratulated on the splendid public spirit that has sprung up all over the State in the last two years. It doesn't make any difference into what part of the State you go, it is there. There is public discussion of ways and means of growth. More production, better and cleaner farms, better herds, better roads, better streets, better parks, better schools and school-houses, better homes, better and cleaner towns and cities, better sanitary conditions. When before did such a spirit ever get into the very atmosphere of Iowa? To such an extent has this become an all-pervading spirit that the man who does not breathe it has become known throughout the State and gained a kind of distinction. This does not mean a spirit rampant for change for the sake of change. It does not mean a spirit that will out-run the safe, sane, reliable judgment of intelligent, careful men, but it means a spirit that understands the needs and knows how to build a great civilization. It does not mean that anybody thinks that this is but the work of a day, but it means that there is a clear vision of what ought to be and can be done under the conditions of Iowa life and a determination to work out and realize gradually that ideal so far as possible. Did you ever know a time when public office was more regarded as an opportunity for public service than now? Have you not observed that there is far more talk about the common good than there was only a very few years ago? Have you noted how more and more men are giving of their time and money to the public welfare? And it has not all issued in talk. There has been great advancement. It is seen on the farms of the State—better homes and farm buildings—far better and more comfortable life there. Better schools. More school-houses built last year than for very many years before. More children in the schools. A higher average paid for teachers than ever before. Forty-nine fine high school buildings have recently been erected ranging in cost from $15,000 to $190,000. Aside from these, there have very recently been built twenty-two consolidated school buildings ranging in cost from $9,000 to $60,000. There are in the State eighty consolidated schools, and the increase in the last two years was sixty-four. There was more paving done in the towns of Iowa, I am told, in the last year than in ten years before. Time would fail me if I were to attempt to speak fully of the wonderful progress made in the last two years, largely animated by this all-pervasive spirit that I have spoken of that is moving upon and inspiring the lives of the people for better things. May the great State move on.

There are some obstacles, of course. Indeed, it must be said, there are many, and the regrettable thing is that it is so often based on human selfishness. I mean that a man will sometimes place what he deems his own even slight pecuniary interest above what it is perfectly clear would be for the enhancement of the interest of all. There are men who would charge a battery for Iowa against a deadly fire with splendid bravery who would not have the firm courage and patriotism to consent, without the most determined fight, to the change of a law that would divert fifty or a hundred dollars from their pockets annually, although clearly for the common good and worth a hundred thousand dollars annually to the people. There is but one question, it is impossible there could be any other, and that is, is this for the public welfare? If it is, every personal consideration should instantly disappear. I can have no interest, you can have no interest, that is detrimental to the interest of all. Will men let loose of their selfish interests? It is this very question over which battles have been fought and the intellectual contests in the legislative bodies of the world have ever been, when reduced to their last analysis, in innumerable cases, waged about the very same question. As legislators, the question is, is the principle involved sound, and then, is it right, and will it contribute to the common good. Selfish interests have delayed the righteous thing, the just thing, as Carlyle said, some day or two, some year or two, in Iowa history many times. When letters come pouring in upon you from every direction it is very wise to inquire into the source of them. The rule is that you will find them prompted and inspired from a source that would promote an individual rather than the common good. Men familiar with legislative history in Iowa have known of General Assemblies being stampeded in this way from enacting the most wholesome legislation, only to find it become law later, with the final approval of all the people, and to find also that the letters received by them were sent by men who would have benefited most by the law relieving them of the incubus of the selfish interest but had been deceived into thinking that it was detrimental to their good.

You start, Senators and Representatives, into this session under the fire of criticism. Every legislature so starts. Before you have introduced a bill, even before you have come to the Capital City, the discrediting talk about the legislative session and what may or may not be done begins. It is one of the most unfortunate things of our American life that, with an air of superciliousness and superior wisdom, a large part of our citizenship assume to speak of State legislatures, and the Congress of the United States as well, with at least poorly disguised ridicule. Men who have never given any time at all to the consideration of public questions and who have seldom, or never, seen any bad effects of the completed work of a legislature will begin, and have already begun, to discount your work. It has actually become a habit. It brings into contempt with young people especially the law-making department of the State—by far the most important, bearing a greater weight of responsibility, than any other department of government. Neither the Executive nor the Judicial department can be compared with it in its importance to the life, happiness and destiny of the commonwealth. And yet I but speak the truth when I say that to be known as a member of the legislature is to be regarded by many with a certain sort of condescension. To such an extent has this thing grown up among the people that I have known most excellent men shrink from the unpleasant publicity it would give them to become a candidate for a member of the legislature—a place capable of commanding the very best equipment and more versatility of talent than any other in the State. It is all a part of our want of respect for law. Indeed, it breeds the want of such respect. It brings about the failure to enforce the law. If the people and the newspapers assiduously but, perhaps, sometimes, thoughtlessly, by slighting reference and sometimes open condemnation, bring about the impression that the legislature is more an instrument of evil than anything else, there will not be much reverence for the lawmaker's law. There are men who do this and then talk about good citizenship, forgetting that this is the very worst sort of citizenship. I am not talking about fair, dignified, honorable criticism, or corrective suggestions, but I refer, as you know, to the I-am-the-superior-curlled-lip-contempt sort of suggestion and criticism. This ought not to move you, but, I am frank to say, you start with this handicap—the handicap that makes a man hesitate and makes some men afraid. Be not afraid.

Another thing will be your experience, and it grows out of the habit of the public mind of which I have just spoken. When your work is done, the better it is done, if you do anything worthy of yourselves and the State, if you make a record for really wise, constructive legislation, especially if you change an old, worn out way of doing a thing—a way adapted to by-gone days and conditions, to wise, up-to-date business methods, if you do something for the public welfare that prys some men loose from a few-dollar-per-year position or from some business graft, you may be assured that a storm of condemnation will fall upon you before you have been home thirty days. Of course, if you do nothing you will escape all this. The man who never does anything never arouses any antagonisms. The man who is never close enough to the battle line to hear the music of the bullets and shells never gets hit. And the men whom your legislation does the most for are often the men who will condemn you most severely. After you have given weeks, sometimes months of time, to the consideration of a measure and reached a wise and sound conclusion, your constituents who have not given the subject two hours of really careful study and thought will pour out their vials of wrath on your heads. That is what is coming to you. It is not decent treatment. On the other hand, it is a reflection on your honesty; it is a charge of your abandonment of the public welfare; it is a declaration of a want of confidence. I want to suggest to the great Iowa constituency of this General Assembly that it can do no more unreasonable, unjust and unfair thing than to condemn its representatives before it has given the same careful study and consideration to the subject under as favorable circumstances for acquiring facts and knowledge of conditions and results to follow as they had. The decent, right, honest, patriotic thing to do is to assume, what you know to be a fact before these men left their communities, that they were honest, true men and that they would not have enacted the law if they had not thought it right and in the interest of the common good. When you have made this study under this assumption and given the law time to be tested, then condemn, if you are not satisfied, but not before. You have no right to do so before. There has never been a great, constructive piece of legislation where the loss of political heads did not follow and in every case time has vindicated the value and wisdom of the law. And it is a fact that the very men who led the victims to the political slaughter have often been the men to whom the law has been of most value and the men who afterwards would have fought its repeal with all the energy they could command. And no such law, so far as I have discovered, has ever yet been repealed. No law touching a great subject ever comes from the legislature perfect. It would be foolish to suppose that could be so. Its imperfections, on testing it, however, can be discovered and remedied by amendments.

The truth of what I have said here could be easily proved by many examples. I need only instance the drainage law enacted by the Thirtieth General Assembly. It fell under the most violent condemnation and its repeal was demanded. It, however, added multiplied thousands of acres to Iowa farms and hundreds upon hundreds of thousands of dollars to value of farm products. But I need not go further back than to the last legislature. When before in the history of the States did such a storm of condemnation fall upon men? There was the road law. Its repeal was demanded with the utmost insistency. In just this brief period a wonderful change has taken place in public sentiment in its favor. Who made the most noise and incited the insurrection? For the most part, the men who had for years profited enormously in the sale of material for bridge and culvert construction. But now it has had the endorsement of the meeting of the Boards of Supervisors of the State. It has the distinction of being referred to as the model road law by government experts in road building. Under it, and it has hardly yet had time to get under way, more good, permanent road work has been done in Iowa than in very many years put together before. Under it the people are getting value received for their money while before millions upon millions were wasted. Time will completely vindicate its wisdom and the men who enacted it and took the pitiless, cruel storm, the men who laid down their political lives for the good of the people.

There is the school superintendent law. Because of the nature of it, it has, perhaps, not yet reached its full vindication. The legislature thought that office, and through it the schools of Iowa, ought not to be made the football of politics. In the great public school interests, they thought, it ought not to be that anybody, without reference to qualifications, could be elected county superintendent of schools, as had been done in some counties.

What else has the Thirty-fifth General Assembly, the violently condemned, to its credit? Just to instance a few measures by the briefest statement:

- Against unfair discrimination in trade;
- Fraudulent advertising;
- Books of accounts photographed for depositions, used in evidence;
- Carrying concealed weapons;
- Board of Arbitration to settle disputes, prevent strikes;
- Instructions to jury submitted to counsel before read to jury;
- Weights and measures law for protection of people;
- Public recreation and play grounds for schools;
- Right to acquire up to five acres for school grounds;
- State aid to consolidated schools;
- Providing for Normal Courses in high schools;
- State colony for epileptics;
- Establishment of hog cholera serum plant;
- Reorganization of State Board of Health—now the most effective in the State's history;
- Strengthening law as to bureau of labor statistics as to inspections, accidents, etc.;
- Custodial department at Knoxville and payment of inmates for work;
- Employers' Liability and Workmen's Compensation Act;
- Department of Insurance;
- Employment of prisoners on public highways;
- Election of United States Senators by the people;
- Shortening ballot by making clerk and reporter of Supreme Court and State Superintendent appointive;
- Reorganization of State Superintendent's department;
- Capitol extension bill.

The list might be much extended. The Thirty-fifth was, perhaps, the most violently condemned legislature in the history of the State, yet I venture to say there is not more than one other that can for a moment stand in comparison with it. The future will thoroughly and completely vindicate it in spite of some mistakes it made. You men of the Thirty-sixth are the successors to those of the Thirty-fifth. You are good, honest, true, faithful, patriotic men, proud of Iowa, loving her, devoted to the common good to human betterment, and your constituents know it. They ought not to assume the attitude I have described and I speak of it thus publicly because it is a public wrong and good citizenship, on reflection, will see that it is.

I have already spoken of the zeal that exists in the State for its rebuilding. If you will bear with me I shall like to be specific with reference to several matters.

CO-OPERATION OF INDUSTRIES.

There is much consideration given in these days to the building up and development of particular interests in the State. It is well that it is so, but it has sometimes seemed to me that there is much loss of effort. Much good is done and advancement is made all of the time but more could be accomplished if there were a greater combination of efforts. To illustrate: There are held annual meetings of the Corn Belt Meat Producers' Association, the Corn Growers, County and District Fair Managers, the Poultry Men, the Dairy Men, the Bee-Keepers, the Swine, Cattle and Horse Breeders and perhaps other organizations all having to do primarily with the farm, or with life on the farm and, fundamentally, with the development of the wealth and greatness of the State. These meetings are all held separately. In this way every man is taught to consider only his own individual interest and business. Each one of these only represents, however, one element entering into the increase of the State's wealth and the betterment of conditions. The exchange of ideas, the discussion of subjects pertaining exclusively to the particular industry is admittedly very helpful, but such methods do not make for the bigness of the man in the best sense. His vision becomes too circumscribed. He fails to realize that the greatness of his business and the completest success of it must, after all, depend on the measure of success or volume and profit of every other one of these lines of effort. The greatest sum of prosperity and human well-being can only be attained when all are prosperous and general contentment prevails. Every man is dependent upon every other man. Every business is dependent upon every other business. These are but expressions of a general principle, but we cannot get away from it. We never can make a great State here, superior in its achievements and attracting marked attention on account of them, nor can we have great, big Iowa men until they come to see that the other fellow's business is their business, too. Each one of these lines of endeavor and others that might be named are capable of a tremendous contribution to the State's wealth, but to get it the men of Iowa ought to be behind every one of them. In other words, there ought to be combination of effort. There ought to be co-ordination of all of these interests. There ought to be team work. Here are the bee-keepers in a meeting alone. Nobody but themselves knowing much about it or taking any interest in it. Yet they can turn hundreds of thousands of dollars into the State's wealth. Yonder are the dairymen, likewise alone, and the swine breeders, cattle and horse breeders, the poultry men, the meat producers, the horticulturists—a few men comparatively at each place, as if all Iowa were not very vitally interested in all these things. There may be difference in degree of importance to the common welfare among these industries, but all are important—very important. As things have been going, in their one-sidedness instead of their wholeness of interest, some are led to think and speak of some of these interests as of slight consequence. Every man wants every other man to be greatly interested in his particular interest, but he forgets to reciprocate. The men engaged in the development of finer and better animals forget that there is such a thing, for instance, as fruit breeding, such a thing as making new plants and trees. The exhibits of the horticultural society show as fine apples as are produced anywhere, but they practically come from the southern sections of the State. What Iowa needs and must have in the coming years are apples, peaches, pears, plums and other fruits that will grow and thrive and bear in the different soils in all sections of the State—on the prairies of central and northern Iowa. I am told that it is practically impossible to grow fruits for Iowa which were bred “in the moist air and timbered regions bordering the eastern seaboard or the great lakes.” It is said “The Mississippi valley has a fiercer climate of heat and cold and great and sudden changes” and that there must be bred trees and plants adapted to each particular region—to Iowa. Mr. C. G. Patten of Charles City, has in a quiet way been devoting himself to this work. A leading horticulturist of Iowa for more than forty years says of him: “He is a genius in his way and has done more than any other man east of the Rocky Mountains. The work of Mr. Burbank of California does not count, as his productions are not suited to this climate and are mostly entire failures here. Mr. Patten has the most extensive laboratory for producing new and adapted varieties of fruits that exists between the Rocky Mountains and the Atlantic Ocean. He has spent his life and strength at this work for nearly forty years and is now well past eighty.” It gives me the greatest pleasure to in this public way call attention to Mr. Patten’s work. Modest, unassuming, quietly, intelligently, without reward or hope thereof, he is giving himself to the future. It is for Iowa that he wants to breed fruits adapted to her climate and her soil—adapted as if they were indigenous here. He has already done a great work. He says, “I am confident that the horticultural society of Iowa will have the honor of promoting the organization of a distinctly new, high quality pear and the most hardy type of cultivated pear tree ever known.” This work ought to have encouragement and support. Other breeders should take notice and should lend their support, interest and encouragement. The other earnest, intelligent man’s work is of vast moment also. This work, continued and supported as it ought to be, will mean millions upon millions of dollars to Iowa in the coming years. And it is toward the future, the future, that every right man should have his face set. The problems of the world will be solved when men look upon life as a service to humanity. It all lies away yonder. What is your contribution to be? To be specific, what is it to be to the Iowa rising yonder in the distance in splendid vision?

I have spoken of horticulture by way of illustrating the thought that I want to present here. I might have taken any other great industry. It is well, very well, these meetings of these different interests in the fall and winter of the year. But why would it not be a great thing if they would all make a week of it and after the separate meetings and special discussions, give, say two days of the week, to a general, altogether meeting to form a better and closer acquaintance with each other and with what each is trying to do and the greatness and possibilities of the work and business of the separate organizations and thus co-ordinate these interests, organize them as a whole, do team work, create a general helpful, sympathetic mutuality that will arouse an enthusiasm for all these things that are to bring satisfaction, comfort and wealth to all the people now and in greater measure in the future, thus, indeed, every man becoming a promoter of a "Greater Iowa."

I do not know that any legislation could be suggested to bring about a result which, it seems to me, is so desirable, but I submit these thoughts for consideration and call attention to Chapter 140 of the Acts of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly providing for "County Corporations for Improvement of Agriculture, Animal Husbandry, and Horticulture," with the inquiry, Why not a State wide incorporation for the promotion of the interests I have mentioned, thus bringing about organization, co-operation and concentration of effort? Explode a little powder, laid about, here and there, and its force is dissipated, lost and disappears in a puff of smoke. Get it together, confine it, get it behind something; then ignite it and the ball instantly flies away yonder, one mile, two, five miles with tremendous effectiveness. So may it not be to get together and amalgamate these great Iowa activities?

AGRICULTURAL CONDITIONS.

Believing that it would result in great benefit to our agricultural interests and promotion of the general good I asked the last legislature to authorize me by resolution to appoint and commission as representatives of the State not more than three persons to visit foreign lands, especially Great Britain and Ireland, to study at first hand agricultural conditions and methods with reference to co-operation, land tenantry and the preservation of soil fertility and make a report of results, facts and conclusions. The request was granted and two of the most eminent and best qualified men of the State for the task, Hon. James Wilson and Hon. Henry Wallace, were appointed. They were remarkably well fitted for the mission because of many years' study of agricultural conditions and needs and a genuine interest in and devotion to agricultural betterment. They visited the countries named, made a most careful study and most instructive report which will be placed on your desks for your careful consideration.

Subsequently, and some time after the adjournment of the legislature, I appointed another commission of especially qualified men, namely, Hon. John Cownie, Hon. Eugene Secor and Hon. F. D. Steen, to investigate and report upon the needs of agriculture in Iowa. They, also, made a most helpful and suggestive report. I urge upon you a most conscientious study of what these men have to say in these reports. They both raise a question of very greatest importance which, sooner or later will force itself on the people—the preservation of our soil fertility. They show that we are exhausting, wasting, destroying it all the time on almost half the farms of the State. This is a matter of great public concern. There cannot be a great people without great soil production. The greatness, indeed the very life of the State, in fact of the Republic, is founded on the retention and increased fertility of the land. The land robber is a menace to the public good. The present should call a halt. Out of the future comes the cry of determined protest. The countries of the old world were forced to meet and solve the problem and they did it through the experience of centuries. It will be far less difficult of solution here if we begin at once and profit by their experience. The report on conditions in the countries visited says there is "an entire absence of worn-out land" and no complaint "of a want of soil fertility" or "land hunger" on the part of tenants. In substance, it is said, this is all due to the law relating to landlord and tenant. Nearly all the land is cultivated by tenants but there are no short term leases, the term being from fourteen to nineteen years in Scotland and the tenant paid for unexhausted fertility added to the land by him. Here forty per cent of the farms are reported occupied by tenants and most of the leases for only one year. No incentive to improvement upon the land or to increase soil fertility. Impoverish and leave for continued impoverishment by the next tenant. It is a hopeless condition for landlord, tenant and land. The public interest is in the land and legislation must give it consideration first and landlord and tenant next. It is the very first duty of Iowa to preserve her soil. Her sovereignty can find no higher expression. To save her own life she must command the preservation of the means by which she lives. She should forbid that her citizens impoverish the children of the future. There is no question in which society would have greater concern. It rises to a question above merely private rights and interest to one of the public welfare. I have always understood that that which affects the public welfare may be a subject of legislative regulation. There cannot be a matter of greater public interest and therefore can be controlled for the common good. The Supreme Court of the United States very recently held that a large part of the country's wealth is subject to loss through fire and therefore that fire insurance rates may be fixed and regulated by law in the interest of the common good. By analogy why may we not reason—the soil is a large part of the wealth of the State and the terms of its leasing may be regulated by law in the interest of human welfare. Under conditions as they are shown to be the landlord is not a conservationist and the tenant cannot be. Men speculate in lands, rentals increase, the short term tenant exploits the soil, and not to be blamed, he takes his flight to cheaper lands in other States or under another flag. He should have an interest in the soil he tills. There should be something of a reasonable permanency in his connection with it to inspire his hope. He should be a builder and not a destroyer and so should the landlord. This is a vital question now; it will be doubly so in the future. To solve it now, or to even begin the serious consideration of it, will be the saving of millions of dollars to the future of our State. In one of these reports it is said: "We need laws, both federal and State, that will compel consideration of the land in all leases, making it the chief factor of importance, to be followed later by the claims of the tenant and landlord." This is a problem most difficult of solution, but that should not deter grappling with it. It is easy to point out the conditions which should exist but how to bring them about is quite another thing. We may, at least, begin to think seriously about the problem. I think it must be that the remedy can gradually be worked out. I think I can see that the well-being of the farmer—the owner and tenant—and the land and, ultimately of course, society as a whole, must depend upon such laws as the committee suggests and it must depend also upon a correction of our system of distribution which returns to the producer perhaps not more than half or two-thirds of what the consumer pays and also upon a solution of the great problem of agricultural credit. I submit these reports and suggestions for the special and careful consideration of your committees on agriculture.

THE EXTENSION OF THE CAPITOL GROUNDS.

The 35th General Assembly, after the most careful consideration and study of the immediate, pressing needs of the State and of her needs and greatness in the coming years, authorized and directed the purchase of certain, specific grounds surrounding the Capitol building and directed the levy of a tax from year to year to pay for the same. In this bill was incorporated a plan for the future development of the grounds. This plan, which became a part of the law, was devised by one of the most competent and skilled landscape architects in the world and without expense to the State. The purpose in this was to prevent the haphazard location of buildings, memorials, monuments, walks, drives, etc., in the future thus marring and spoiling the opportunity given by nature to Iowa to have, probably, the most inviting and beautiful Capitol grounds in all the world. The opportunity, already too long neglected, to secure the grounds at a price the future would doubtless forbid and a desire to render a great public service, not only to the present but to the men and women of all the oncoming years in this great commonwealth, prompted your immediate predecessors by an overwhelming majority to pass what has since come to be known as the Capitol Extension Bill. Not only was this bill so passed but afterward when attacked by all the legal learning that could be brought to bear upon it, it was held by an undivided court to be invulnerable to any legal criticism that could be lodged against it. Subsequently the dominant political party of the State, in a contest in which it was a leading issue, refused with very strong emphasis to express its dissatisfaction with what had been done. Again the question, clear cut, undisguised, fully understood in its length and breadth and height and depth was submitted to all of the people of the State for their approval or disapproval. Their pronounced approval is so recent as to be fresh in the minds of all.

In accordance with the provisions of this law the Executive Council proceeded to purchase said real estate and has bought one hundred and seventy-five different descriptions for the aggregate price of $980,902.00. But little more in comparison with the whole remains to be acquired. The whole, with the exception of the large stone church and the lot directly across the street west of it exactly upon the northwest corner of the tract is essential to the plan that was in the mind of the 35th General Assembly and the sketch of the completed grounds as outlined by the landscape architect which became a part of the law. It was the policy of the Council, so far as it reasonably could, to buy from the Capitol outward and what remains are lots in a few of the outlying blocks. In all of these blocks the State has bought a portion. So far, therefore, as the purchase is concerned it is practically completed. The best estimate I can now give you as to the cost of the whole as thus outlined will be $1,140,000.00. The Council is now taking options for and contracting for the lots that remain. Competent, expert opinion from all sources is agreed that as a whole the property has been bought at very fair and reasonable values.

The law referred to ordered the Executive Council to sell Governor's Square either as a whole or after platting the same into blocks and lots. As the law also directed the sale of the buildings on the extended grounds it was the judgment of the Council that it would be much more profitable to the State to plat the square and move some of the better houses on the lots and sell the lots as thus improved. Thirty houses will be moved to the square. A few have already been moved. Already there have been moved from the purchased grounds fifty houses and three old brick structures wrecked. It is confidently believed by the Council that this method of dealing with the problem will bring to the State a net profit of $40,000 to $50,000 over and above what would have been realized by selling without thus improving the lots. The houses sold were of the poorer class. There have been realized from the sale of property from the grounds and from rentals $28,405.63.

These things I have outlined because I think that the people are entitled to know the exact situation. I believe and always have believed, as the people of the State know, that they are greatly to be congratulated upon this great movement. From all over the county, from New York to San Francisco, have come letters from eminent men and women and from persons not well known, expressing their great appreciation of what Iowa has done in this particular. Already it has brought distinction to the State in that her legislators have provided for the great future while they could at a very reasonable expenditure. Greater distinction will be hers and universal applause and congratulations will constantly greet her from all parts of the Union when the great Capitol and the buildings, monuments and memorials emerging from the coming years will have proper placement and adequate setting and when Capitol Hill, commanding a most superb and beautiful view of a great city, the valleys of the rivers and the country stretching far beyond, shall have been improved and completed in harmony with the design of the architect and the splendid vision which has for years inspired thousands upon thousands of the men and women of Iowa and which found expression in the Act of the 35th General Assembly and when this hill shall bear upon its front and crest in grateful shade in summer time and in strength and majesty in the winter the trees indigenous to Iowa soil and climate as well as trees adapted thereto transplanted from all lands and when lawn and flowers and shrubbery shall everywhere invite, all eloquently proclaiming the bigness of the life of the people, their culture, their ideals, their appreciation of the really great value in human existence and of an investment that can never by any possibility involve a loss, then, and after we have long been forgotten, will Iowa continually enjoy great distinction because of her Capitol grounds.

And now in closing I desire to say that I am very hopeful that a fine record may be made by the 36th General Assembly. I am anxious to do whatever I can by cooperating with you in a proper way to assist in promoting such a result. When the work is done I trust it will be distinguished for its important, constructive character and for the care, thoughtfulness and accuracy with which it was done. There is no greater, no more responsible work than that of the lawmaker. A State's place in the world, its degree of enlightenment, must ever, in a very large measure, be determined by its laws. The future of Iowa, in the large sense, in its public policy, with reference to the things that make for her growth and development will and must find expression in her legislation. Whatever Iowa may have and be in the future that will be of benefit to mankind must depend upon us who today call the State ours. Our obligation is not simply to today. It is a thousand times more to the years that are to come—to the Iowa that is to be—to the Iowa that we desire her to be. We ought to take a far-ahead look. The foundations ought to be enduring. What are these roads, these schools, these questions of social well-being, these questions of public health, these questions that go to the enlargement of life in the best and deepest sense—what are they to the future, should have consideration. We are not worth our time and space here unless we are looking constantly forward to a coming of a better day. Right good questions to ask oneself are, Is this the little or large view I am taking? Am I consulting my own, selfish interests or the welfare of all? What if everybody were just like me? What would my community, my State be if everybody were to adopt my view—which way would they be pulling, forward or backward?

Down in the rotunda in letters of gold is inscribed the sentiment, "Iowa—our eyes have been permitted to see only the beginning of her glory." It is true, and it doth not yet appear what she shall be. What a splendid vision rises. How much depends on us. Halt her not in any of the great steps forward she has taken. With unstinted devotion of her and her greatness may you do your work.

Ingwersen of Clinton offered the following resolution:

RESOLUTION.

WHEREAS, The nations of the old world are now waging the greatest war of mankind, causing a destruction of life and property and bringing to the nations involved ruin and desolation and untold suffering and misery;

And Whereas, as a people, we stand and strive for the highest ideals of a Christian civilization and now hope and fervently pray that this massacre of nations may soon come to an end, followed by peace universal and everlasting among all nations of the world;

And Whereas, our government has proclaimed strict neutrality and given assurance to American citizens of all races and to the belligerent powers themselves, that we shall give aid and support to none, and by our acts as a nation break no bonds of friendship with the countries with whom we are at peace and create no discord among our citizens here;

And Whereas, this country has recognized the right of our government to withhold war supplies from contending armies when she laid an embargo on munitions of war when the feeble armies of Mexico were arrayed against each other, but now permits its citizens, without protest, to offer their limitless supplies to the mightiest armies that were ever assembled in battle array, thereby assisting in keeping alive this great military conflagration;

And Whereas, We, the members of this body, are in sympathy with the Christian endeavor of this nation to appeal to the God of Nations that peace may come, and reject as hypocrisy and national sacrilege the commercial spirit of the country that is answering our supplications for peace by sending the instruments of destruction and death to the serried armies arrayed in struggle through the empires of Europe.

Therefore Be It Resolved, That we, the House of the State of Iowa, duly assembled, hereby declare that it is the imperative duty of the Congress of the United States to pass the necessary laws forthwith that will enable the President of the United States to lay an embargo upon all contraband of war, save and except food stuffs alone, and thereby withdraw from the contending powers all aid and assistance of this Republic;

And Be It Further Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent to our Representative in Congress in the House of Representatives and the Senate with the request that all legislation, looking to this end, be given their loyal support.

The following communication was received from the Governor:

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

To the Members of the Thirty-Sixth General Assembly:

I think it proper for me to call your special attention to conditions which have arisen and damages which have been sustained by reason of the ravages of the "Foot-and-mouth Disease" in portions of the State. Quite a number of our citizens have suffered considerable pecuniary loss on account of it. The disease is not yet completely stamped out, but it is hoped it is under control. In the state of Illinois on our eastern border it is much more general and prevalent, I am advised, than here, and the greatest care will have to be exercised to prevent further spread and damage in our state. In submitting the matter to you, I venture to suggest also that it is earnestly hoped that the people in the infected districts and in such districts as may become infected, will co-operate in a spirit of helpfulness with the authorities to the end that the disease may not spread and that losses may be reduced to a minimum.

I requested the State Veterinary Department to submit to me a statement of losses actually sustained from the disease, as well, also, as expenses incurred on account of it. His statement is as follows:

Total appraised value of live stock killed and buried..	$ 95,000.00
Total burial expense.....	3,500.00
Total expense of cleaning and disinfecting premises...	2,500.00
	<hr/>

Of this total amount the federal government will pay one half or $50,500.00.

In addition to this the State Veterinary Department approximates the amount due assistant state veterinarians and other persons employed to be compensated by the state at $35,000.00, making a total of $85,000.00. There is now no fund out of which these sums can be paid. It will be necessary for you to provide such a fund and the provisions should be made as soon as you can fully advise yourselves of the amount you should appropriate, taking into consideration the amount of loss and expense already occasioned, and the fact that additional needs may arise. This is a matter of somewhat pressing importance and I trust you will give it early and careful consideration. So much of a fixed sum as may be found necessary should be appropriated. The $35,000.00 the department estimates is to cover the expenses referred to and sufficient to meet the possible needs by way of expense of the department up to the close of the biennium, June 30, 1915.

G. W. CLARKE,
Governor.

Dated January 25th, 1915.

Referred to the committee on animal industry.

When a member moves a previous question he shall specifically state in his motion whether it shall apply to the main question and the amendments, or to the amendment or amendments, only. It shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the members present, and when the motion prevails its effect shall be to put an end to all debate and to bring the House to a direct vote upon the questions to which the motion applies, except when the motion applies to the main question, the member in charge of the measure under consideration, shall have ten (10) minutes in which to close the discussion before the vote is taken; when the motion applies to an amendment the person proposing the amendment shall have five minutes to close the discussion on the amendment. Sixth. That rule Forty-three of the Rules of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly be amended by striking out the words "a carbon duplicate" in line three of said rule on page 72 of the Official Directory and Rules Book, and inserting in lieu thereof the words "three carbon copies," and by striking out the word "word" in the fifth line of said rule, and that when so amended said rule shall read as follows:

JOINT CONVENTION.

In accordance with concurrent resolution duly adopted, the joint convention was called to order by the Hon. W. L. Harding, President of the Senate, at 11 o'clock a. m.

President Harding introduced Ex-secretary of Agriculture, James Wilson, who delivered the following address as per invitation.

SECRETARY JAMES WILSON BEFORE THE IOWA LEGISLATURE.

A foreign invasion has attacked our meat bearing animals. They are more valuable than those of any other state.

Foot and mouth disease is established in all countries except ours, Sweden, and the British Isles. No treatment is effective but stamping it out. The continent of Europe has tried treatment, and failed to get rid of it. South America has this disease everywhere. It was stamped out twice during my time in the Agricultural Department. Prompt action is a prime necessity.

The present outbreak has spread farther than any previous one, and we are in great danger of having it extend beyond control. We arranged in previous outbreaks to have the federal government and the states pay equally toward eradication, and required the state executives to appoint federal agents as state agents, to avoid questions being raised of federal interference in state affairs. Should litigation cause delay, there is little hope of avoiding general contamination of all the meat producing animals of all the states. The consequences of this would reach beyond all computation.

The outbreak previous to the present one extended to four states, and by prompt action was stamped out at an expense to federal and state governments of less than a million dollars. We asked congress to authorize a million dollars to be held against future outbreaks, which was done for several years; but continued exemption from attack brought feelings of security, that resulted in failure to continue putting this feature in the annual appropriation bill.

I observe that stock owners are restive in some states regarding the execution of the killing process by federal and state executives, doubting the good faith of reimbursement promises. There never has been any hesitation in the past about such payments by state or federal lawmakers.

I think it would be wise for both federal and state lawmakers to set apart ample amounts to be used by the executives, should this disease come during recess of the lawmakers.

Foot and mouth disease is one of the most contagious of all the maladies that affect domestic animals. When the outbreak occurred in Portland, Maine, an importation of affected animals was driven to the quarantine station; a yoke of oxen crossed the path where the affected animals had been driven the day previous, and got foot and mouth disease.

Mature reflection leads me to conclude that in the future the federal government should handle the whole matter and pay the bills. It is a foreign invasion that should be suppressed by the general government of all the people, which has power to raise money by taxing the people.

A litigious spirit encouraged by a local court makes delay, and delay endangers all the states.

The federal government has in its service the ablest scientists in the land along lines of animal diseases. The Department of Agriculture has control of all the telegraphic dispatches for an hour every morning. It can learn of any outbreaks sooner than any state can, and act more promptly.

During the uncertainty brought about by the fever tick some years ago, states quarantined against states, and local courts upheld local jurisdictions, and also charged fees from cattle owners crossing state lines, which was exceedingly annoying. Some states at this time are behaving queerly regarding foot and mouth disease, and we may have repetitions of what was done some years ago on account of cattle fever ticks.

INQUIRY INTO CONDITIONS OF LANDLORD AND TENANT IN GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.

The Thirty-fifth General Assembly authorized the Governor to appoint Doctor Wallace and myself to look over the relations between landlord and tenant in the British Isles. We made the trip, looked carefully into the conditions existing there on this subject, and made our report to the Governor, without expense to the state. I presume his excellency has laid the report before you, and I respectfully ask you to look it over.

There are 40 per cent of the farms of Iowa under lease. The Iowa landlord may be divided into several classes, and the conditions to be found in our state are quite different from conditions on the other side of the Atlantic. I do not think enough is known regarding affairs in Iowa to justify an attempt at legislation at the present time; but it would seem wise to authorize your committees on agriculture of both house and senate during a recess of the legislature to get the facts regarding landlord and tenant as they exist in our state, and have a report made to the next General Assembly.

EDUCATIONAL AND OTHER INSTITUTIONS IN IOWA.

The state of Iowa is admirably equipped with educational, eleemosynary and penal institutions. The credit for their development belongs to the successive legislatures that have met in the state. Their work has been well done. I was at one time, while a member of the Iowa legislature, elected a regent of the State University. I took pride in the development of that institution. There is no reason why the Iowa student after getting his primary degrees should not conduct post-graduate work within the state; and there is no reason why a state of such prominence and wealth as the state of Iowa should not have a State University such as Michigan and other western states have. Progress is being made toward that end. The legislature has been generous in providing means, conveniences and stronger faculties.

THE STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

For many years there was doubt in the minds of many Iowa people, including members of the legislature, whether education at Ames was valuable to the Iowa farmer. There was a prominent opinion lodged in the minds of many, that the graduates of the agricultural course did not go back to the farm. I think there is ground for change in that opinion. Two years ago I called upon Dean Curtiss for information with regard to getting more of the four-year graduates in agriculture into the Federal Department of Agriculture at Washington. I asked him what the prospect was for getting members from the graduating class of that year. He replied that the class would number 41, that 39 of them were going back to the farm; but he did not know what prospect there might be for getting the other two. Since that time they have graduated two classes in the four-year course, one of 80, another of 125, besides many more in courses relating to agriculture—dairying, farm engineering, etc.

A new problem presents itself for your consideration with regard to that institution: The freshman classes in agriculture have numbered one thousand and over in 1913 and 1914. You have provided a splendid equipment, that was supposed to take care of all the young farmers and farmers' daughters who might want to come to Ames for education. The buildings are beautiful, a credit to the state; but they are all overcrowded. It is for you to determine what is wise to do. I cannot bring myself to think that when a farmer's boy comes to Ames to study agriculture, you will have him sent home for want of room; and if the farmer's girl wants to come and study domestic science, I hardly think you will conclude to have her go back because the state of Iowa has not provided for her training.

Your normal school at Cedar Falls has greatly strengthened the teaching force of the state, and its work is very creditable.

Brady of Dallas moved that the remarks of Ex-secretary Wilson be printed in the House and Senate journals.

Motion prevailed.

Thomas of Union moved that the joint session be now dissolved.

Motion prevailed and the joint convention was dissolved.

House reconvened, Speaker Atkinson in the chair.

On request of Anderson of Davis, unanimous consent being granted, House File No. 170 was withdrawn from the committee on judiciary and referred to the committee on elections.

I am not insensible to the distinguished honor which your invitation involves, but I assure you that I shall not impose upon your good nature nor your generosity by attempting under these circumstances to make a speech. I confess to you, however, that there is something sweetly and agreeably familiar to me about these surroundings, and especially about this particular station, where I had the privilege of standing four years ago during the sessions of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly. It is true that the faces I see before me are all different, with three or four exceptions, and yet I think I detect the same atmosphere of good fellowship and the same spirit of patriotic devotion to public duty which was here at that time. I wish to congratulate all of you, and especially those who are serving here for the first time, upon the fact that they have entered upon an experience which I believe they will find one of the most agreeable and profitable in all their lives, for nowhere, I believe, on the face of the earth is there gathered together a finer and more conscientious and a more patriotic set of gentlemen than assembled from time to time under the legislative halls of this house. You come here, my friends, not only chosen by an electorate which is unsurpassed in intelligence anywhere in the world, but you come here also the heirs and legatees of a wondrous legislative tradition, a glorious tradition, gentlemen, for through all the years when there have been whispered reproaches of open faithlessness or dishonor in the legislative halls of some of our other and sister states, the name of Iowa has always been held stainless in this regard, and no man, so far as her legislative record is concerned, has ever been able to lift the finger of scorn or raise the voice of calumny or offer a whisper of reproach against her fair name and her fair record, and so, gentlemen, coming as you do as the trustees of the great past, the custodians of a wonderful present and the pioneers of a glorious future, I am fully persuaded that when the middle of April comes and the record is made up, that it will be such as to bring honor, not only to you, but to the splendid commonwealth in which we reside. I thank you, gentlemen.

On motion of Kimberly of Scott the House adjourned until 10 a. m. Friday.

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE

HALL OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
DES MOINES, IOWA, FEBRUARY 12, A. D. 1915.

House met pursuant to adjournment, Speaker Atkinson in the chair.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. D. V. Richardson of Garrison, Iowa.

Journal of February 11th corrected and approved.

Ring of Linn moved that the House accept, with a rising vote of thanks, the flags presented to the House by the veterans of the Civil War employed by the House.

Motion prevailed by the unanimous vote of the House.

Speaker Atkinson accepted the flags on the part of the House and made the following remarks:

It is fitting and proper that we pause a moment from our labor to do honor to the memory of one of the noblest characters that history records. No human more nearly approached the divine than the martyred Lincoln. As we take up our humble duties here, let us draw an inspiration from his life, and I trust that we will all realize the great work which this uncouth, untaught frontier lawyer did by his application to the principles of right, rugged honesty and genuine common sense. He consecrated his life to his country, but it only proved the truthfulness of the poet who sang:

“The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power, and all that beauty and all that wealth e'er gave,
Await alike the inevitable hour. The paths of glory lead but to the grave.”

His was a life of service, and his words, deeds and acts are the sweetest that history treasures up in her golden urn. He lived like a benediction, and died like a sunset.

I accept these flags on behalf of the House of Representatives of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, and to the soldiers who laid their all on their country's altar, I can only say that as you approach the eve of life you may rest assured that when you gather the draperies of your couches about you and lie down for the long sleep from which no man returneth, that the flag which you so nobly defended shall forever remain unsullied.

"To her we drink; for her we pray,
Our voices silent never.
For her we'll fight
Come what, come may,
The Stars and Stripes forever."

Ring of Linn moved that the House extend to Judge Crozier an invitation to read Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and that a committee of two be appointed to escort Judge Crozier to the speaker's station.

Motion prevailed and the Speaker appointed as such committee Ring of Linn and Coast of Johnson.

The committee escorted Judge Crozier to the speaker's station, and he then briefly addressed the House and read Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

JAMES A. MacDONALD.

Mr. Speaker, Members of the Senate and House of Representatives of Iowa:

I count it an honor to be invited to meet you this morning. I have not the privilege in my own country of sitting in the legislature or in the parliament, although it falls to me, as it falls to every man of the press, to exercise functions in connection with the molding of public opinion, which are sometimes thought to be superior to either the parliament or the legislature. I do not express any such views in this connection. You are the elected representatives of the state. You are supreme in so far as your functions go, and it is to you that the people of the state must look for expressing the public opinion which is made throughout the state by the schools and by the press and by all the other advocates and organs of the opinion of the people. On our side of the line, as on your side of the line, we are in a democracy. We are not all of us absolutely sure that democracy has achieved, that it has made good, that it has wholly fulfilled all the promises made by Washington and by Jefferson and by Franklin and by Adams and all the spokesmen for democracy with which you are familiar, but good or bad, it is our form of government. We believe that the power of government should be with the people and we must make good. We must justify that faith, and on your side, as on our side, the responsibility for justifying that faith of those who struck for self-government rests with us. Democracy in itself, self-government in itself, will not fulfill the promises or discharge the duties of government. The forms of government are what we choose to make them. Therefore, sirs, in my judgment a state legislature that comes so close to the every-day interests of the people not only holds a position of high honor in the republic, but has upon it the responsibilities, quite as real, and perhaps in some respects as great as rests upon the Congress at Washington. Therefore, I say to you, I say to all the members of the legislature, speaking for the crowd, as the press always speaks for the crowd, that we look to you to interpret aright,—not the shallow, not the superficial, not the evanescent opinion, but the real judgment of the people to organize that into law and to see that those laws are enforced with justice to all, with privileges to none, and in the interests of all the people of the state and of the nation.

I speak to you today as a native-born Canadian,—native-born myself, my father before me and his father before him native-born Canadians, and two generations before that having had the distinction of living in North Carolina and having some part in the historic movements with which the name of this republic is identified in the history of the continent. But whatever may have been involved in the struggle for self-government by the colonies, this is true, and every intelligent Canadian, every intelligent subject of the empire knows this—that the thing that was done by the patriots in their day, the supreme thing, was not the separation from the motherland of Britain. It was not, I say, the separation from the motherland of Britain. That was incidental; that was not the important achievement of the men of that day. What was important? What was inevitable? What was absolutely essential was the struggle,—not for independence, for independence may be only the noisy clamor of the lawbreaker,—the supreme struggle was for the right of self-government. That was their inherent right because many of them had in their veins Anglo-Saxon blood. I have no Anglo-Saxon blood in my veins and I often thank God for that fact. I have no Anglo-Saxon traditions for an heritage of any kind that would connect me with the Englishman or with any of the Celts. There is Anglo-Saxon blood here; there is Celtic blood here; blood from all the countries of Europe; British blood; French blood; German blood; all the bloods of Europe that are now struggling in war are mingled in this state of Iowa. My Celtic blood fought for Charles Edward Stuart on the battlefields of Britain and thirty years after the man who carried the same broad sympathy for King George all the way from the Fear river in North Carolina to the East river in Nova Scotia, but if any loyalists object to my internationalism I say to them, What did they do when there was any trouble? They cut for Canada. Mine stayed and fought it all the way through, and while they may have been wrong in my personal judgment, they were wrong when they fought for the Stuarts on the battlefield of Colodon and were not right when they fought for King George in North Carolina, the great thing that all struggled for, those Celts, was a democracy. I do not mean politics,—I am not sure where the line should now be drawn. I listened to Mr. Taft two nights ago in Toronto and whether he is a Republican or a Democrat, the only thing I am quite sure of is, that he is a progressive, but he does not call himself a progressive. But the real interest of all parties in that struggle was the right of a free people to govern themselves, and that is the greatest achievement that the colonies won in their day. I am accustomed to say sometimes that on our side of the line we are the inheritors of that achievement. When in the next century the Canadians came to face their responsibilities they must have the right of self-government just as truly as the men of like blood must have had the right of self-government in the century before. The only distinction is this, and this is our greatest achievement, that whereas your people achieved their right to self-government by separation, by sacrificing the thousand years of historic background of the nation, on our side of the line we won the right to govern ourselves, to make our own laws, to administer our own laws, we won that right, not by separation, but by maintaining for Canadians the right of self-government without sacrificing the background of the nation. That is one of the most remarkable events in all history, that for the first time in the world's history any colony of any nation or any empire won the right to self-government. That first colony was the colony in Canada. Absolutely that is true. That for the first time in history any people achieved the right of self-government without sacrificing the historic background and perspective of the people was the achievement in the nineteenth century by the provinces of Canada, and what happened? After Canada achieved her right to self-government, Australia followed with her right to govern herself, then New Zealand, then South Africa in her own day, and not only did they achieve the right of self-government for themselves, but they changed the whole spirit, the whole constitution of the empire of Britain, so that there no longer was an empire, so that it is no longer the old Roman empire with a central government, that it is rather an alliance of free nations, each one controlling its own affairs, all of them bound together, not by bonds of compulsion, but by sentiment, by free will, making up the world alliance of the empire of Great Britain.

I can see the day coming when all civilization will find a place for every nationalism, but a place, not of strife and not of war, a place in which each nation will regard every other nation within the scope of civilization, not as an enemy, not as an antagonist, but as you said, sister nations, sister countries, sister communities, and that no nation can live without the cooperation, the sympathy and support of all the other nations in the world's circle of freedom. That is the thing that North America has done for the world. It is not our achievements in science, industry or art,—it is our achievements, these two nations of a common speech, North Americans have illustrated, and in this day, in the light of a world war, illustrated the great achievement of civilization, two nations, both of them proud, both of them with the Celtic and the Saxon blood and all the other bloods that go to make up our peoples here, we have done the thing that has never been done on any other continent in the whole world. Two nations living side by side through one hundred years and their international boundary line of four thousand miles without a fort, without a gun, without a battleship, without a sentry on guard. That is the greatest achievement of North America, an achievement of international civilization, an achievement of which both politics and religion have a right to be proud before the world, and my hope is that this achievement of our two nations in our two countries, this achievement of international civilization, will be a sample for Europe, for Asia, for Africa, that every continent will see that what has been done by the sons from Britain, the sons from France, the sons from Germany, from Austria, from the Balkan states, and from Scandinavia, the children of those races not at war in Europe, what has been done by their children in North America can be done by them on the North sea and on the channel, and all those lines or boundaries that today are bristling with bayonets and most of them soaked with blood. It is our business, every American, to justify the hopes that the problem of living together, of nations living together, each nation, large and small, having its right reserved to it, its right to a "place in the sun," Belgium as well as Germany, China as surely as Britain, every nation, every people, having reserved to them their right to their "place in the sun," their opportunities to live their own life, to achieve their own destiny, the great responsibility resting upon these two nations that through one hundred years have done the thing that never was done in God's world before. And you and those associated with you in administering the affairs of state, you are the men more responsible than any others for helping on and making good that great aspiration of the American people. You have to do with the administration of law. The great need of the world today is not more wealth as much as more intelligence, more clear thinking and more of a sense of what is morally right or wrong. The great responsibility of your state is the education of the coming generation in your state universities, of which I know something, and all of your universities in your state, and your high schools and public schools. Not simply to make money, but to make life, not simply to understand the situation around about them on their farm, in their factory, store or shop, but to understand that much more essential relationship of man with man, community with community, state with state, nation with nation. There can be no borders for the intelligent mind, there is no limit to the intellect, to thought, to power of thinking through your problems, and just as you make your educational institutions strong and efficient, so will you make your citizenship in this state of Iowa a power in the republic and make your republic the power it ought to be more and more in the world. And more than that, that your responsibility for administering law and justice and fairness as between man and man, as between interest and interest has its part and its place in the great international problem. Men say to me again and again in the press, in parliament, in the public platforms that force is the power behind law. I deny it absolutely and unswervingly. Force in a civilized nation is not the power behind law. The policeman in his uniform represents something more than brute force; he represents the community's respect for law, and respect for law is the real power in a democracy; respect for law is the power behind law. Your policeman is valueless, your army and navy are useless unless in the common mind of a common people of this state and of all the states there is that respect for law which is symbolized by your policemen and by your army and navy. Therefore, you in your legislating and in your enforcement of law, you really are making your contribution to international civilization that is to be.

Sirs, I thank you for permitting me to look in on you this morning. I beg of you to believe that we in Canada are interested in every progressive movement, everything you do, everything you undertake to do to make the common life of the average man more satisfying in the best things. Every achievement of yours in civilization, in government, in the broad democracy, everything you do along these lines you do for us as well as for yourselves, for the one irresistible thing, the one omnipotent thing in all the world is a vital idea. Against brute force you can mass brute force, but there is no power that in the end can gain the mastery over a vital idea. A man went out once, started out empty handed with nothing but an idea. His idea was of a social organization in which there should be no arrogant rich and no suffering poor, in which every man should be a brother to every other man and every nation a sister to every other nation, with nothing but his idea, an idea that he conceived as bringing into the common ways of earth the kingdom of heaven. He started out with nothing but his idea and he released it and set it free. Once that idea was grasped by another mind, once after three years of experience, he found one man had seen the vision, he said, "On that idea, as on an eternal rock, I will build my new society, establish my new kingdom, and against it the gates of hell shall swing forever in vain." To do with the organizing and releasing and setting free of ideas, that supreme opportunity of dealing, not with things merely, but with ideas, we men with minds and consciences, it is our business, as you have done so nicely in this state, to realize those ideas of social justice, industrial reform, those things that will make for the purity and progress of the people of this state; it is our great business to fulfill in our republic, in our continent, and in our world that ideal of a brotherhood for all humanity, for in this day, with all the progress that has been made by science and the turning of science to the destruction of man in this day with every nation rubbing shoulders with every other nation, there must come the brotherhood of all in the neighborhood of the world or our civilization and our progress will mean hell for all the world.

HONORABLE FRANK J. CANNON.

Mr. President, Senators and Representatives:

In expressing appreciation of this high opportunity, I am quite conscious that the courtesy is not to me personally, but to a great issue which has been brought to your attention by some of your own citizens. Permit me at the very outset to offer you my congratulations as a citizen of the United States upon the wonderful things which this legislature of Iowa is giving to the country. First of all, a mighty hope of a better day to come for all the states of the union. In crossing the land from east to west we have heard no subject more frequently discussed, we have heard nothing which has incited a finer spirit of congratulation than the daily reports from the Iowa legislature. Let me say to you that perhaps I shall confer a better service, if I am able to render any to you, if I extend to you the reciprocal opportunity to make any inquiries concerning the subject upon which I am to address you briefly.

If any phase of the Mormon issue demands from you any especial consideration and you feel that the ground has not been amply covered in my remarks, I shall be very glad indeed to be interrupted at any stage of the proceedings or any time after the address I shall be glad to answer, if possible, any inquiry which you may propound.

Up until 1890, for many years, the Mormon church and kingdom practiced polygamy. The Mormon prophet ruled over his people absolutely as a monarch in political affairs. The Mormon kingdom gathered unto itself millions of dollars of property which it expended in secret ways to the disparagement of public right. So grievous was the situation thus presented to the people of the United States that for more than sixty years the people of this country, acting through their state legislative bodies and acting through Congress, through the judiciary and executive authority of the United States, made war upon this system. Perhaps no state in the union had a stronger part in that national warfare than this state of Iowa, through the action of its representatives and its senators at Washington. It was due to a bill introduced into the House of Representatives in the year 1890 by Isaac S. Struble of this state of Iowa that the Mormon kingdom was immediately brought to its knees in contrition. I desire to present to this intelligent assemblage this pointed inquiry: "Were the people of the United States right in their warfare against the Mormon kingdom up to 1890? Is there any man or woman within the sound of my voice who will contend that the people of this great Christian republic were wrong in that controversy?" I have read millions of words upon this issue and have heard hundreds of thousands, but I have never heard any citizen, I have never read the words of any patriot that admitted that the nation was wrong in that mighty contention. Very well then. The Mormon kingdom now practices polygamy; the Mormon prophet now rules the people within the states which comprise the Mormon kingdom as a monarch; it has gathered unto itself untold millions of money and property which it expends and directs through channels antagonistic to the public welfare. If we were right then, how dare we be silent now? The attention of the people of the United States should be turned to this, a greater peril. What right had the people of this country to make war upon the Mormon system when those people were a little handful in the desert; when they were making an historic battle against the savagery of man and beast; when they were making a struggle for existence; when they had no political power which could threaten the integrity of the republic; when they were almost friendless in the world, unless it was to redeem this nation from a threat of iniquity contained within the principles and practices of that system? We are wrong now if we permit the system to continue when it has wealth beyond any conception of the man who has not studied the institution, when the prophet has more than three hundred millions of capital, an income now that more than approaches all the possessions of the Mormon communities within the scope of their kingdom. The Mormon kingdom has invaded the very halls of legislation, wielded with political influence the balance of power in the United States Senate, when the threat of that day of long ago has now become an actual fact. Is there anyone here in this great assemblage with right of speech here on this floor who doubts for a moment that the Mormon teaches and practices polygamy? I ask the question in all good faith. Is there anyone here who has a doubt as to their continuing the practice as a nation? I may proceed, for I take your silence in the same good faith as my inquiry. The people of the United States for more than 45 years made a most determined battle against polygamy. This is a Christian nation; the people of this land, through their legislature and through their courts, through the power of the executive, expressed the doctrine that if anyone wanted to maintain a Mohammedan harem he must go outside of the United States in order to maintain such an institution. Polygamy is still practiced and over a larger area than when you made your statutes and laws against this crime. It is impossible to punish the one offending, because the power of the Mormon prophet within the states where his people reside and where it is practiced is such that no officer of the law so much as entertains the remotest intention to prosecute.

Representatives and Senators having in charge the public welfare, that which concerns you is anything which affects the life of this republic. The Mormon polygamy has spread already into eleven states of the union; it goes unpunished there. The prophet of the Mormon kingdom crossed your State of Iowa on the 3rd of November, 1913, with a part of his polygamous harem. No one here interfered with him in any way. So great is his political and commercial authority in the United States now that this man who, twenty years ago; fled from before the very name of the United States marshal, this man who could only see his wives by stealth, now transports his harem from ocean to ocean, across the Christian United States and no officer so much as remonstrated with him. The people of the United States passed upon this question in 1862 when by a statute procured by Abraham Lincoln polygamy was punished severely by the terms of the act. It was executed in only a few cases because polygamy was protected by the skill of the Mormon priest who practiced it, and by the perjury which was committed to shield it. In 1882 Congress of the United States passed what was known as the Edmonds act, which provided for more severe penalties, open venire for jurors, the right to serve on juries, and also creating what is known as unlawful cohabitation. Polygamous marriage could not be proved, but continuous polygamous living could be proved because that was a matter of general repute. Under the provisions for offenses created by the Edmonds act, two thousand Mormon priests went to prison. Later on Congress passed an additional act and under this act all the property of the Mormon church was escheated to the government of the United States. In 1890 Isaac S. Struble introduced into the House of Representatives a bill which disfranchised every Mormon, took away from him all the civil rights of the United States, because it had been found impossible for the government of the United States to bring the Mormon church to an abandonment of its claims and its polygamous practices and its material claims in the United States. It was when that act was pending under favorable recommendation in both houses, that the Mormon chiefs met in conference in Salt Lake City and humbly surrendered to the United States by a solemn covenant addressed to the government of this kingdom and in which they pledged themselves never more to teach or practice polygamy. Subsequently they pledged themselves to the government of the United States never more to claim the independent right to rule in the United States, a right superior to that of the government. Subsequently they pledged themselves never more to aspire to public office, and then the government bestowed upon them the most splendid series of benefactions this world ever saw. First, the president of the United States gave amnesty for all their past violations of law, forgiving all their rebellion, blotted it out from the book of remembrance. The government of the United States restored the citizenship of the once outlawed chiefs. The government gave back all the property taken from them, gave it back to the last dollar into the hands of the prophet in trust for his people. The government gave statehood to Utah and all the other Mormon territory. The Congress of the United States did the most gentle and generous thing—Congress legitimized every child born in polygamy in the Mormon church. You would not do it for your own community. You people of this legislature would not pass a healing statute to legitimize the progeny of such a parent. Congress did it with the full assent of the United States, so that there might remain no wound unhealed. Just as soon as the Mormon kingdom realized its full possession of all the favors you conferred upon it, it immediately restored its tyranny and re-established its crimes and treason, and has done so for these sixty years. It did not at any time relinquish its intention to rule in the United States. It made that concession in words, but immediately after giving that promise made plans to violate that covenant. I stood at Grover Cleveland's side when he signed that document. I left the happiest man in Washington. I had visited every member of Congress, every Senator. These were my people. I loved them then; I love them now, even while fighting against them. I was so glad that I saw the end of that long fought war, and just six hours after Mr. Cleveland signed that bill of admission I received a telegram from the prophet of the Mormon church stating that he had received a revelation that one of his apostles was to be selected to the Congress of the United States. I assured him that we had just given our word of honor to this country that never more would he get any political revelations from Almighty God. This proved later not to be a revelation from Almighty God, as his chosen apostle was not elected to the Congress of the United States. The Mormon church never retreated. Just three years later when the prophet thought you people were asleep he reappointed one of his apostles to be a member of Congress from Utah. He discovered that you were not asleep, however. More than fifty thousand women of this state of Iowa presented a memorial to Congress demanding that B. H. Roberts be not allowed to sit in the House of Representatives, and in answer to that appeal, every representative in the lower house from this great State of Iowa voted to exclude B. H. Roberts, and he was sent back without being permitted to take the oath of office.

And now to digress for a moment. The change of opinion which has come into this country is not a change of morals but a lack of information concerning the facts and conditions.

The prophet waited just three years longer and then appointed and anointed one of his apostles to be a senator in the Congress of the United States. This was the third revelation for the appointment of an apostle as senator. Reed Smoot was sent under that appointment, and again the people of this country demonstrated that they were not asleep. More than a million people sent a memorial to Congress demanding that no hierarch of this kingdom be permitted to sit in either house at Washington. The committee on privileges and elections then conducted the most extensive investigation of this sort in all our history and laid bare the crimes and treasons of this polygamous kingdom. It reported that Reed Smoot did not come as a citizen of the United States but of a hostile country, that he had taken an oath of disloyalty and that he was disqualified to be a senator and recommended that he be excluded from the United States Senate owing to the fact that he had taken this oath of disloyalty and was an ambassador from a hostile kingdom. The Mormon church is said to have expended over seven millions of dollars to submerge the facts of this investigation from the people of the United States.

Unless you are better informed than most legislative bodies, many of you believe that the charge against Reed Smoot was that he practiced polygamy. We never made any such charge. That point had been settled in the Roberts case. We charged Reed Smoot with being a supporter of a polygamous system, the supporter of a treasonable monarchy, with having taken an oath of disloyalty to this republic.

At the end of four years the Mormon apostle was seated there, the representative of a polygamous kingdom. The principal issue is, whether we shall have a polygamous monarchy in the United States or whether we shall maintain this Christian republic. There is no room for a political church. If there is room for one, there is room for 360 political churches.

The W. C. T. U. have been making a determined assault upon the polygamous practice in this country. They have been asking in every state of the union the passage of a resolution favoring a constitutional amendment to prohibit polygamy. The reason for that is, as I stated, to you in the beginning, that the laws within the states where polygamy is practiced are suspended by the power of the polygamous prophet and the constitutional inhibitions within the states are nullified. This case is closely akin to the issue of slavery. There is only one way to reach it, and that is by the federal power. The W. C. T. U., aided by the Mothers' Congress, the National Reform Association, and other like associations, have been as a unit working for this great moral reform. They are asking that this state of Iowa shall take its place as the thirty-second state to approve the resolution addressed to Congress asking for this amendment to the constitution of the United States. The only people in our country who are fighting against it, so far as I know, are those who themselves practice polygamy, those who are affiliated with the Mormon kingdom in politics and business and those who, because of a lack of the knowledge of the real situation, are misled into the supposition that the Mormon church has abandoned polygamy. For the first class of these three I have only so much of respect as goes with admiration for sincerity. For the second of these classes I have only that opinion which candid men should maintain concerning those who sell their convictions for place and power. For the third class I have only the desire that they inform themselves concerning the history and condition of their country. The supreme court of the United States, in a case carried to that high tribunal by the Mormon church itself, decided that no institution, no individual in this land could practice crime and cover it with the claim of religious immunity. We dispense with all the supposition that we are prosecuting any particular body by desiring the enactment and enforcement of laws to forbid polygamy.

I appreciate the honor which you have conferred upon me. Let me express my pride in what the Iowa legislature has done and is doing. We know perfectly well that there is always some nation on the face of the earth which seems in itself to be touched by the finger of God in order to carry out more of his purposes for mankind than any other people of its time. No one doubts that in this period of the world's history that nation is our own. Civilization has run her western career until now she has reached the last spot of the western world. If she shall go further it will be to leap the Pacific, and the oldest east will then become the newest west. Twenty-six republics have arisen upon the face of this earth since our own was established. They are the real daughters of the American revolution. They followed the example of this land—not because we conquered them with military power, but because we conquered them by force of splendid example. We demonstrated to them that a nation can live, can grow, can increase its power by casting down the divine right of kings and acknowledging the divine right of the people to rule. The only way we can justify our holding of God's purpose is to keep this vessel clean, this as a nation. The time for us to have His favor is now, by righteous conduct, so that when we ask for His help in the time of our need it will come to us as justice, as well as mercy. I thank you.

Balkema of Sioux moved that the joint convention be now dissolved.

Motion prevailed and the joint convention was dissolved.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE.

MR. SPEAKER—I vote “no” on Senate File No. 7 for the reason that I stand on the Republican platform and believe in home rule.

G. F. TUCKER.

MR. SPEAKER—I was elected by the Republican party whose platform says:

“The wise laws enacted by the Republicans of Iowa that have resulted in the suppression of intemperance and materially aided in arousing and fostering in the state a love of temperance and good government, meet with our most hearty approval and support, and we pledge ourselves to the enforcement of same,” and as I understand it I am expected by that party to do all that lies in my power to support that law and that I am pledged to support but not repeal it. Again my reason is that I consider the mulct law, as it has been enforced in Iowa, has during those years worked out the results of more real, genuine temperance than all the laws that have been on our statute books on temperance for all the years of our statehood.

A. B. HOLBERT.

MR. SPEAKER—I would like to explain my vote. I am not personally in favor of the present mulct law but I was elected on the Republican platform that said “Hands off” and I am going to keep my hands off at this time as I do not want to repeal the mulct law until we get something better in its place as I think it is bad politics and uncalled for at this time. I vote “no”.

OTTO A. HELMING.

MR. SPEAKER—I wish to explain my vote. It is with pride that I am the son of a man who helped to found the great Republican party; it is with pride that I have the opportunity this forenoon of representing that great party in the Thirty-sixth General Assembly; it is with pride, gentlemen, that a newspaper whose pilot is drunk with hysteria cannot sever me from the course of justice. I stand on the Republican platform with both feet. I have in my hands a petition signed by three thousand voters of the county I represent demanding that the mulct law shall not be repealed. Therefore I wish to answer the roll call by the word “no”.

CLAYTON E. BRONSON.

The Speaker announced that, as Speaker of the House and in the presence of the House, he had signed Senate Files Nos. 14 and 38.

Hon. W. I. Atkinson,
Speaker, House of Representatives,
City.

SIR—I am informed that the House today passed a resolution requiring me, as State Printer, to complete and have ready for distribution Monday next, two days hence, the annual report of the Highway Commission.

The outline furnished me by the Commission indicates that this report will consist of eight parts, as follows:

Part One contains the departmental report covering the period from April 9, 1913, to December 1, 1913.

Part Two contains the departmental report for the period from December 1, 1913, to November 1, 1914.

Part Three is devoted to road legislation.

Part Four contains special chapters dealing with the most important phases of highway work.

Part Five deals with investigations and research.

Part Six contains the financial report, which is given for the two periods, April 9, 1913, to June 30, 1913, and from July 1, 1913, to June 30, 1914, thus putting the financial report on the basis of the fiscal year, as is required.

Part Seven briefly outlines the requirements of the roads through and adjacent to the state institutions.

Part Eight contains the information summarized and tabulated from the reports of the county engineers.

Of these eight parts I have had copy for the first four. I have not had copy on the last four. I am expecting this copy now at any time. As you no doubt know, this copy first goes to the governor and from him to me.

Parts One, Two, Three and Four have been in type for some time. I am ready to proceed with the balance of the copy when it is received. Galley proof has been furnished to the Commission on all but Part Four and that will go forward Monday or Tuesday. Page proof has been sent up to page 128, and part of this has been received back and a start made on press work. Also, 32 pages of illustrations have been made up and proof is now on the way to the Commission.

Very respectfully yours,

REMARKS OF MRS. EARL S. CULLUMS.

WOMAN.

Life giver, life maker and the world's redeemer of woman, law breaker, law maker, and the world's destroyer.

Since the beginning of time there has always been two forces at work. Back in the vast solitudes of azioc time, we find God, the patient worker, building alone, not alone for He was there, Father, Son and Holy Ghost. Tireless and patient and in joy, age following age, he built, built, built—not yet human life but atoms, and from the atoms he built worlds, suns and moons and called them systems. Yes, systems upon systems of worlds has our Creator flung out in the great oceans of space, all united in one great family and governed by his great laws. Oh, humanity! People of the earth! Look up to the skies and find God, understand Him there in his creation and then come back to the great within of your own soul and find God there. The atoms, yes, the atoms of space, are produced, are made by God. The material must stand as now and can not be brushed away or reduced to a mere idea or mode of spiritual energy, and on the other hand spirit must still be held antecedent to and actual creator of all matters; God's energizing will back of all the atoms; forming them into great heaps of nebulous matter through cohesion, adhesion, capillary attraction and affinity, each atom is finding its own. Electricity, magnetism, galvanism is composed of two electric forces, the positive corresponding with the male and the negative with the female, and their union carries forward most terrestrial and celestial operations. Thus all bodies positively charged repel each other, while all negative and positives attract, and this principle undoubtedly creates the revolution of all the heavenly bodies. The sun being positive and the earth negative causes their mutual attraction, hers chiefly because so much the smaller till her proximity to him makes her also positive, which repels her and this, their vibration, swaying is equivalent in value to their sexual intercourse and is perpetually generating that matter which comets are everywhere gathering up, ever embodying into new-born worlds and wheeling into orbits. This same sexual element is peopling with all their various forms of life, marriages are taking place all over the dome of the great universe; father and mother worlds are forming and throwing off their children; or new worlds out into the great sea of space, then the creator says we will not call them homes but systems—systems of worlds for the abode of mortals and immortal life, all being conceived, born and reared under God's law, order and system.

Gentlemen, representatives and senators, as we pause for a few minutes and review creation, I wonder why the earth, Mother Earth, did not complain and find fault with the sun and shout up there from the solar system to other systems in the blue dome of the universe and say, we must be equal; I won't revolve for I believe in equal rights. Then another planet like Mars might have caught the fever and said, I won't work as God intended me to either, for I, too, believe in equal rights. The sun is positive, it warms, it invigorates, it vivifies, it electrifies Mother Earth to produce—just to produce. The sun's place is different from the earth and the earth from the sun, but the two in one, they, together, produce a home or system of worlds. Were it any other way, there would be chaos, wrecks and misery.

Oh! poor foolish suffragette, look up to God and find Him in his world's work, then come back and find God in your own soul. Representatives and senators of Iowa, as far as I can understand, there are no suffragettes of the heavenly bodies unless they are comets. Everybody knows comets are heavenly bodies moving in the heavens, first toward then around,—and finally away again from the sun. Comets have in every age excited attention and till recently have inspired terror, at least in ignorant minds. Milton expressed the general belief in the lines, "Satan stood and like a comet burned in the arctic sky, and from his horrid hair shakes pestilence and war."

After the worlds were built, God scatter them over with seeds for vegetation and flowers. We see the plants, roses, grains and fruits carrying out God's plan. They pass in annual review over the whole earth and throughout all time. We also note the commingling of the male and female entities which impregnates the seeds of life. All seeds to germinate must first be made fruitful by male pollen. The end of all blossoms is fruit and of fruit, seeds. It is this male and female union in the flowering process; all seeds, all fruits, are vegetable productions. Let us give the call to the world of vegetation. Are any of you female entities dissatisfied in your God-given place? I have wandered for years and closely associated with all trees, plants, grains and flowers, and I have never heard a murmur only from weeds, thorns, thistles and nightshade, and they always set up a yell for equal rights with the roses, fruits and grains. Webster's definition of weeds, a general name for anything useless or troublesome in plants, a term applied indefinitely and generally to any plant or botanical species growing where it is not wanted and of no use to man and absolutely injurious to crops; anything worthless or trashy. If I were explaining a weed to a class of young girls or married women, I would say a weed and a suffragist look alike, and history has proven a suffragette is detrimental and injurious to home and home life, and that her silent aim seems to be an upheaval of the home and places sprags in the mental wheels of all young girls and married women by saying, any expectant mother should have pay for producing a child, and then I would dismiss the class and enter into a silent prayer, asking Lord God Almighty to give me strength to go on and teach purity and morality and motherhood in this sinful, twisted, carnal minded old world, where the very foundation of the home seems to be wreaking and crying out in anguish, save me, oh save me, or the nation perishes after God called in the fishes of the sea, birds of the air and animals of the plains and hills. God said, "Let us make man in our image after our likeness." Man is the result of a dual force—his constitutional make up is male and female, positive and negative, finite and infinite, absolute and relative, form and substance. These are all expressed in infinite degrees of variation. Man is perfect image and exact likeness of God. The soul of man forms a complete circle; is a perfect entity. The life of the soul is immortal and this immortality has reference alike to past, present and future; is related to God in the ratio of the atom to the whole. The innermost of the circle or sphere of the soul represents the female principle, two in one, the former the more spiritual, the latter the more intellectual. In soul life the male and female forces were embodied in one organism corresponding to the deep sleep God caused to fall upon Adam ere the rib was taken from his side, the passive side of being, the infinite fathomless side, which is the relative opposite and mutual dependent of the finite and active side. God created man in his own image, in the image of God. Male and female created he then and God blessed them. "Be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth." I am looking most any time for the suffragettes to scratch out this command from the Holy Scriptures and write in its place an amendment. This is a new age for the new women, no children, the only way out, murder or abortion; the Devil sanctions either route, and in place of multiply—equal rights shoulder to shoulder with man—in place of replenish the earth, burn the homes and give women political rule, "so we can see the alleys are clean," and the poor little twisted, malformed, stunted, mildewed children of ours—"well so we can look into the pure milk problem." Oh! its a great question, and "subdue and have dominion over the fish of the sea and over the fowl of the air;" they will change subdue and put it "subdue man, the worthless nonentity who can't run the political machine alone;" "we want full and complete dominion over his soul and his personal rights."

Reproduction is in fact a department of nature and must have its governing laws. It is above all others. Everything originates from it; obeying its laws brings happiness, disobeying brings suffering, creation—reproduction stands above all, it is man's most valuable gift. Sexuality is a great motor wheel of this entire creative achievement. Every vegetable, insect, creeping thing, fish, fowl, animal and human being that ever has been now lives, or will exist forever, together with all their faculties, organs, functions, doings, enjoyments are but its wonderful out-workings. What more useful, more needful subject can man study. Gender exists and is governed by natural laws which reduce it to an exact science.

God ordained the family; therefore its natural laws and thereby a family science. When the material, the physical life, manifests itself, the antagonistic forces or the carnal powers are born. We then stand face to face with life's two pathways; God, the spiritual development, the powers of light, virtue, purity, goodness, truth, or the Devil and the powers of darkness, lust, greed, and carnal mind. God who can make no mistake, made man and woman for specific work and to move in particular spheres; man to be regnant in his realm and woman to be dominant in hers. The boundary line between Italy and Switzerland, between England and Scotland, is not more thoroughly marked than this distinction between the empire masculine and the empire feminine. So entirely dissimilar are the fields which God gave them that you can no more compare them than you can oxygen and hydrogen, water and grass, trees and stars. All this talk about the superiority of the sex to the other sex is an everlasting waste of time, opportunity, ink and speech. I know there are women of undesirable nature, who wander up and down the country having no homes of their own or forsaking their own homes, talking about their rights, and I know very well that they, themselves, are fit neither to vote nor fit to keep house. Their mission seems to be to humiliate the two sexes. No one would want to live under the laws that such women would exact, or to have cast upon society the children that such women would bear and raise.

The best rights that women can own she already has in her possession. The grandeur and power of her realm have never yet been appreciated. She sits today on a throne so high that all the thrones of earth piled on top of each other, would not make for her a foot stool. Here is the platform on which she stands. Away down below it are the ballot box and the congressional assemblage and the legislative hall.

Woman always has voted and always will vote. Our great grandfathers thought they were by their votes putting Washington into the presidential chair. No, his mother by the principles she taught him and by the habits she inculcated made him president. It was a christian mother's hand dropping the ballot when Lord Bacon wrote, and Newton philosophized, and Alfred the Great governed, and Jonathan Edwards thundered of judgment to come.

Gentlemen, representatives and senators, the right of suffrage, as men exercise it, seems to be a feeble thing. You, a christian man, come up to the ballot box and you drop your vote. Right after you comes a libertine or a sot, and he drops his vote. His vote counteracts yours. But if in the quiet of a home life, a daughter by her christian demeanor, a wife by her industry, a mother by her faithfulness, casts a vote in the right direction, then nothing can resist it and the influence of that vote will throbb through the eternities. There is one divine right that every woman has and that is to make home happy. That realm no one has ever disputed with her. It is the only calm harbor in all the world. Home, what right does woman want that is grander than to be queen in the realm of home. On the realm of woman's influence, eternity never marks any bound.

I believe in my home. It isn't a rich home. It wouldn't satisfy some, but it contains all the jewels that can not be purchased in the markets of the world. When I enter its secret chambers and shut out the world with its care, I am queen. Its motto is service. Its reward is love. There is no other spot in all the earth which fills its place, and heaven can only be a larger home with a Father who is all wise and patient and tender.

Our work, "Natural and Divine Motherhood," is not founded upon politics, nor the constitution of our dear old states where our great souls (the men) have poured out their life's blood for freedom, freedom from injustice, freedom from tyranny, freedom for the black man. Ah, no! It's where I long to and promise God to be if need be, to pour out my life's blood for my own sex—for the women of the states who are oppressed, down-trodden and wronged, and for the poor little children coming into this world not from their own choosing, but drafted, blighted and sin cursed.

Representatives and senators, I am not in the work of motherhood because I have read it in a book, nor the flowers haven't whispered it to me as I passed along life's highways. I learned my lessons in life's school of experience, from the human text books of life. I never tore any leaves out of my human text books. I digested the entire contents with a sigh. I have passed through broken homes. My first song, "I have surrendered all;" my last song, "I'll go where He wants me to go." Lord God Almighty, here is where I promise heaven to stand and promise God to work the remainder of my life, be it short or be it long. "Natural and Divine Motherhood" is founded upon God's holy word, which was given man and woman, male and female. We believe God's holy word, comprising Old and New Testaments in their entirety or completeness. As a whole, it is the parent book of all learning. It sacredly and scientifically describes or defines the beginning and ending of man's creation individually. We find "Natural and Divine Motherhood" all through the bible from cover to cover. However, more especially, I like to read under special soul culture from I Cor. 15 chapter, 34 to 50 verses. "Awake to soberness, righteously and sin not; for some have no knowledge of God." I speak this to move you to shame. But some one will say, "How are the dead raised and with what manner of body do they come." Thou foolish one, that which thou thyself sowest is not quickened except it die, and that which thou sowest, thou sowest not the body that shall be, but a bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other kind, but God gave it a body even as it pleased him, and to each seed a body of its own. All flesh is not the same flesh; but there is one flesh of men and another flesh of beasts; another flesh of birds and another of fishes. There are also celestial bodies and bodies terrestrial; but the glory of the celestial is one and the glory of the terrestrial is another. There is one glory of the sun and another glory of the moon and another glory of the stars, for one star differeth from another star in glory. So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption; it is raised in corruption. It is sown in dishonor; it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness; it is raised in power. It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. So also is it written. The first man, Adam, became a living; the last Adam, a life-giving spirit. Howbeit that is not first which is spiritual but that which is natural; then that which is spiritual. The first man is of the earth earthly. The second man is of heaven, as is the earthly. Such are they also that are earthly and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly, and as we have bornethe image of the earthly, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly." We believe that motherhood and the home stands for all good, bad and indifferent humanity. With the moral fiber weakened or absent, what service to humanity is the church and the school?

If our ministers of today would preach morality and help the church going people to live it, I know it would be much better than it is. The church of today has taken in the world and the world's ways. More especially do I know this when I go to church and hear the minister rant and rave about woman's suffrage. Of course, this decidedly shows we are living under the old dispensation in place of the new. Professors of Christ rather than possessors. If we want a better generation, we must place some christianity in the construction of new life, not let humanity run the pace until they are twisted and diseased, and then think we can offer them Jesus' blood in a glass and His bread on a plate and it will make them whole. I am positive the minister who proclaims suffrage from his pulpit is of the world worldly. The ministers may preach prohibition and may see the saloons go, but more than that, back of all, is broken homes and immorality, which always drives im perfect humanity to drink.

In the making of the child, the mother not only contributes one-half of the ancestral qualities which enter into its constitution, but furnishes all the nutrition and energy which serve to support its life. From this point of view, the mother is the supreme parent of the child; she is the source of its life and from her blood is drawn the material which contributes to its growth and development. If her nutrition and energies are weakened, the nutrition of the child correspondingly suffers. The welfare of the mother underlies the welfare of the child. We have thus come to recognize the dominant influence of the mother in relation to the health as well as the life of the race.

A high standard of physical motherhood is the most valuable asset of a nation. Havelock Ellis in his recent work on "Psychology of Sex," says, "Nations have begun to recognize the desirability of education, but they have scarcely yet come to recognize that the nationalization of health is even more important than the nationalization of education. If it were necessary to choose between the task of getting children educated and the task of getting them well born and healthy, it would be better to abandon education."

There have been many great people who never dreamed of national systems of education. There has been no great people without the art of producing healthy and vigorous children. Newmann, the distinguished author of the work on infant mortality, declares that the problem of infantile mortality is not one of sanitation alone, or housing, or indeed, of poverty as such, but is mainly a question of motherhood.

Again, we now face two paths—from "Home to Heaven" or from "Home to Hell." We now face two women, Mary and Eve. Mary redeemed the world by her illustrious birth of Jesus, born in purity and virtue. Eve cursed the world by satisfying her carnal, animal nature, living under her five senses and satisfying them, she gave nothing to the world but a heritage of lust and animal passion which tempted man and still tempts man today and causes his fall, for when man falls, there is always a woman mixed up in the game somewhere. If you don't believe it, prove it. It will prove out every time.

Again, we now face two women in the world's work, woman life giver, life maker and world's redeemer and woman law breaker, law maker and world's destroyer. Again, we now face two old family trees. The bible describes them in Matthew, 12 chapter, 25 to 34 verses; the last tree or the corrupt tree has its roots in a broken home. Letters of blood! What I mean by a broken home is where the carnalities of the flesh are foremost in life and home. The roots of the corrupt tree are lust, greed, ignorance, and hypocrisy. They produce a tree of vice and crime in the home. This old tree has caused the downfall of every nation. Watch, Mr. Representative and Mr. Senator, that you don't plant a tree like that in Iowa. My sister suffragettes are holding this tree and begging it to be set out in Iowa. I am praying that you can't set it out. That it will be blasted and die before its beirth. Some of the limbs of this old tree are poverty, divorce, corrupt politics, piates, self-abuse, black plague, graft, cigarettes, tobacco, alcohol, white plague, infanticide, abortion. self-abuse and black plague are everywhere. I have gone into homes of suffragists all over the states, here and there, and found their children practicing self-abuse, and the mothers yelling about suffrage saving the children of poor mothers, etc., etc., little dreaming the cause of their own children's trouble. On this old family tree, we find the two limbs are breaking with infanticide and abortion. Everywhere it is one of the worst big dragons of the home.

We have with us today all this material from the broken home. So much sin, misery, suffering, sickness; the home cannot take care of it, the town and city cannot see to it all. They are overrun and overflowing. So the home and the city send this poor, twisted, thwarted, stunted, mildewed, malformed, cursed before birth material to the jails, penitentiaries, reformatories, insane asylums and others institutions for imperfect humanity.

Mr. Representative and Mr. Senator, right here at every assembly, year after year, you appropriate thousands and millions of dollars for their support and care, and then on top of that some of our foolish women begging you men to grant woman suffrage in the state of Iowa. God forbid if you do, gentlemen. You will have more material from these broken and divided homes than ever before, and in the course of time, the state will call for more money to be given and appropriated for our Iowa institutions. Remember, if our homes were right, the towns and cities would be cleared of all this expense and misery and the state could rent out their institutions for educational purposes. They could be made both natural and spiritual market places.

We need more preventative educational laws. Poor little babes, yet unborn—can you hear them lisping, "mother, mother, mother?" The state of Iowa catches the echo and whispers back, "Homes for mothers, Homes for mothers." Mr. Representative and Mr. Senator, what is your meaning of the word mother—a human being to leave the home and vote, or a human and divine being to work with God in the home in fashioning a human soul?

Mr. Representative and Mr. Senator, I charge you to meditate, to think—to think. The suffragists have rubbed up against you and smiled and told you if you did not support suffrage they would try and see you could not get into office or politics. I charge and urge you, gentlemen, to listen to the voice of God. Do nothing that would have a tendency to break up your home and the homes in your counties or districts. Keep old Iowa clean and ask yourselves the question: Where did God intend woman to be and what did God intend woman to do? Do you hear the silent voice crying out from the universe, A mother, a life giver, a life maker and the world's redeemer.

REMARKS OF MISS MINNIE BRONSON.

Much misrepresentation and much misunderstanding exists in reference to the organized opposition to woman's suffrage. Many people believe it to be an organization of rich and protected women who know nothing of the ills of society and care less. Some people believe us to be an organization of women who are seeking personal notoriety and political gain. Others declare that we are an organization of women allied with all the vicious interests existent, and others say that we are ungracious women who care nothing for the ballot ourselves but do not propose that other women shall have a prerogative which is theirs. Some of these opinions are based upon an ignorance of what is involved in the question of votes for women. Others find their origin in the embittered hearts of those who always resent any opposition to their wishes. None of these reasons, however, sufficiently accounts for the great uprising which in less than three years has enrolled 150,000 women, all of them twenty-one years of age and over and drawn from all walks in life. Obviously, an organization which numbers among its members such women as our president, Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, who for twenty years has been at the head of the Day Nursery association of this country; Miss Ida Tarbell, the well known political and social writer, said to be the brainiest woman in America; Miss Mabel Boardman, who is at the head of the Red Cross association; Miss Emily Bissell, the greatest single exponent in the eradication of tuberculosis in this country and the originator of the Red Cross stamp; the well known writer, Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin; Miss Alice French of our own state; Mrs. Thos. J. Preston, the widow of the former President Cleveland, and Mrs. William Howard Taft.

Obviously, an organization that numbers among its members such women as these, is not composed of parasitical women who care nothing for the ills of society and know less; neither is it composed of women who are seeking personal notriety, nor is it composed of women who are allied with the vicious interests. A greater reason than this has actuated this great body of high-minded and right-thinking women to organize in opposition to woman's suffrage, and there is but one determining and particular answer, and that is, they have thus organized to defend a principle of social and political faith which they deem to be vital.

The question of woman's suffrage to those who oppose it, is a question of woman's best service to the state. Will woman suffrage work for the benefit of the state and the community at large? Will it tend to a better and cheaper and more efficient government? Will it help orderly law and justice? In short, will it be better for the state and better for the men and women who compose the state? And those of us who oppose, believe that unless these questions can be answered in the affirmative, that we have no reason to further complicate the problems of our present day democracy.

The question of woman's suffrage is not a question of equality. No intelligent man or woman denies the mental equality of men and women. Some women are more intelligent than some men. Some women are less intelligent than some men, but since we are born of the same parents, the chances are the average woman is just as intelligent as the average man. The average woman has not had the same experience in matters political that the average man has had, but even the anti-suffragist will not deny that she could acquire it if she gave her time and attention to it. Indeed, it is probable and altogether possible that the work of governing might be turned into the hands of women entirely and the work of the home-keeping with its incident occupations, might be committed altogether to men and in a few centuries after the necessary adaptations had been made and facility acquired, society would be as well served as now. But even so, society would still have suffered for nothing the inconvenience and retardation of a transition period. It is a question not of equality but of a proper division of labor, and when the suffragists say that there is not one argument against woman suffrage that does not equally apply to manhood suffrage, we might propose an entire exchange of work for men and women, which, after a length of time, might produce as good results as today, but this is no argument. Indeed, there is no argument to sustain the theory that both men and women should do exactly the same work. Regarding the whole question from a practical and scientific standpoint, we must acknowledge that specialization has always been the way to the highest efficiency. The professions, the trades, the organizations of the whole mercantile world have conformed to it. There can be, so far as we learn from the history of human society, from organic life, from the development of intelligence, no other way to evolution. All progress in organic life has been through differentiation and specialization of function. That is the essence of the long story of the argument, not the mingling of the individual activities in a hopeless jumble. To deny, to interfere, to violate this law is not progress. It is retrogression. Not identity of work but diversity of work marks the progress of the nations.

Biologists tell us that the lowest forms of life show the lowest differentiation of functions. Science finds the greatest distinction in the highest animals. Man as the highest animal, shows the greatest difference of function, and civilized man the highest specialization in the work of the sexes.

The Indian woman does all the work of the man. It is a great relief to him, but when the Indian race comes in contact with the white race, the Indian is outclassed at every point. He just fades away, as the slang phrase goes.

Any movement that tends to identity of work for men and women is a step backward in the history of progress. The argument that since we do have different work to do in the world, we both should have a hand in its governing, is begging the question. Both men and women do have a hand in governing, the former through the ballot and in the enactment of the law, the latter in training the voter and the law-maker and in creating public opinion. And if the training is rightly done, women can well afford to trust the men whom they have thus trained, to make and execute the law; the law, by which not women alone are governed but the law by which both men and women are governed, and what is bad for one is equally bad for the other, and what is good for one is good for the other.

Man and woman stand side by side as two equal but diverse entities. At most, woman is not less than man. She is perhaps greater, but above all things, she is different, for she bears the child. While a legislative act may make women voters, it can never make men mothers.

Women are needed in politics to reform them, are they? If women really want to reform the world and are not talking just to hear themselves talk, there is one place where it might be done, you know, and that is in the nursery. The very worst grafter in the country today had a mother, didn't he? A mother who found something else, whether bridge or woman's suffrage, more interesting than her child's training. The man who can't make good as a man and the woman who can't make good as a woman, can neither of them make good as human beings, and the vote will not transform either into effective personalities.

Moreover, the United States census shows that 80 percent of the women twenty-four years of age and over are married, and their interests are identical with their husbands. Now, this 80 per cent of women must either vote with their husbands or against them. If they vote with them, they merely double the vote with no compensating gain to society or to the individual. If they vote against them, the vote of both husband and wife is nullified, and the family has no representation whatsoever and no gain accrued to either society or to the individual, although the expense of elections has been greatly increased. As a matter of fact, there has been loss in this respect for one family at least has been disfranchised. Also, according to the census only 20 per cent of the women of sixteen years and over are employed in gainful pursuits, while 90 per cent of the men sixteen years of age and over are gainfully employed. As long as this relative inexperience in business continues, and it will continue unless women are to neglect the work which is peculiarly theirs, then the combined votes of men and women will not give as good results as the votes of men alone. In other words, an electorate of men, 90 per cent of whom are more or less trained in the work of business, will be more efficient than an electorate composed of men and women in which 80 per cent of the latter have not had such business experience.

The argument that the ballot is an inalienable right, is equally fallacious. No one can possibly have a right to anything in a community except as that community allows it to him. The ballot has been at different times and places restricted by terms of residence or property or age or educational qualifications. It may have sex restrictions. It has never yet been universal or altogether unrestricted in its application. The state recognizes women as citizens, but it has delegated the voting and governing power to men, as it has every right to do.

Two more arguments that form the basis of the suffragists' demand, are the much worn out claim of democracy and of taxation without representation is tyranny. First, as to democracy. The suffrage advocate says, governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. Since women are governed, they should have a voice in the laws by which they are governed if democracy prevails. Then, let me begin at the beginning again. The fundamental principle of democracy is the will of the majority. If the majority of the women not only do not want to vote but believe it would seriously interfere with a better and greater work, they have to do for the state, than to force the ballot upon them is not democratic. The wildest claims of the suffragists indicate that less than one woman in ten wants to vote; in New York 300,000 or a little over 6 per cent; in Massachusetts they claim 40,000. If we are wrong in this claim, let us have a test of the matter. We anti-suffragists would welcome a referendum of the question to the women of this country, and if any considerable number of the women of voting age should ask for the ballot, I will not say even a majority, but if any considerable number of women want the ballot, then the most implacable of those who oppose the movement will withdraw their opposition, albeit sorrowfully, and let woman suffrage roll on to its inevitable conclusion. But a submission of this issue to a democratic decision is not what the suffragists want. A most anomalous position is this taken by the suffragists. They ask for votes for women in the name of democracy, and then deny the first principle of democracy—the will of the majority. Democracy, justice—why the words are an absurdity if 90 per cent of the women of the country feel that they are being loaded with burdens which they cannot discharge or which, if they do discharge, will interfere with other duties which are already theirs. This is not the democratic rule of the majority. It is class rule with a vengeance and as for consenting to be governed, there never was a man or a government that so coolly assumed to govern a majority of people without their consent as do the suffragists. Miss Crystabel Pankhurst says that to offer a referendum of women to a suffragist is like offering her a cup of cold poison, and Mrs. Belmont says that the constitution should represent the will of all the people and not of one-half. Well, today, it represents three-fourths or maybe seven-eighths of the people, which is pretty good for a constitution after all, and when the suffragists cry, "this is a government of the people, for the people and by the people are not women people?" we say, yes, but the suffragists are not the only women who are people. The nine-tenths of women who have no sympathy with this movement are also people and they believe their interests are better conserved than if they sell their birthright for a mess of politics.

I have heard men and women argue that if only one woman wanted to vote she should be allowed the privilege. The absurdity of such a statement is apparent. It is equivalent to saying that if one man wants to keep hogs in his back yard, he ought to be allowed to do so. This is a country of majority rule and not the will of the single individual.

Those of us who oppose suffrage are called ungracious women, and a leading paper of Washington said that just because we didn't want to eat cake was no reason for denying our neighbors cake. But it is not a question of my eating cake or not, as I please. It is a question of my being obliged to eat cake if my neighbor does, and if my neighbor's eating cake gives me dyspepsia, I have a right to object. In other words, if my neighbor is a selfish or unintelligent woman, one who can be controlled by the vicious elements in politics and if she can vote, then must I also vote if I am a friend of decency and order. There is no legal obligation but there will be a moral obligation, else the ballot is only a plaything not a power, and any man or woman who argues differently is not himself or herself fit for the ballot.

From two sources spring nearly all the ills that afflict our country today. Get rid of them and more would be accomplished than by all the constitutional amendments or new devices that ever entered the mind of man. One is the stay at home vote; the other the unenforced law. Both theory and practice go to show that both of these obstacles not only to progress but to social health would be built higher—unintentionally and with the purest motives but still built higher, by the granting of the ballot to women. Every authority on municipal government in this country acknowledges that the stay at home vote is a powerful support of municipal abuse, and yet the suffragist says, "why you don't need to vote; plenty of men do not exercise the franchise." Increase the percentage of those who saty at home on election day, and it is increasing now so fast that a penalty for failing to vote has been seriously proposed in several states, and you prepare the way for the combine, the gang and the boss. There can be no successful self-government; with difficulty, any that might be called even decent government where any considerable proportion of those entitled to vote do not at every election cast their ballot and put their intelligence and conscience behind the act. The man or woman who can vote and does not, is like the soldier who deserts the army in time of war. And yet the suffragists insist that the granting of the ballot carries no obligation to use it.

But the argument most frequently used is that taxation without representation is tyranny. Let me say right here that no one denies it. What we do deny is that taxation without votes is tyranny, and that is what the suffragist means, for by this reasoning every man who is not a taxpayer should be deprived of his vote. Suffrage in the United States is not based upon property qualifications. To carry this claim to its logical conclusion is to say that a man should be allowed to vote in every state and every town where he pays taxes, and that a man with a million dollars should have many more votes than the man with a thousand dollars. Moreover, less than 10 per cent of the women of voting age in this country can pay taxes. If all women are admitted to the franchise, then nine women are given the ballot in order that the tenth woman may vote on questions of taxation. This would greatly increase the non-taxpaying electorate, and an increase in the non-taxpaying electorate means an increase in taxes. I am told that of the 10 per cent of women who pay taxes, 40 per cent are paying taxes on property placed in their hands to escape their debts.

Also, woman suffrage would increase the city vote but not the country vote, for the opportunities for the farmer's wife to get to the polls are far less than those of the city woman. Taxes, both county and state, are voted largely by the city voters, the majority of whom are not taxpayers, and the burden falls upon the farmer who must ultimately pay the price. First, because it will double the electorate and the expense of elections. Second, because the proportion of non-taxpaying votes will be greatly increased, and taxes are voted by those who do not have to pay them. Third, because the city vote, which is largely non-taxpaying, will be increased at the expense of the farmer vote, which is largely taxpaying. City women vote in greater numbers than the wives of farmers, for their opportunities to get to the polls are greater. In Colorado, 90 per cent of all women voting come from the cities of the state. In the cities but a very small proportion of the population are taxpayers. The farming population are the taxpayers. The city non-taxpaying vote will be tremendously increased at the expense of the farming taxpaying vote.

I think it must be admitted that woman suffrage is not a question of equality of men and women but of diversity of work. It is not a step in democracy since it denies the fundamental principle of democracy, the will of the majority. It is not a step in advance for better government since it greatly increases the stay at home vote which is the chief source of governmental abuse. It has no relation to the principle of taxation without representation since women are today represented even though they cannot vote, and in twenty-seven states today women vote on questions of taxation. Each and every one of these arguments, when considered, fall to the ground without one supporting element. What is involved in this political equality of men and women since women are so eagerly demanding it? There seems to be a good deal of loose thinking on the subject. Most women seem to think that all that will be required is that they shall take a fairly intelligent view of matters political and then go to the polls once a year or so and put a paper in a ballot box. But equal political rights with men means equal participation with men in government, serving on juries, working in caucuses and primaries, campaigning for candidates and for your own election to some political job and manning the polls on election day. To most women such services as these are repugnant and to those who demand the ballot and to many others, there is a feeling that such services as these are not necessarily a part of their participation in politics. But it is as clear as day if we demand the ballot because men have the ballot, it must be on the self same technical qualifications as men receive it and any suffragist who takes any other position is not logical, for she demands the ballot for women because men have it. She must concede that men and women have the same services to perform for the state, and any limitation of those services after the ballot, is a tacit admission that men and women have different services to perform for the state, and the basis of the first demand disappears. I think to do the suffragists credit this is just what they do want, but they are astute enough to see that if they advocated this it would alienate many people who are today strong adherents, and it is only in states where they have voted for a long time that they are just beginning to show what they intend to do when once the break in the dam is made. I am told that in both Colorado and Idaho they are trying to form a woman's party which is opposed to any party in which men have a part and are demanding one-half of the offices of the state.

Moreover, if women demand the ballot to help women or to help society or help anything at all, it is evident that simply voting for candidates will not do it, for how are we to vote for the candidates we want unless these candidates are nominated, and where are they to be nominated except in caucuses and primaries? Even then, how are they to be elected unless we campaign for them and work at the polls on election day for them? Otherwise, we are voting with blind eyes for candidates we have had no hand in selecting, duplicating the votes of men whom the suffragists declare today are not capable of selecting our officials.

Now, we do not claim, as has been said of us, that to go to a polling booth and cast a ballot is in any sense degrading. It is no more evil in its effect or surrounding than to go to the post office and mail a letter, but if we admit that voting is not all of the duty required, the story is different. I have been present in three different cities during an election where women voted. Once in San Francisco, once in Denver and once in Chicago, and I want to say now that the rushing about of women in much haste to get out the vote, the automobile loads of voters—some men, some women—brought to the polls by women workers for rival candidates, the urging and pleading of young women (some of them too young themselves to vote) with all sorts and under all conditions was anything but an edifying spectacle. And anyone who says that this is not done, knows not whereof he speaks. You are told that it is only your sister and your wife or your sweetheart who vote, and they vote with you. That kind of voting is simply duplication of effort without result. But when your wife and your sister and your sweetheart must get out and work at the polls to bring in the vote, as it is called, in order to overcome the influence of the work of those who are hired by selfish and corrupt influences to work at the polls, the sotry is another kind.

We anti-suffragists believe we can best do this work which is ours, untrammelled by political divisions and free from political expedients. We yield nothing to the suffragists in our belief that women should take an interest in public affairs. We do not believe, as the suffragists tell. You think our influence should be entirely bounded by the four walls of home, by our social circle or by our church. We believe it should be felt in all our philanthropies and civic movements, especially in our schools and universities, but we do not believe, as the suffragists do, that this work will be better accomplished if we become involved in the political divisions and political affiliations as men are today. We believe that women working along other lines, can and have accomplished more for the good of human kind than if they, too, must work through the ballot as men do.

As a matter of fact, progress is today carrying philanthropic and educational matters into higher fields of moral action, and in so doing is carrying it away from and above the plane on which rests the ballot box. The effort of the suffragist is to put all these matters back into politics, while the trend of legislation is to take them out of po politics. Philanthropic and educational matters are being removed more and more from the fluctuations and uncertainties of party action, and are being taken away from a sphere in which women are most helpless into that sphere where women have the most influence.

So far as the law goes, we have enough laws now to sink the ship of state. There is nothing more helpless in a free country than the written law which has not back of it the power of public opinion. The power of public opinion is greater than the power of the ballot. The creation of the former is largely in the hands of women today, while the latter is largely in the hands of men.

But you say, why can't wo do both. Create public opinion and then enact that public opinion into law. Will we vote for measures and not for men? Each of us would believe that the man who represented our party would bring about the things which we most desired and we would find that the efforts which we put forth when we were not divided by party politics, would be rendered largely ineffective by our division at the polls. You say all good women would vote together. Let us see. In the fall of 1913, three men were striving for the highest office in the gift of the people. A certain philanthropist of Chicago, who has accomplished tremendous good for the betterment of human kind and for whose work none has a greater admiration than I, a woman whose work has thus far been accomplished without the ballot and it is said even by her suffragist friends that her partisan politics has inspired that magnificent work, seriously this lady said.

"I want all the good laws I can get for the good of human kind and especially for women and children, but I know of only one man who can bring about the things I most desire, and that is Theodore Roosevelt." And in New York was another lady, Mrs. Borden Harriman, who has also done a great work for humanity along slightly different lines but quite as effective as the work of Miss Addams, and Mrs. Harriman said, "I want all the good legislation that Miss Addams wants but Theodore Roosevelt will never bring it about. I know of only one man who can and that is Woodrow Wilson;" and then there is Miss Helen Biswell in New York. She is also a philanthropic worker and she says she wants exactly the same reforms that Miss Addams and Mrs. Harriman advocate, but she says neither Woodrow Wilson nor Theodore Roosevelt can bring them about; there is only one man who can bear the banner of righteousness to the White House and that is William Howard Taft. And, so these three women, although agreed as to what the world needed, could not agree as to who could best bring about those needs. If enfranchised, we will divide.

If women could forget their political antagonisms—and let me say there are greater antagonisms in states where they vote than in states where they do not vote—if they could forget their political antagonisms and join hands for the good of human kind, they could bring about a wave of regulation that would go a long way toward solving the problem we face today.

The suffragists tell you that the ballot is a symbol of liberty, I ask you to consider that it is a symbol of something greater, the symbol of disinterested service. Think what it means to the deeper and the more spiritual life of the state that it holds within its ranks bands of devoted workers who are giving of their best for the love of the faith that is within them without one thought of profit or reward. We say it is an ugly game when played by men, but it is an abominable game when played by women. The suffragists say that all efforts to purify politics without the ballot are indirect and therefore useless, and the suffragists of New York have circulated and signed a pledge known as the will and wont pledge which reads: I will not give money or service to any cause whatsoever until the women of the state of New York are enfranchised, and there is not a philanthropy in the state that has not felt the loss of both members and contributions on this account. If they go on withdrawing from these betterment movements, they will finally be entirely supported by anti-suffragists. But is the charge that all other efforts except the ballot are indirect and useless true? The history of what has been accomplished by women in the states where they do not vote but have worked through other ways and those states where they have worked through the ballot, disproves the claim of indirect and useless effort. There has not been a single law placed on the statute books of any suffrage state for the betterment of human kind that cannot be met by laws equally as good, if not better, in states of like geographical situation and industrial development. There is not a law for the protection of the young child who works, on statute books of any state, placed there since women could vote in that state, that cannot be met by laws equally as good and in many cases better, in adjoining male suffrage states. The eight hour law for women in Colorado, which does not prohibit night labor and has no limit placed on the hours per week is in no way comparable with the nine hour law of Nebraska, which limits the hours per week to fifty-four and which since 1901 has prohibited night work for women.

Two years ago, Congressman at large Taylor from Colorado issued a pamphlet on the laws of that state, reciting 150 laws passed by the legislature since women suffrage had been in force. But every law of a remedial character can be found in most of the male suffrage states, and Nebraska not only meets them all but can place some 12 additional laws in the measure to heap it up. So that all which Colorado has been struggling toward with the aid of the women's votes—to which all of its success has been attributed by representatives of the suffrage cause—has been done earlier, better, more thoroughly, apparently more permanently, by a state where suffrage is neither on trial or apparently greatly desired.

The National Child Labor Committee has prepared a model child labor law for uniform legislation. It followed the principle of embodying in the text the best provision contained in the laws of the various states. The bill contains forty-nine sections and the following table shows the number of these model provisions already enacted in the suffrage states and those of similar locality and conditions:

Colorado, 7; Utah, 9; California, 12; North Dakota, 15; Wisconsin, 27; Minnesota, 20; Nebraska, 25; Wisconsin, 27.

I heard a suffragist say one day that if women had the ballot the disastrous fire of the Triangle Shirt Waist factory never would have occurred, and yet there were as many voters and prospective voters in that shop as there were women and girls. At another time, I heard a suffragist speaking in Rutgers Square to the shirtwaist strikers, and she said, "Girls, if you could vote you wouldn't have to strike." Yet 40 per cent of these strikers were men; 60 per cent of the women who struck were under 21 years and 25 per cent of those old enough to vote had not been in the country long enough to gain a residence. Such statements as these unrefuted, go far to impress a people either too indifferent or too busy to investigate their truth.

You say it will raise wages for women? Well, it hasn't done so. Dr. Helen Summer who was sent by the College Equal Suffrage Association to study conditions under woman suffrage in Colorado, says: "Taking public employment as a whole, women receive considerably less remuneration than men in Colorado." It is the same story of supply and demand in the commercial world, and suffrage has nothing to do with the wages either of men or women. And a New York suffragist has promised that when women vote, the first thing the women do will be to repeal the law of supply and demand.

There is just one thought that I would like to bring to your attention. Of the 7,000,000 of women engaged in gainful pursuits in 1910, only 23 per cent were employed in factories or shops where by any possibility they could come under the labor law, but 40 per cent, or nearly one-half, were to be found in women's kitchens where women could have raised their wages, diminished their hours of toil and made every condition surrounding them perfect without appeal to the ballot or legislation, and yet domestic servants are deserting the kitchens right along to work in factories where, according to the suffragists, the hours are long and the wages are low and conditions most unsanitary. I wonder why! I wonder why! We talk a lot of what we will do for the factory girl when we get the ballot and forget to help the girl that works in our kitchen. Why? Because it is so much easier to clean our neighbor's doorstep than our own; because it is much easier to run to the ballot box and feel that we have discharged all our duty to humanity than it is to study these problems intelligently, to grapple with them, to show patience and sympathy and the love for humankind which is necessary for their proper solution. I get little light on the wrongs of wage earning women that can be cured by the ballot. Wage earning women have wrongs but so do wage earning men, and until the ballot in the hands of men has done away with long hours, unsanitary conditions and low pay, until all conditions surrounding men's labor are made perfect, until men's labor unions and strikes are needless, let no one persuade you that all these things will be made perfect for women as soon as they can run down town and vote.

The suffragists declare that women need the vote in order to secure better laws for their protection; that women are unjustly discriminated against under man made laws, and that with the ballot all these indiscriminations would disappear. As a matter of fact, today women have a little the best of it under the law, whether they are property owning women or wage earning women and 90 per cent of us prefer the privileges women today enjoy. When our government was founded, we took for our law the old English common law as the best statutes then extant with the promise that they should be changed to meet the changing civilization, and they have been changed from time to time and in no respect has that change been greater than in the laws for the protection of women, both property owning women and wage earning women.

Rhode Island lead in this reform for property rights of women. In 1841, some seven years before the woman suffrage movement was formulated, Rhode Island passed a bill giving to married women control of their own property. In 1844, this bill was further amended so that the earnings of a married woman were secured to her absolutely and could not be taken for the support of the family or for her husband's debts. In 1845, Massachusetts followed with a similar law, and in 1848 New York with a still better and more liberal law.

It is impossible to follow in detail the history of the law in each state, but in practically all of the states this law gives to the wife the sole ownership of her property as if she were unmarried. It cannot be required either for the husband's debts or for the support of the family. In 17 states, only one of which is a suffrage state, the wife's deed is good without her husband's signature, which means that she may sell every dollar of her property and squander the money without the knowledge of her husband, but her husband cannot similarly sell one dollar of his property without the signature of the wife.

There are, no doubt, some wrongs that still exist on statute books, but even in these cases the administration of the law universally protects her. And what are the wrongs of women of property that are not more than met by discriminations in her favor? I know that a man must support his wife, but a woman, even when a woman of property, is not compelled to support her worthless husband. I know that a poor man must pay the debts of his extravagant wife, but a woman, even when a woman of property, is not compelled to pay the debts of her indigent husband. In divorce, a man may be compelled to pay alimony, a woman never. Now with the ballot all these things are to be equalized. Is that what we want? Ten per cent of the women say yes but ninety per cent of us say no. It is true that the law makes the husband the head of the house, but what does he give in exchange? Why he must support his family and if he does not, he gets into jail and is sent to the rock pile. Are not those who demand exact equality trying to jump out of the frying pan into the fire?

Neither can it be said that woman suffrage has helped things much for women in suffrage states. In three of the four suffrage states where women have voted long enough to have affected the result, a husband may sell all his property not homesteaded and squander the money without the knowledge of his wife. In Idaho all rents and profits from the wife's separate property are community property and absolutely under the control of the husband. In two of the suffrage states, a wife is equally responsible with the husband for the expense of the household. In Colorado under certain circumstances, a woman must support her husband. I don't know as that is a bad law, and in Utah, as everyone knows, six men have been granted divorces on the ground of non-support.

No argument has won more adherents to the cause of woman suffrage than the belief that it would solve the saloon evil. The W. C. T. U. has endorsed woman suffrage and yet the W. C. T. U. published a map in which the states are black and gray and white according to the weakness or strength of the liquor laws. The suffrage states are for the most part black. Los Angeles with 2,000 more women than men of voting age, defeated prohibition by 14,000 majority. Pasadena, saloonless throughout its history, voted in the saloons at the first election held after women voted. I do not for one moment believe that is because women are less inclined to temperance legislation than men, but the idea prevalent among women and fostered by the advocates of women suffrage, that women can vote or not as they see fit, has much to do with it. The women who are to be found in opposition to the forces of evil some times divide on the best method of controlling the saloon evil, but more often they are not sufficiently aroused to cast their votes at all, but the saloon element always awake to the advantage to be gained, marshal their hosts without the loss of a single vote. They add to this force those women who can be persuaded to vote for them for the price of a hat or an automobile ride and overwhelm a larger electorate which is unorganized and only partially represented. Eleven male suffrage states went dry before a single woman suffrage state was thus enrolled. It is said that 1000 saloons in Illinois were closed by the women's vote. But on the same day 406 saloons were closed in Minnesota by men's votes and on the basis of population, Minnesota had the best of it. Last fall, two states, the wettest in the United States, carried for woman suffrage, but North Dakota, a prohibition state for twenty-five years, defeated it. We are told that 90 per cent of Wyoming is dry. But there are only 50,000 people in Wyoming living in dry territory, and 13,000 of these are Indians living on reservations made dry by the government. 90 per cent of the territory of Wyoming is dry, but that 90 per cent is occupied by cattle and they don't drink whiskey.

I have a sister living in Colorado who was a watcher at the polls in the spring of 1910 when the saloon element by a vote of 2 to 1, over one-half of whom were women, voted down all restriction to the low vile grogeries that now flourish in Denver. She told me that there were 7 women and 2 men watchers in the employ of the liquor interests. The women told her they were getting from $10 to $25 a day according to their experience. When she expressed surprise that women should be selected for this kind of work, they told her that women were considered better "vote getters" than men. "If we go out in an automobile we can come back with a full load every time." And she said they did and that they took them up to the door of the polling booth and gave their instructions from a ballot pinned on the door. She said she stood it as long as she could and then she went to a policeman and said, "Mr. Officer, those women are breaking the law. I have to stand a hundred feet away." He replied, "Aw! I know it lady but what can one man do with a bunch of women," which was true enough.

The American Republic depends for its existence and its greatness upon the virtue and ability of American womanhood. If our ideals are mistaken and unworthy, then there will be ultimately no republic for men to govern and defend. When women are Budahists, men build an empire of India. When women are Mohammedans, men build an empire of Turkey. When women are Christians, men can conceive and bring into being a republic like the United States. Woman is to implant the faith. Man is to cause the nation's faith to show in work. Woman suffrage seeks to sweep away this national distinction and make humanity a mass of individuals with an indiscriminate sphere. The majority of women have no sympathy with this movement and in the consistent wisdom of our men lies the hope of defeating this unpatriotic and unjustifiable assault upon the sane integrity of the American Republic.

On request of Klinker of Crawford, unanimous consent having been granted, House File No. 232 was withdrawn from the committee on judiciary and from the further consideration of the House.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Feb. 22, 1915.

To the President of the Senate and the Speaker of House of Representatives of Iowa Legislature, Des Moines, Iowa:

GENTLEMEN—The soldiers of Iowa have for many years endeavored to have a new location selected for the Iowa Soldiers' Monument. They have for years been before the Iowa legislature, but failed to obtain any action until the passage of the law for the extension of the capitol grounds, which provided for its location in the middle of Capitol avenue, two blocks east of the Capitol.

This is an ideal location, and will give the monument a proper surrounding and a commanding appearance, and do away with the general criticism of the present location, which has also caused many criticisms on the monument itself.

The veterans supposed that the extension act authorized the monument's removal, and at the State National Encampment of the G. A. R. at Des Moines, they passed a resolution approving of the law passed by the legislature. And at the second grand reunion of the soldiers of Iowa last May, I explained to them the action of the legislature, and pointed out the new location, and they unanimously and with great applause also approved of the new location, many of them visiting the Capitol and examining the plans.

We supposed the extension act gave full authority for the removal of the monument to the new location; but the Governor thinks that it needs an affirmation of the legislature, directing its removal to the place designated in the capitol extension plans.

And I ask, in compliance with the wishes and action of the Iowa veterans, that the legislature pass such an act as is necessary to insure the immediate removal of the monument to its new location.

My health is such that it does not permit me to visit the Capitol, and I submit this appeal to the legislature by letter, feeling and knowing it is only necessary to explain to the legislature the present condition and necessity, for them to act.

I am respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

GRENVILLE M. DODGE.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 10.

JOINT RESOLUTION Agreeing to a Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Iowa, Providing for the Initiative and Referendum, with Reference to the Enactment of Laws and Amendments to the Constitution.

WHEREAS, by House Joint Resolution No. 5 of the resolutions of the thirty-fifth General Assembly, which resolution was approved April 17, 1913, an amendment to the constitution of the state of Iowa was proposed, and

WHEREAS, the said proposed amendment was agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the House of Representatives of the said thirty-fifth General Assembly, and entered upon its journal at pages 1413, 1414 and 1415 thereof, and was also agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate of said General Assembly, and entered upon its journal at pages 2175, 2176, 2177 and 2178 thereof, and,

WHEREAS, the said resolution has been published as provided by law and has now been referred to this the Thirty-fifth General Assembly. Now, therefore,

Be It Resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

That the proposed amendment to the constitution of the state of Iowa, as contained in and proposed by the said House Joint Resolution No. 5 of the resolutions of the thirty-fifth General Assembly, which resolution, including its title, was and is in words and figures as follows, to-wit:

“Joint resolution to amend the constitution relating to legislative authority; providing for the initiative and referendum with reference to the enactment of laws, or laws enacted by the general assembly, and amendments to the constitution.

Be It Resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

That the following, designated as section one (1), be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to section one (1), of article (III) of the legislative department of the constitution of the state of Iowa, which, when agreed to by this, the thirty-fifth general assembly, shall be referred to the thirty-sixth general assembly and, if by it agreed to, shall be referred to the qualified electors of the state of Iowa, and, if approved and ratified by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon, it shall be valid as a part of the constitution of the state of Iowa, as amended, and when said section one (1), of article (III) of the legislative department is so amended, it shall read as follows:

SECTION 1. The legislative authority of this state shall be vested in a general assembly which shall consist of a senate and house of representatives, and the style of every law shall be, “Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa”, but the people reserve unto themselves the right and power to propose laws, to enact, approve or reject the same at the polls, independent of the general assembly, and reserve the right and power to approve or reject any item, section or part of any act enacted by the general assembly, except otherwise provided by this section.

The general assembly shall fix the number of qualified electors required to propose the enactment of any proposed law, which shall not be less than twelve (12%) per cent nor more than twenty-two (22%) per cent of the qualified electors of each of the congressional districts of the state. Every law proposed by the people shall be presented by petition, signed by the required number of qualified electors, addressed to and filed with the secretary of state not less than one hundred and fifty (150) days before the general election at which the proposed law shall be submitted. The petition shall contain the full text of the proposed law, with title and enacting clause.

If the proposed measure be to enact a law, the enacting clause shall be as follows: “Be it enacted by the people of the state of Iowa.”

The right and power to initiate and enact laws shall be restricted within the same constitutional limitation as apply to the general assembly.

The required number of qualified electors required to exercise the right and power to require an act passed by the general assembly to be referred for approval or rejection shall be fixed by the general assembly, but shall not be less than ten (10%) per cent nor more than twenty (20%) per cent of the qualified electors of each of the congressional districts of the state. Petitions therefor shall be addressed to and filed with the secretary of state within ninety (90) days from the final adjournment of the general assembly which passed the act to which the petition is addressed, and shall contain a full text of that part of the act to be referred; but such right and power shall not extend or apply to an act passed by the general assembly relating to the preservation of the public peace, public health or appropriations for the support and maintenance of the department of state and state institutions. All acts, and parts thereof, enacted by the general assembly and submitted to the people shall be and remain in full force and effect until rejected by the people, as herein provided.

Until the general assembly enacts a law fixing the per cent of qualified electors required for petition, the required per cent shall in all cases be fifteen (15%) per cent of the qualified electors of each of the congressional districts of the state.

The whole number of votes cast for secretary of the state at the regular general election last preceding the filing of petition shall be the basis for the number of legal voters required to sign such petition.

The veto power of the governor shall not apply or extend to any measure initiated and enacted by the people.

All measures for proposed laws under the initiative or referred under the referendum shall be submitted to the people for adoption or rejection at the regular biennial election first occurring after the filing of the petition.

All measures for proposed laws under the initiative shall become a law when approved by a majority of the voters whose votes are cast thereon, and shall take effect as hereinafter provided.

Any measure referred under the referendum shall cease to be a law when rejected by a majority of the voters whose votes are cast thereon and proclamation has been made by the governor as hereinafter provided. All proposed laws under the initiative shall take effect and any measure referred under the referendum shall cease to be a law from and after the date of official declaration of the vote thereon by proclamation issued by the governor, which shall be not later than thirty days after the vote has been canvassed by the state canvassing board for that purpose, composed of the governor, secretary of state and attorney general, and certificate thereof made not later than December first following the election.

The petition contemplated by this section shall consist of sheets having such general form, printed or written, as shall be prescribed by the secretary of state, and shall be signed by the required number of qualified electors, in their proper persons only, to which shall be attached the resident addresses of such persons signing the petition and the date of signing. To each of such sheets shall be attached and made a part thereof an affidavit of some qualified elector that each signature thereon is the signature of the person whose name it purports to be, and that, to the best of the knowledge and belief of the affiant, each of the persons signing said petition was, at the time of signing, a qualified elector. Such petition, so verified, shall be prima facie evidence that the signatures thereon are genuine and true, and that the persons signing the same are qualified electors of the state of Iowa.

Immediately upon the filing of a petition for the submission of a proposed law to the voters, the secretary of state shall submit the said proposed law to the supreme court for its opinion upon the constitutionality thereof, which shall be rendered within twenty (20) days, and if the court finds that the proposed measure conflicts with the constitution of the United States or the state of Iowa, the proposed measure shall not be submitted.

Until the general assembly shall provide by law a method of procedure of printing, distributing and submitting proposed measures, the secretary of state shall, ninety (90) days preceding the general election at which the measure will be voted upon, cause to be printed any and all measures for or to which petition has been filed, in pamphlet form, containing the full text thereof, with the title and enacting clause, together with arguments for and against the same, within the limits prescribed by the secretary of state. The number printed shall be not less than one for each voter voting at the last general election preceding the filing of the petition, which shall be delivered to the county auditor of each county.

For each voter in each voting precinct of each political party voting at the last general election, the auditor of each county shall deliver one copy to each precinct committeeman of each political party in the county.

The secretary of state shall submit all measures petitioned for in accordance with the provisions of this section, to the people for adoption or rejection at the polls in compliance herewith; but the right and power reserved to the people shall not operate to deprive or limit the power of the general assembly to enact laws.

If, at an election, conflicting measures submitted to the voters of the state shall be approved by a majority of the votes, severally cast thereon, the measure receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall become law as to all conflicting provisions.

Insofar as applicable, the provisions of this amendment shall govern in the initiative and adoption of amendments to the constitution; provided, however, that no amendment so submitted shall become a part of the constitution until it shall have first received an affirmative majority vote at two successive regular biennial elections, the majority vote at the first of which shall be the authority for preparation of the ballot and re-submission at the second. The word "enacted" shall be replaced by the word "resolved" in the enacting clause when amendments to the constitution are submitted. This section of the constitution shall be, in all respects, self-executive."

He and the same is hereby agreed to, enacted and adopted.

Motion lost and the House refused to recall House File No. 47 from the committee on public health.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE.

The reason I voted "no" is because I consider this a very important political question and the committee should have ample time to consider it.

R. W. ANDERSON.

I voted "no" on the question to recall from the committee on public health House File No. 47 for the reason that the bill will be acted on by the committee and reported to the House in the regular order. I am a member of said committee and owing to requests for public hearings the bill has been delayed. One of the rules of the House is that no bill can be acted on the same day a public hearing is held. We have always granted public hearings on all measures when so desired.

S. H. BAUMAN.

In explanation of my vote on the resolution asking the committee on public health to return to the House the bill known as House File No. 47, I will state that I voted "no" for the reason that the chairman of the committee on public health advised me that his committee has not as yet had sufficient time in which to consider the bill owing to the fact that public hearings on other bills had consumed the time of the committee thus far, and in my judgment the committee is entitled to additional time for the consideration of a measure as important as this seems to be.

W. I. ATKINSON.

JOHN R. MOTT.

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Gentlemen of the Assembly:

I value more highly than I can express this privilege of meeting this body of men of wide outlook and of responsiveness to the highest ideals and purposes that are working in our generation; and it is an added honor to be permitted to come at a time like this when so many men are associating themselves in constructive measures, which have commended, not only the attention, but the sympathetic approval and convictions of discerning men throughout our nation. I confess that my heart beats a little more quickly, and the emotions of patriotism become more intense as I find myself back after varied wanderings in the state with the associations of my boyhood and my young manhood, those never to be forgotten vision-forming and character-building days. And I think, coming back from my work in some forty to forty-five different nations abroad, I have an added appreciation of what is being wrought out in this commonwealth in the upper Mississippi valley. I have often said in other quarters, in my judgment, the hope of the largest measures, for the expansion of the faith and of the principles which we most value in America, lies in the upper Mississippi valley. That has come to me more and more through my world-wide travels; and I ever honor this great commonwealth, from the days when I had the rare privilege of the fellowship and tutelage of Governor William Larrabee, one of the most proficient, wise, constructive and disinterested men in the long line of public characters in this state, and I have ever been proud of the peoples of this state and commonwealth in our nation and in their outreach in the world. In these recent months I had the sacred privilege, as well as the sad privilege, of being in the war zone of Europe; and I will say that I have come back here much older than I was a few months ago. I would be a hypocrite were this not the case. No man could see what I have been obliged to see without being a changed man; and no man could listen to what I have listened and not have the springs of vitality sapped. I have been going to Europe every year for twenty-five years, but I have never known Europe until this time. I have come to see that you cannot know a nation, just as you cannot know an individual, until you see that nation subjected to an impossible strain. Then you see the lines of least resistance; then you become aware of the weaknesses, as well happily, as their strength and power. I have looked into the very soul of the great European peoples, and I say it reverently—"I have entered into fellowship with their sufferings." Naturally I received impressions of them just as you would here of nations at long range. I was impressed in each nation by the fact that the people of that nation are perfectly united. There may be rifts of divisions—in my judgment there are rifts of division beneath the surface—in each nation now at war, but they are not apparent. Everywhere you are impressed with the solidarity of the nations. In France I found Roman Catholics, Jews, Protestants, agnostics, blending their age-long differences in a common loyalty and devotion. In Germany I could hardly believe what I found, in view of my earlier experience, that the democrats and the autocrats of the imperial government, had formed a wondrous unity. So in each of the other nations, I received the impression that in each country the people are not only perfectly united, but absolutely determined. If you ask me to name the nation which gave me evidence of having the least will power, I would be unable to answer your question, because nowhere did I find evidence of flabbiness of will, weakness of purpose, or want of staying power. That lends tragedy to the situation.

Take France. I read a book written by a Roman Catholic ecclesiast, entitled "France Herself Again." The writer was showing how in recent years France has reverted to her best type, and how tremendously the events of the recent months have accentuated his main contention instead of that old emotional, changeable, volatile, talkative France with which you and I are familiar with on earlier visits. I found a people characterized by wonderful poise, calm, not speaking, fixed in their purpose, steady,—but not more than any other nations which I visited on both sides of the struggle. In each country I found the people not only perfectly united and absolutely determined, but fully confident. I did meet here and there a German who doubted as to their success on the sea, but I never met a German who had any doubt whatever as to their success on the land, nor have I since heard of one. In each country I found the people trying to justify their positions before all the other nations of the world, and in particular before the United States of America. They seem to look upon us as a supreme court. And by the way it impressed me with our tremendous responsibility. Among the thousands of conversations which I had with leading men of all these nations, as well as with men in humble walks of life, sooner or later an attempt was made to discover what was the present or probable attitude of the American toward their particular position. When people tell you that this war gives evidence of the breaking down of Christianity, they are not thinking straight. There has been no circumstance which has so revealed the fact that Christianity has been getting in its work. In connection with what previous war or occasion have we had such abundant proof that conscience has been educated, so that today one finds it troubled and seeking to justify itself. And that reminds me that today they are using the phrase "Holy War." If you were to ask me which country regards it as the most holy war, I might say Russia. In all my visits I have been impressed with the thought that the Russian people, as a whole, are among the most religious of people, possibly with the exception of the British Indians. I do not know that I should make that exception. The Russians go literally from their knees to the war.

Likewise in France, how different it seemed, for instead of finding as I have in all my earlier visits, that the educated classes and the governing classes, and the virile men in general, were indifferent concerning religion, this year I found not only the churches and chapels, but the cathedrals, packed to their outer limits, by all classes of men not called to the colors. I had a letter a week ago from a friend in Paris, a prominent representative of the government, who had just come back from the front, investigating a certain department of the war, and he had only one criticism to make, and he is an agnostic: "My only criticism at the front is that our soldiers are becoming too religious."

In Germany, not only on Sundays but on week nights, and often in the day time, you will find the churches and chapels thronged. No regiment thinks of going to the front without the holy sacrament. The song that I heard most, sung by the soldiers of Germany, and they were singing most of the time, was not "Die Wacht am Rhein," not "Deutschland uber Alles," but the Luther Hymn, and my attention was called to the fact of how they repeated over and over again the familiar second verse—you recall it.

The other day, coming down from Manchester, I was talking with an European soldier, invalidated home, as a result of concussion from shell fire. A large number of men are wounded by shell fire. I have read that seventy per cent of the wounded are wounded by shell fire. But indifferent to this, many men, even of the strongest nerves, break down sooner or later, because of this steady shell fire, and are invalidated home or sent back among the reserves for the time being. This was one of those men, a Christian man. He said to me: "It was awfully hard for us in a certain action to turn the machine guns on a German regiment as it came forward, when we got the familiar strains of the Luther Hymn."

The colossal dimensions of this war are everywhere in evidence. It is colossal, gentlemen, when it has called to the colors in the belligerent countries alone a little over twenty millions of men; and if you add the neutral countries where they have been mobilized, nearly four million more in Italy, the Balkan group, Switzerland, Holland and the Scandinavian group, the dimensions become colossal.

I crossed Germany the other day—a beautiful day. The sleeper service had been cut off, and I went all the way through by day. We passed over two hundred thousand soldiers. I was reminded of what Bismarck once said, that Germany will have three armies, one on the East, one on the West, and one on the Eisenbahn. Germany seems to move whole divisions in this war to the French and Polish borders, six hundred miles, with the same facility as in earlier wars they moved regiments from one position to another.

It is a costly war. Part of the time I was in Germany I was the guest of the under secretary of the finance department of the imperial government, a friend of mine of many years standing. I have come to the conclusion, and I have no reason to change my opinion, that the actual daily expenses for purely military and naval purposes, since August first, in all the nations combined that are now at war, has been a little over thirty-seven million dollars gold, and some estimates are over fifty million dollars, and that is the smallest part of it. If you add the work of demolition in northern France, as one sees it everywhere in Belgium, still more in Poland, where over twelve thousand towns and villages have been utterly destroyed, then in Galacia, on the eastern borders of Prussia and in Russia, the price mounts. Then when you remember that nearly all of the armies outside of the British Isles are prescriptive, that is that all peasants, bankers, doctors, lawyers, wealthy men, are invariably summoned to the ranks, and that you take out the productive, the constructive, the most virile, the most purposeful, and the best equipped men, the price mounts.

While crossing Germany the other day, where in my earlier visits to Westphalia I had known Breslau as a manufacturing town and where I had seen dense clouds of smoke from the factories, only one chimney remained in operation, and that was industrially connected with the war. In northern France I found that the provinces that produced more manufactured products than all the rest of France, were tied up absolutely. Belgium, the most highly organized industrial nation of the world, was tied up absolutely. In England, a little further removed from the center of the war zone, the great industries have been paused. Then when you think of our own nation, and every other neutral country, where you can point to activities that have been brought to a halt by this war, the price mounts. And if you add what it costs to produce a man and bring him up to the point where he is shot dead, and realize that over seven hundred thousand men have been killed, you begin to get a larger conception of the price that is being paid. Did I say seven hundred thousand? The number now is considerably over a million slain. When I called on our ambassador, Mr. Page, in London, I mentioned this to him, and he said "When a man says a village contains seven hundred inhabitants, I can take that in. If here is a division which had seventy thousand and at the end there are only thirty-two thousand left, I can comprehend that, for I lived in a village about that size. But when you come in and tell me seven hundred thousand have been killed, I cannot take it in." But, gentlemen, I begin to take it in.

The first home I visited in Europe was one in Germany. My host said thirty-one of his family had been called to the war, and that nine of the thirty-one had been killed. And the last home that I visited was Lord Balfour of Burleigh. He thought his older son was captured, but he learned that he had been killed five weeks before. He received a letter of condolence while I was there. As he read he choked up and he said "Mott, finish it for me." So it was, going from one house to another in Europe.

It is a suffering Europe. Before I left there over three million had been wounded. A large portion have what they call clean wounds, and are therefore patched up and sent into the fight again, but making all allowance for this, the numbers which have been added since I left,—I am well within the facts, as I can prove,—make nearly four millions of wounded. Can we take that in? A friend of mine in eight days counted in Belgium one hundred fifty-one railway trains, averaging twenty railway carriages each, or over three thousand railway cars, filled with the German wounded, moving eastward. It reminded me of rivers of pain. When I was at the seat of the great German gunworks, I found that all through trains to Berlin run in two sections. There are similar trains in Austria-Hungary. I have seen those rivers of pain in France, and there are more of those trains in Russia than in any other country in this war. I have seen them in England.

The other day in Paris a friend of mine took me to the French lines. We went through the beautiful valley of the Marne, to the valley of the Aisne, within sound of the great guns by the trenches. I counted the fifteenth hospital,—there are more than that,—and I saw the rivulets and the gushing torrents coming out,—rivers of pain. But there is another kind of pain over there; it is that dull pain, that insistent pain, that pain ever present in every conscious moment, and therefore working in the unconscious moment that causes mothers, daughters, sisters, even little children, to start in the night.

In Berlin every German state has a foreign office, and by going to this office you may receive advance intelligence regarding the casualties. We came by the military college. They brought me into a room almost like this, and the first thing that I saw was this sign "Walk Softly, Speak Softly." One one side of the room was an alphabetical list, and a man could go forward, point to a certain letter and find out things in advance. Women came with children clinging to their skirts. A friend told me that the other day a young German wife came to the station to bid farewell to her husband. She did not weep; she even tried to cheer him. The train left the station, and she fell dead on the platform. It was this fortitude, this repression, this bearing the cross that got into my consciousness. Truly it is a suffering Europe. It is stretched on a cross; but thank God it is an unselfish Europe.

I was expecting to enter into a difficult negotiation on the continent, and Mr. Page suggested that I ask certain people for help. I asked Mr. Page if it would not be a difficult thing for me to secure help from strangers, and he said "You will not find a selfish man or woman in Europe." I suppose they do not think it out, but if they do they probably think it this way: "While millions are stretched on beds of pain, God help us to do something to help relieve the strain and suffering."

I reached Holland two days after the fall of Antwerp. They had already taken in over one million Belgian refugees. They were not complaining; they were not boasting of their lot; they were rising to the occasion. I have never seen a whole nation unselfish before. Town after town had more Belgian refugees in it than Dutch. I went into a Belgian village and they were bringing in cans of milk and placing them down that the refugees might have their milk without price. Before I left England they were arriving in that country eight or nine thousand a day, and the English, Welsh and Scotch were eager to get them. They had given over twenty million dollars for benevolent funds, and have given vastly more since. Imagine my feelings when I landed in New York, when I saw in the New York Times that up to that time our aggregate gifts had been one or two million dollars. We have been doing better recently. Thank God that we have raised it to about twelve million dollars. We are beginning to get under the load.

What are the effects of this war? No doubt you have read them between the lines. Gentlemen, you cannot spend each day for purely military and naval purposes, more than all the Protestants, Roman Catholics and missionary societies in the world are spending in a year on the expansion of the Christian religion, without cutting into the present and future resources of civilization; and you cannot turn the machine guns on the most virile men of the strongest nations of Europe, and keep them turned one,—they do not stop, it is a solid siege; they have spent more days fighting than we did in the Civil war. My friend in Paris said we make sixty thousand bullets per day, and we use fifty thousand per day. Something leads me to believe that this war will not last beyond another winter. There has been a little more than forty thousand men a day killed, wounded and imprisoned, more nearly forty-five thousand. You cannot stand this shell fire indefinitely.

I had a letter from this friend asking if we might not have some men from the neutral countries who might form plans for peace.

I said that would be possible if we could assemble the right men. and if they could command the confidence of all the belligerent countries. I said a second thing essential is, that we would have to wait until the psychological moment comes. It is coming, but I added that they have got to suffer more. I do not like to say it; I do not want to say it, but it is my belief now.

It was a sad night in Germany to see four hundred eighty thousand in their new uniforms. They distributed these beautiful boys twenty years of age to the two fronts, and put them in with the veterans, and there they were mowed down like wheat. And it brought tears to my eyes in England and Scotland, to see the flower of those British Isles sent to certain death, to a disproportionately large measure. The man who says these are not adverse results is thinking superficially. They are cutting down the leaders, not only of the present but of the next generation.

I am grateful to add there are favoring considerations in connection with this war. One is, that this war has demonstrated, as nothing else has done, the strength of the international Christian bonds, as manifested in movements like the Y. M. C. A., the Students' Christian movement and the missionary movement. During my twenty-five years trips over there I have built up an acquaintance of thousands in those countries, including leaders, and therefore I can bring you accurate word that I know by name men who have the confidence of millions in each of these countries, who have entered into an agreement that in these Christian enterprises, after they have fought out as citizens their political differences, they will instantly resume constructive co-operation after the war.

I have seen the greatest miracle that the world has ever seen. "Behold how these Christians love one another." I know people on both sides of this struggle. By what they are doing behind each others backs, I know that there is something in the world that Christ released when he said "Love your enemies." I do not find it springing up from any other source.

Another favoring consideration is, that it is revealing the helpfulness of international bonds. How I have seen the strong nations helping the weak nations. I have seen the neutral countries springing to the relief of the belligerent countries. The little countries put us to shame: Switzerland, Holland, Denmark.

Another favoring consideration is, that it is revealing the necessity for those international Christian bonds. This war will not be followed by over forty years of international revenge as in the Franco-Prussian war; neither will it be followed, as in our Civil war, by the division of whole churches, which are still rent in twain. It will be followed by an instant rebuilding of the great international structure.

Another favoring consideration is, that this war is revealing the shortcomings of the nations, and it is always well to know our shortcomings. This reflection is with me, gentlemen, by day and by night. What might we not have done if all leading citizens of our nation, in common with the other nations, had been busy throwing down strands of international friendship, busy magnifying the good points of other nations, busy moulding right attitudes between nations and other peoples! Would we have drifted to these rocks? Certainly not. We will not drift to them again, if I understand the nations today.

Another favoring consideration is, that it has revealed the capacities for vicariousness, for suffering, for sacrifice and a heroism of which we have not dreamed. I have been criticized for saying that it will take twenty thousand of the best young men and women from our colleges to evangelize the world in this generation. You will never hear me make such a low estimate. In Canada, in three of their greatest universities, half of the students have volunteered. Before I left England, fifty-six per cent of the students, and sixty-six per cent of the Christian students, and ninety per cent of the officers of the Christian Associations, had volunteered. Gentlemen, we have not been putting hard enough things on the students. There is a danger of bringing up another soft generation, in ease and extravagance. It is time to appeal to the heroic. They will respond, and we will save our nation, and we will take our part in the world's work. This war is trying the faith of men by fire. I come to you to say that faith is being purified, that superstition is being burned out. Men are not believing as many things, but the things they do believe are the things that count. The faith of Europe is being rebuilt as never before, not on a vague, shadowy influence, but on the Lord Jesus Christ.

Another favoring consideration is that this war is revealing the unparalleled opportunity for helpfulness and reconstruction. A year ago when I returned from the old world, I said in Iowa what I never thought I would live to say, that Egypt, Russia and Turkey are now plastic. And I say that Europe is now in the melting pot.

I spent a day with President Wilson not long ago, and in answer to his inquiry as to the outcome of the war, I said: "Mr. President, as your faith, so be it unto you." And by you I meant America. When this war is over, the nations now engaged in it will be exhausted economically, exhausted vitally, and I am afraid I must say exhausted largely in hope, in faith, in courage. Then America, with unspent energies, with the spirit of prophecy, with courage, not afraid of her strength, not afraid of her idealism, if she is sufficiently unselfish, may help meet, as we have never dreamed, even in the days of our fathers, the needs of the nations. May we not be found wanting at a time like this, when whole nations are stretched on a Calvary cross. How uncourageous it would be for America to drift into zones of selfishness. Rather may she preserve a true neutrality. Keep her moral powder dry until the psychological moment, and then not be afraid of her destiny.

Ring of Linn moved that the joint convention be now dissolved.

Motion prevailed and the joint convention was dissolved.

House reconvened.

On motion of Klinker of Crawford the House adjourned until 9 a. m. Wednesday.

SENATOR FRAILEY.

Mr. President, Members of the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association, Members of the Joint Assembly, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In my endeavor to carry out the commission which you have so kindly entrusted to me today I shall not hope to rise to the exalted station demanded by this occasion, and yet I hope that my shortcomings will be attributed to the head and not to the heart. I cannot quite understand why I was selected to make this address. I say this, because these visiting lawmakers do not understand the situation. I understood that the address was to be made by a lawmaker. I want to state frankly that I am not a lawmaker. I think that about seventy-five per cent of the bills that I voted for have been defeated and about seventy-five per cent of the measures that I voted against have been passed and will become a law.

It is no small honor to welcome here these legislators of the past generation who have made the history of this state,—they and their predecessors who have given to us of this generation and to the future that which we so proudly call the history of Iowa, and gentlemen, it is a marvelous history that you have given us, this history of our state, a history whose title page is written in the blood of sacrifice, a history of a powerful people who, in less than half a century overran this domain between the Missouri and the Mississippi rivers; the history of a people who, standing steadfast to the ideals that inspired the pilgrim fathers at Plymouth Rock. standing steadfast to the ideals that made those starving regiments in rags, barefoot in the snows of winter, immortal at Valley Forge; standing steadfast to the ideals that made Yorktown a possibility and Appamattox a certainty. In this state of Iowa in the very heart of the Mississippi valley they have built up this commonwealth that today more nearly reflects the fundamental ideals of our fathers than does that of any other state in the union; a history of soldiers and of sailors who, in field and flood and savage wilderness, have borne the flag triumphant even to the gates of the sunset; a history of statesmen who, in the wisdom of their legislating, have guided themselves to majesty and might; a history of seers and prophets and historians who have given to the early generations of the earth a haven and a hope; a history of a state whose cradle song was the confluent murmur of two of the greatest rivers on this continent, whose constitution is the guaranty of civil and religious liberty to all mankind, the stamp of whose imperishable knighthood is noble, honest toil and whose crowned jewels are a Kirkwood and a Larabee, an Allison, a Dolliver, a Gear and a Harlan, and gentlemen, with all this marvelous history behind us, we are prompted in this generation to more strenuous endeavor, more glorious achievement. It is indeed eminently fitting and proper that we of this Thirty-sixth General Assembly should set aside this morning to do honor to you men of the generations past.

The study of the beginnings of representative government, no matter in what part of the world, seem to me to be the most interesting study that can attract the human intellect, notwithstanding that so much of it is legendary and so obviously false, and I have sometimes wished that some great historian, some divinely gifted man or woman might write down for us the marvelous history of the beginning of this state of Iowa, might take us back to the beginning of things, might show us the people and the pioneers of those early days, the houses in which they lived, the languages they spoke, and their lives as they lived them, for, gentlemen, it is a marvelous study, the early history of this state, and the significant thing to us today is, that it was you pioneer lawmakers and the generation that preceded you, beginning away back in the first territorial legislature in Burlington, coming on to Iowa City and then to Des Moines; it was these early pioneer lawmakers who laid deep and firm and true the foundation stones upon which we are building today and upon which the generations of the future will build tomorrow.

And so, gentlemen, it is not only the past that belongs to you, but the future as well, you who have been the moulders of our future, and it takes no prophet's vision to behold the future of this glorious state of ours, to see the home of the happy millions of people who rise up every morning to vast hives of industry and thrift; her country side the treasure vault from which her wealth is drawn, her streams everywhere buzzing with the whirr and hum of the wheel and the shuttle, her fields tranquil in the white and gold of the harvest, her hilltops resound with the music of the bells as her flocks and herds go forth from the folds; her rulers honest and her people contented; her homes happy and her hearthstones bright and her conscience clean. Peace and sobriety walking hand in hand in her borders; honor in her midst, straight and simple faith in the hearts and the faces of her sons and daughters and sunshine everywhere and all the time. That, gentlemen, is the Iowa that you pioneer lawmakers have given to us and to the future, and now, makers of our past, moulders of our future, on behalf of this Thirty-sixth General Assembly I bid you welcome to the fellowship and deliberation of this occasion.

HON. G. L. LOBSON.

Mr. President and Members of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly:

I haven't words sufficient to thank you for the address of welcome that has been tendered the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association. Go back, as we did yesterday, to the time when Iowa was a territory, when the western part of Iowa was part of the great American desert, and then as we come on down, there are men here who helped plan and lay the very foundation of this great state, as the Senator spoke of, men who could surely look a long way into the future when they planned this beautiful capitol. Go back for a half century in Iowa, and who could ever have dreamed that the time would come within a half century when we would stand first and foremost of all the states in the union in regard to agricultural products.

Friends, I am informed that I have just five minutes and so I will have to condense what I have to say, but we do thank you people for this address of welcome. We did what we could in our ways many years ago to build for the future, and yet what little conception we had of what was coming. I remember only eighteen years ago as a member of the executive council of the state we had turned over to us by the Genral Assembly of that time fifty thousand dollars which we were instructed to spend for the building of a complete historical building and buy the grounds besides, and when we met to spend that money we said we did not know how to spend it, and so we refused to spend a dollar and waited until the next legislative assembly came and then the beautiful west wing of the present building was put up. In all cases where money has been spent in Iowa for public buildings, homes for the unfortunate, schools of every class, criticism was made at the time, but, friends, there isn't an intelligent man in Iowa today who would want one stone taken out of that building and put a poorer stone in its place or have the least part of one of those buildings taken down.

We have but little conception, friends, of what Iowa has in store for her. I go back in my early days when you could get a homestead in north-western Iowa where there was no railroad, for a very small figure. When land came to ten dollars an acre we thought it had about reached the limit, but yet, friends, in my judgment, in the next ten years you will see land go to five hundred dollars an acre, and you want to look ahead and build with that in view. Nothing is too good for Iowa, and I am glad, friends, to meet with a body of men at a time when the day of partisanship is gone. Thank God. Back in my day no measure of importance came up scarcely in regard to the common welfare of the people but that it was made a partisan measure and it was fought out on partisan lines, but today, gentlemen, when I come to look into the faces of the men of both great political parties and see you standing shoulder to shoulder, battling for the interests of common humanity, battling for the best there should be in Iowa, friends, I thank God that I have been permitted to see this day, when I can look into the faces of the men who are doing the very best they can for the good of humanity from the very lowest strata of society, for the cast out, to lift them up and give them a chance in this great magnificent state.

As we come here to spend these few moments Iowa is continually marching on; she is at the forefront; she should be at the forefront, and when men come to Des Moines from the remotest parts of the state in the next ten years they will behold the most magnificent grounds surrounding any capitol in the union, and I am glad I had a part in making it the most beautiful spot on all this continent, and you will be proud of the day and we as old members of the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association are perfectly willing to pay whatever taxes you think are necessary for us to pay to carry out this great program for a larger Iowa and a greater Iowa.

And again, friends, just a word more. You are on the right track. And oh! friends, when it is possible to forget that we belong to parties when we are battling for the good of humanity, it is a wonderful thing. You could not have been made to believe that ten years or twenty years ago, but it is on hand now. You have great plans here for the future bettering of Iowa in every part of it and you are going on with them. This broad, healthy spirit has gone out from this state, reaching every other state. Men say in Maine, "I would like to come to Iowa, for there they are planning great things for the future." Down south they say, "I like to come to Iowa, as I have heard them say that their men are planning great things for the future." And so, friends, do not be afraid of the critic that will come up and assail you. I remember when we built the wall around the state house that a great howl went up because we were spending the people's money, and so it will come up on all great questions. Look at what is for the best interests of the future and you will be glad you served in the Thirty-sixth General Assembly.

SENATOR CHASE.

Mr. President, Gentlemen of the Association:

I am very glad, indeed, to assist in tendering a welcome to the Pioneer Lawmakers of Iowa. It gives me greater pleasure because I believe that I am eligible to a membership in the association. I had the honor to serve in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth General Assemblies as a member of the House. I came back after an interval of twenty years as a member of the Senate. I intended to come back sooner, but with some assistance I kept putting it off. However, when after this lapse of years I returned to the capitol, I saw some ancient landmarks. I recognized on the calendar the old repeal of the labor exemption, which was on the calendar when I was here. I remembered a few familiar faces among the doorkeepers, and occasionally I would see a lady committee clerk, which like the college widow had withstood all changes and was still smilingly on the job. But that which impressed me most was a matter which was referred to by the eloquent speaker who has just addressed you. When I became first a member of the Twenty-third General Assembly, it was the occasion of the famous deadlock. There was a tense feeling of political excitement. The republicans sat on one side and the democrats on the other, and they were equally divided. And the feeling ran so high that no pairs could be arranged, and it is a fact that members were brought in on stretchers in order to answer to roll call so that no advantage could be taken, and it was six weeks before any organization was made.

On my return I find there is practically no political alignment. There are democrats and republicans as formerly, but it is largely a descriptive term. It is put into what has been called the herd book the same as a man's religion or the place of residence, but there are today classifications running on other lines. In this legislature there has been a classification of wet and dry, and moist, which is somewhere betwixt and between, like Mohammed's coffin, which is suspended half way between heaven and earth. And in the newspapers I have seen some classified as outlaws or insurgents. I prefer the latter because it is a little milder, and I am somewhat of an insurgent myself. As I understand the term, that simply represents different stages and different degrees of intelligence.

It seems to me that sometimes we do not properly recognize the obligation that we are under to the great men who laid the foundations deep and broad for the great commonwealth of Iowa. Some distinguished man has said that the present is the lineal descent of the past, and, if there be such a thing as conscience in law making,—which I understand is a matter somewhat in doubt and dispute,—it would seem to consist in a sort of evolution. We derive our ideas from those who have gone before us; and I say this state has been peculiarly fortunate in those men who formed it in the beginning. There is one thing particularly that we can say for the state of Iowa and its early lawmakers. In the entire period of its history, there has never been a time when there was any accusation that any lawmaker in Iowa had ever violated his trust; there has never been a time when there was a taint of bribery or a suspicion of men being bought. Where there has been so much scandal in surrounding states, that is a matter of universal congratulation that from the first General Assembly down, the record has been absolutely straight and clean in that respect. I do not know but what I heard a whisper over here about the word "graft" that has been used from a high and distinguished source in the recent past, but I want to say that that does not in any way deteriorate from my remark. As I understand it, this word was used, not in a dictionary sense, but purely, gentlemen, in a Pickwickian sense. I want to repeat and emphasize and accentuate that one thought, that throughout the history of this state there has never been a member of the legislature against whom the charge has been brought of being unduly influenced.

It has been made possible for us today, owing to the foundations that were laid deep and broad by these gentlemen and those before them, to go on legislating safely upon a firm foundation and building wisely upon what they did; and, therefore, it seems to me proper and fitting that we should recognize the immense obligation that we and all who follow us must owe to you. It is with pleasure that I add my mead of praise, for I realize, and realize fully, as a sort of connecting link between these two generations what we owe to those who have gone before us who have made it possible that we shall have as a blessing in all the future generations from this experience no blood on our escutcheon, but that we shall continue to build up a greater and a better Iowa.

HON. HERBERT C. RING.

Mr. President, Members of the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association and Members of the Joint Convention:

I am glad the president of this convention called attention to this unequal balance of power,—one plebeian and two from the other side. I noted the remark of the gentleman from the House of Lords that he had heard a strange and unfamiliar word "graft". I wish to say to him and to those whom he represents that the air in this chamber and the members are as clean and as pure and as wholesome as the breath of an early June morning and no graft abides on this side, and I listened with utter amazement, gentlemen, to his statement that in the Twenty-third General Assembly or some preceding General Assembly it was necessary to bring in some members on a stretcher. I am glad that I belong to the Thirty-sixth General Assembly and that prohibition is coming. Aren't you? And then I listened to Mr. Dobson as he pointed out the beauty of the Iowa farms, the capitol extension, of which some of you have heard, and you know truly, gentlemen, back in my home county I heard some remarks on the other side during the campaign that didn't sound a bit like his. But I am glad we did it.

Yesterday the committee from the House having this matter in charge asked me if I would speak a few words at this session on behalf of the House. I have answered that call and am glad to stand before these pioneers this morning, as well as those who are here in the Thirty-sixth General Assembly. I will confess to you that I didn't quite understand what the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association stood for and I took opportunity to investigate. Perhaps all of you were familiar with the situation, but I alone may not have been. I found that former officers of state, former members of the General Assembly, judges of the federal and state courts, members of the board of education and distinguished attorneys who began their period of service twenty years or more prior to this time are eligible to membership in that organization. And so this morning, when there seems so much that summons us to work, when every hour seems freighted with its every load of care, when there is so much pending here, like there was those twenty or more years ago, that summons us to work, it seems to me that it is altogether fitting that we should pause for this hour and in a figurative sense tender to each one of these members of the Pioneer' Lawmakers' Association an American beauty perfumed with our love and respect and esteem, and on behalf of the House of Representatives of this Thirty-sixth General Assembly, Mr. President and members, I am glad to be the bearer of that message.

Gentlemen, you belonged in a way to the nineteenth century in your activities, perhaps. We belong to the twentieth. Those closing days of the nineteenth century had problems of their own, and yet many of them were problems that were age long in their importance. Many of these problems are yet with us and will be with every assembly through all coming time. And yet, as I look back over those years and know something of the measures then pending, I cannot help but understand that each succeeding assembly has new problems that it must face.

Two years ago it was my good fortune and privilege as a member of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly to be here when our junior United States Senator, Kenyon, delivered that splendid address upon the life and the character of a former governor of this state, Mr. Larrabee, and I remember that in that address he quoted these words from Lowell: "There are men with empires in their brain." Gentlemen, I would not speak untruly, but I am of the opinion that there were men in the beginning of the history of this state, men who were pioneers, such as you men, who did have empires in their brain, and you did build wisely and well. No monuments will mark their pathway that the visible eye can see, but if you will look into the records of the different offices of government here, if you will turn to the statute books, if you will turn to the decisions of the judges of our courts, you will find there the record of the progress through the years, and I repeat again that we have men in Iowa who did have empires in their brain.

Men of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, it would be presumptuous for me to advise you, my fellow members, but I do not and will not now refrain from this statement: We ought not alone in our legislation to look today, but we ought to turn and look through the years with prophetic inspiration and say, what import will our acts have upon the twenty years that are to come? And if we shall do as well here and now as you did in the days that are gone we shall have done wisely and well. Seated by my side, listening to the addresses here, was one of the Senators of this Thirty-sixth General Assembly, and he said, "Where will we be twenty years from now?"

Members of the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association, I doubt not, in fact I know, that many of your associates have gone to plead the justice of their cause before that bar where justice is administered with a mercy that is unknown in the administration of earthly affairs, and members of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, when twenty years shall have come and gone, we shall have aged correspondingly, many of our members will have gone before that same court; and while we are busy with these affairs here that seem so large and seem so important, let us, remembering the past, not forget the finer things that, after all, go to make up life and real manhood.

Gentlemen, again on behalf of the House, permit me, as its humble representative this morning, to bear to your our tribute of love and respect and veneration.

COL. W. P. HEPBURN.

Gentlemen of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly:

It has never been my good fortune to be permitted to address either one of the houses of our legislature, although I had some connection in an official way with the sixth and seventh General Assemblies, and while I have not been permitted to address the legislature of Iowa, I have witnessed, as a boy and man, something of its transactions since the first territorial legislature met in 1841 in the then new capital of the territory. I knew Iowa when the territorial limits of Iowa included all of the present state, all of Minnesota west of the Mississippi river, and probably something more than half of the two Dakotas. In all that vast empire there were then a little more than 43,000 people—43,000 where now there are seven millions of people. My father's cabin was very near to the 91st meridian. West of that line, only a few miles from our door, you could not have found in all the United States as it then appeared upon the maps the homes of five thousand white families. From our cabin, moving westward to the border line of our state, you would have traveled without the sight of the smoke from a single chimney. It was a wilderness that God had planned to invite the coming of the men who have built the commonwealth. In those early days there were no railways, very few stagecoaches; probably not more than two lines of daily mail. Of course, the telegraph, the daily paper, the telephone and all those modern means of communication were unknown, and when the ambitious men of Iowa sought acquaintance, when they had some message to deliver to their fellow men, they came to the capital, and meetings of the legislature and meetings of the various conventions always brought throngs of men who wanted to aid. It was a custom in those days to organize the third house of the General Assembly, to which all of these members were eligible and where they discussed those grave questions so important when the foundations of a state were being laid. My stepfather was the clerk of the supreme court. He had his office in the then old capitol, and it was my fortune to see very many of these early patriots, and when old enough, to hear very many of their discussions. I remember very distinctly the discussions that occurred when men of progressive thought were striving to change the old English common law with regard to domestic relations, to give to the wife the right to own real estate without the intervention of a trustee; to give to a wife the power to own and control her own property; to take from the husband the right to own whatever of hers he reduced to possession; to give to the wife equal control and right of custody of the children. I remember the discussion when it was proposed to emancipate capital from the conditions under which it was held, when corporations were decried, and when each stockholder of a corporation was liable for all indebtedness of the corporation. I remember some of these discussions and I remember with veneration, Oh! with gratitude, those grand men who effected these changes and reduced from thralldom burdensome indeed those who suffered under the old system.

I listened to a gentleman here today thanking God for the absence of partisanism and apparently decrying parties. I sympathize with no thought like that. I look back and I find that every step of progress made in a state and nation, every law lifting humanity higher, every law bringing blessing to mankind, has been wrought out by partisans and parties. I believe that that state or nation is best governed when there are two contending parties, each with ideas and each in turn responsible for the good or bad that comes to the state. Can you think, gentlemen, of any great step, any progress of any great movement that has lifted mankind higher or has brought us civic blessings, that was not wrought out through the intervention and instrumentality of parties? There are today and always will be where there is stable government, parties political. There is not a government or a dynasty today in this universe that is not sustained by a dominating and controlling party. The Czar of Russia could not hold his throne or maintain his crown a month without behind him there was a dominating party, and so it is, and so in my judgment it always will be.

I sometimes hear gentlemen say lamentingly that the era of opportunity is past for the individual and for the legislator. Our governor, who yesterday delivered a most admirable address to the association, spoke of a past period as the heroic period, giving peculiar advantages to the men of that day because of questions of great moment presenting themselves that they were able to solve. I was not content to believe that in all respects his judgment was well founded. I believe, men of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, that before and before your successors there are as grave questions to be settled yet as were ever settled during the period when Abraham Lincoln as a blessing from God was permitted to preside over the destinies of this nation. We thought then that we had solved the one great question that stood as a menace before the prosperity of the nation. There are as grave questions for you to settle. The great labor question is before you and your successors to settle; the control of enormous capital is for you to settle; the management of the great agencies of commerce and manufacture are not settled yet. They are for you to settle. And there are innumerable questions in the present and the future to arise, giving place and scope for the genius, the learning and patriotism of the men of the day of their uprising. We often hear of the extraordinary virtues of those who preceded us. Undoubtedly they have played their part well and accomplished that that was set before them to do, but it is my earnest belief that the genius of the American people has not deteriorated, that the patriotism of this day is not excessive in comparison with the patriotism of the days past, that the ability for legislation is not buried with the days of the past, but that this generation has its full quota of genius, of patriotism, of worth, with the advantage of the larger accumulating experience that comes to you. I am not one of those who feel discouraged or lose hope in the republic. I expect from my grandchildren a great superiority over their ancestors. I expect you younger men to more than equal your fathers, and your children you will be proud of.

There is one word further that I would like to say, and that is, I want to raise my voice here on this very occasion, and I hope each one of you will do it, against those detractors, those creatures of venom, spite, hate, falsehood, who are constantly decrying men whom their neighbors selected as their public servants. Read the magazines, read a certain class of journals, and all public men, as soon as they receive expressions of confidence from their neighbors who have known them, at once become grafters and thieves. Animated only by selfish desires, intent only upon rapine and spoil. How ridiculous it seems to one who stops a moment to think. Men who occupy your positions are men who have the confidence of the men who knew them best; men who have a knowledge of your capacities; men who are willing to trust to you the highest business of government—and yet legislators are the ones who seem to be most often selected by these blighted moral monstrosities.

There is one further suggestion that I would like to make, that in our state legislature those that were selected to make our laws are under serious difficulty. You are selected in November. You receive official notice of your election in December. You are called upon to enter upon the discharge of your duties early in the following month. The great majority of you gentlemen have had no experience, either in law making or law construction. The probabilities are, that a great majority of the gentlemen do not even know the process by which a thought is crystallized into a statute. Probably not one man, not half the men that come here, know the process through which that paper we call a bill must go before it becomes a law. A great many of you are not lawyers and perhaps had not read the law closely or critically that you are expected to amend. In addition to the difficulties of that kind, you find the rules on parliamentary law, something that you probably never thought of, consisting of a comparatively few pages, twenty maybe, but if all of the constructions that had been placed upon those rules during the life of the state and the territory by the presiding officers and by the chairmen of your various committees of the whole, were included, it would make a half dozen immense volumes. About all of that the average legislator knows nothing and he has got to learn it, because his efficiency is not of the highest standard without he has a knowledge of parliamentary law and what his rights on the floor are and what his duties may be. Those are difficulties. The best thought of a civilization ought to find reflection in the laws of the land. We boast of our civilization and the best efforts of the most intellectual of our nation and state have been addressed to the advance of our civilization as it may be reflected in our laws, or to reflect in our laws our civilization. And yet I am told that the last General Assembly enacted three hundred forty-six public statutes, every one of them a criticism upon that civilization of which we boast. Every new law is a criticism upon the existing civilization. It is a suggestion that it is not perfect and we are going to make it perfect. I sometimes think that we engage in too much hasty law making and I cannot but think that you gentlemen would be able to perform your duties much more satisfactorily to yourselves if your activities began some months later in your term of office. If I had my way with my view of the matter, I would have a short session where you have your one session for the members to become acquainted, to familiarize themselves more or less with processes—in other words, to learn the hang of the schoolhouse—and then I would give an interval for the purpose of studying, learning more of the duties and more of the better methods of accomplishing them, and I would have a long session later in the term, and I believe it would effectuate an improvement in our legislation, without criticising in the slightest degree the legislation that we have had.

Gentlemen, I know that the members of our Pioneer Lawmakers Association feel very grateful to you, indeed, for the gracious manner in which you have received us, for the very kindly expression that you have made for those entitled to membership in our organization, and in expressing, as I know that I do, the very earnest gratitude of all of our members, I thank you.

Thomas of Union moved that the joint session be now dissolved. Motion prevailed and the joint session dissolved.

House reconvened.

"Provided that the board of supervisors of any county may at any time make application to the said commission for a change or modification of the established county road system when such change is proposed for the purpose of eliminating from such road dangerous crossings or curves, or when such change would materially decrease the cost of improving or maintaining the road, and in such case the commission may re-open such matter and authorize such change as may seem advisable."

SECTION 5. That section fifteen hundred twenty-seven-s-8 (1527-s-8), supplement to the code, 1913, be stricken out and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The survey and report of each section, as soon as completed and approved by the board of supervisors, shall be submitted to the state highway commission, and the board of supervisors may designate to the said commission what sections, in their estimation, should be first passed upon by said state highway commission. The said commission is hereby charged with the duty of passing upon such reports and plans, and, in so doing, shall take into consideration the thoroughness, feasibility and practicability of such plans, and may approve or modify the same. After such survey and plan for each section is passed upon by the state highway commission, they shall be returned to the county auditor with full and explicit directions as to modifications, if there be any. The county auditor shall, upon receipt of the approved and modified survey and plans, record the same at length in a county road book, and the board of supervisors shall thereupon proceed to the construction of the road, bridge, tile and culvert work in accordance therewith, and as herein provided. The duty to construct and maintain all bridges and culverts throughout the county is imposed upon the board of supervisors. All culverts and bridges shall be paid for out of the county bridge fund, except as provided in section twelve (12) of this bill. Where conditions are such as to warrant or necessitate the same, the board of supervisors may furnish township trustees metal or other temporary culverts authorized by the state highway commission to be placed by them on their township road system. Said culverts to be purchased by the board of supervisors and paid for out of the county bridge fund and shall not exceed in size thirty-six (36) inches in diameter, or its equivalent. The county, however, shall be at no expense for placing, filling or transportation of said temporary culverts other than their delivery at a railroad station to be designated by the board of supervisors.

It shall be the duty of the township clerk or township road superintendent before removing any such culverts from the place of delivery to receipt to the county for the entire shipment specifying in such receipt the size and number of such culverts.

Immediately upon the completion by the board of supervisors of any bridge or culvert situated upon the township road system, or the installation of a temporary culvert furnished to the township by the board of supervisors, it shall be the duty of the township trustees to properly fill over with dirt all such culverts and fill in and uniformly grade the approaches to all such bridges. Should the trustees fail for a period of two weeks after notification to make such fill, or fail to fill in and grade over such culvert, as herein provided, the board of supervisors shall proceed to do so, and the engineer shall report the actual cost of so doing and such amount, not exceeding two hundred dollars ($200.00), shall be certified by the board of supervisors to the county treasurer who shall transfer said amount to the county road fund from the first collection of road funds belonging to said township. All other moneys received by the board of supervisors for road purposes shall be paid out only on the order of said board, for the purchase of tools, machinery and equipment, or for work done upon the county road system, or for tile and tiling, or for the elimination of dangers at railroad crossings on both county and township roads at the discretion of the board of supervisors, on an adjustment of such dangerous conditions, by negotiation between the railroad and the board of supervisors, or upon an order and finding of the railroad commission. All moneys received by the township trustees for road purposes shall be expended for and upon the township road system, or for the elimination of dangers at railroad crossings on township roads, at the discretion of the township trustees, on an adjustment of such dangerous conditions by negotiation between the railroad company and the township trustees, or upon an order and finding of the railroad commission.

SECTION 6. That section fifteen hundred twenty-seven-s-9 (1527-s-9), supplement to the code, 1913, be stricken out and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"Whenever all the roads of the county road system have been improved according to the plans herein provided, the board of supervisors shall add such roads from the township road system as have been improved by the township in accordance with the general plans and specifications furnished by the engineer and in accordance with the requirements of this act, and if the township roads so improved be not sufficient to use all county funds available for that purpose, the board of supervisors may select additional county roads, but no increase shall be made in the mileage of the county road system until that system is completed, except that the board of supervisors may at any time add such roads from the township road system as will materially shorten the direct lines of travel between market towns. In all cases of additions the same proceedings shall be followed in all regards as herein provided for the original selection and improvement of county roads."

SECTION 7. That section fifteen hundred twenty-seven-s-11 (1527-s-11), supplement to the code, 1913, be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“Standard specifications for all bridges and culverts, railroad overhead crossings or sub-ways, shall be furnished without cost to the counties and railroad companies by the state highway commission, and the work shall be done in accordance therewith, and when said work is completed and approved a duplicate statement of the cost thereof shall be filed at once with the state highway commission by the county auditor. All culverts and bridge construction, tile and tiling and repair work or materials therefor, of which the engineer’s estimated cost shall be ten hundred dollars ($10,000.00), or less, may be advertised and let at a public letting, or may be let privately at a cost not to exceed the engineer’s estimate, or may be built by day labor. All culvert and bridge construction, tile and tiling and repair work, or materials therefor of which the engineer’s estimated cost shall exceed ten hundred dollars ($10,000.00), shall be advertised and let at a public letting, provided, that the board shall have the power to reject all bids, in which event they may readvertise, or let privately by submitting contract to the state highway commission for approval, or build by day labor, at a cost not to exceed the lowest bid received. All bids received shall be publicly opened, at the time and place specified in the advertisement and shall be recorded in detail, in a book kept for that purpose, by the county auditor; said book shall at all times be open to the public for inspection. Any proposed contract which shall exceed the sum of two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) for any one bridge or culvert, or repairs thereon, shall be first approved by the state highway commission before the same shall be effective as a contract. Before beginning the construction of any bridge or culvert by day labor or by contract, the plans, specifications, estimate of drainage area, estimates of cost and their specific location shall be filed in the county auditor’s office by the engineer. On completion, a detailed statement of cost, and of any additions or alterations to the plans shall be added to the above records by the engineer, all of which shall be retained in the county auditor’s office as permanent records, and when said work is completed and approved a duplicate statement of the cost thereof shall be filed at once with the state highway commission by the county auditor. The board of supervisors may authorize the county auditor to draw warrants for the amount of pay rolls for labor furnished under the day labor system, when said pay rolls are certified to by the engineer in charge of the work. Said bills shall be passed upon by the board at the first meeting following said payment.”

SECTION 8. That section fifteen hundred twenty-seven-s-12 (1527-s-12), supplement to the code, 1913, be and the same is hereby repealed.

system the roads to be dragged for the year, to be known as draggable roads, and shall employ a superintendent for the township road system who shall give bond for the faithful performance of his duties in such sum as the township trustees may direct. Said superintendent shall have the general supervision of all dragging and repair work on the township road system, including the placing of temporary culverts and his term of office and compensation shall be at the discretion of the township trustees. He shall see that the approaches to all the bridges on the said roads are maintained in such manner as to present smooth and uniform surfaces, and keep the openings to all culverts and ditches free from weeds, brush and other material that will in any manner prevent the free discharge of surface water. He shall have charge of all draggable roads of the township road system and make contracts for dragging, and shall see that all draggable roads of the township road system are properly dragged at such times as are necessary to maintain such roads in a smooth condition, at such price as is reasonable and necessary to secure such contracts. For this purpose there shall be expended, under the direction of the township trustees, through the road superintendent, upon the township road system not less than the one (1) mill drag tax now authorized by law. The township trustees shall not allow any bills for dragging, maintenance, or repair work, nor shall warrants in payment therefor be drawn by the township clerk upon funds of the township road system until itemized bills therefor shall have been certified to by the township road superintendent. A violation of this section shall render the township clerk liable on his bond for the amount of said warrant. The compensation of such superintendent for all duties, including any dragging actually performed by him, and the cost of all equipment for dragging, shall be paid for out of the township road funds. He shall at least once each year, or on demand, furnish the township trustees a report of all work done under and by him."

A duplicate report of the work accomplished shall be filed by the clerk with the county auditor; and the county engineer, as nearly as practicable, shall credit the same on the township road system of the county road map. It shall also be the duty of the engineer to make a written report to the board of supervisors of the work accomplished upon the roads for the current year, which report shall show what roads of the county and township systems have been completed or partially completed, and credit to such roads shall be shown upon the county road plan not later than January tenth (10th), and a copy of said report shall be immediately forwarded to the state highway commission upon standard printed forms. The county motor vehicle road fund shall be expended for the following purposes only: the crowning, drainage, dragging or gravelling of public highways outside of the limits of cities and towns, and for the building of permanent culverts on such highways. Such culverts shall be constructed of concrete or stone and said funds shall be under the control of the board of supervisors for said purpose only, and shall be paid out on warrants on said fund drawn by the county auditor, duly authorized by the board of supervisors entered on record. Before undertaking any such work of permanent improvement in accordance with the provisions of this act, the board of supervisors shall cause the roads proposed to be improved to be surveyed and the location of all culverts shall be designated and the width and height of grade established, which survey, with specifications of the proposed improvement shall be filed for record in the office of the county auditor and the work shall be done in accordance therewith. EXPLANATION OF VOTE.

I am in favor of the girls and boys of Iowa, but who gets this money you are trying to appropriate, the girls and boys of Iowa or ten or twelve doctors in Iowa for experimental purposes? We are expending nearly a million dollars per annum at Iowa City and that should be sufficient for experimental purposes.

We know the cause of our unfortunate children if we are only willing to open our eyes. The greatest cause of this is poverty and high society. Help the poor mothers, give them the appropriation, and we shall have relief. Cut down the high salaried men that are getting too much and help the poor, then you have solved the problem of the girls and boys of Iowa. I vote "no" on House File No. 130.

OTTO A. HELMING,

Slaughter of Wapello submitted the following amendment to House File No. 471 and requested that same be printed in the journal:

Amend House File No. 471 by adding to section 1 of said bill after the word "equivalent" and period in line 33 of the printed bill the following:

"Nothing in the provisions of this act shall be construed to abridge the rights of any person or sect in the exercise of prayer, supplication or any mental or spiritual process for the prevention of disease or the relief of the sick."

The following communication was received from the state printer and ordered printed in the Journal:

Des Moines, Iowa, March 13, 1915.

Hon. W. I. Atkinson, Speaker House of Representatives, City.

SIR—I am advised by the Chief Clerk of the House that the House yesterday passed a resolution directing me as State Printer to print "300 additional copies of the uncorrected House Journal and 100 additional copies of the corrected House Journal. Such order to begin with the House Journal of March 11, 1915."

Section 127 of the Code specifies the number of copies of the so-called uncorrected Journal that shall be printed for each of the two Houses of the Assembly.

Section 129 of the Code specifies the number of copies of the so-called corrected Journal that shall be printed for each of the two Houses of the Assembly.

The number, or numbers, thus specified is now being printed daily.

To add the number indicated by the resolution of the House would add no expense for printing.

There would be additional expense for binding.

Additional paper stock would be required, and according to my understanding of the law the Executive Council, which has the custody of the paper stock, could not issue me stock for the additional copies except in contravention of the statutes.

I submitted these matters to the Attorney General yesterday afternoon and he advised me in effect that the sections of the law which I have cited would prevail as against the resolution of the House, and that I could not lawfully comply with said resolution.

Regretting that the situation is as indicated, I am,

Very respectfully,

ROBERT HENDERSON,
State Printer.
